

"LABBY" SCORNS A TITLE.

The British Radical Leader Reads Queen Victoria an Ironical Sermon.

In a recent issue of Henry Labouchere's Truth appears the following delightfully ironical paragraphs from his caustic pen:

Thank heaven the birthday of her majesty is over, and I am safe for one more year! Since the queen has taken to celebrating her natal day by knight-riding or baroneting those connected with journalism I see the day approach with fear and trembling lest my sovereign should be minded to knight or baronet me. Never is there a creation of "sirs" without some of them assuring me that, far from asking to be made one, they did not even know that this was contemplated until they saw their names in The Gazette. I invariably believe what any one tells me; therefore the danger seems to me to be a real one. My objection is a double one. I prefer the plain "mister" of a British citizen, and I should fear, were I knighted, that my readers would suspect me of being actuated rather by gratitude than by sincere admiration whenever I felt called upon to praise her majesty's advisers.

Not indeed that I object to any one being knighted if this adds to his pleasure in existence. A knighthood at least has the advantage of not descending to the son of the gentleman who becomes a "sir." I was discussing the other day with a friend of mine who had declined the honor whether it was an advantage to a parliamentary candidate or the reverse. He contended that, such is the inherent snobism of the Anglo-Saxon race, the advantage is considerable. There is a certain amount of truth in this.

Although not myself desirous of being knighted or baroneted or of being officially allowed to wear a colored ribbon or a metal disk, I sincerely wish the queen "many happy returns of the day" and trust that she may have many other occasions to confer birthday honors on her subjects, provided that she does not include me ever in the distribution. We must judge of sovereigns by sovereigns, and certainly the queen has been the best monarch that has sat upon the British throne. The unreasoning loyalty that elevates a sovereign into a sort of divinity has disappeared, and the institution of monarchy is now judged very much on the merits or demerits of the incumbent of the throne. The queen enjoys a personal popularity which must be far more gratifying to her than the abject sentiment that leads free men to grovel before a crown, whether it be on the head of the vilest or the best of human beings. What I object to in monarchy is not so much the monarch—when, as with us, the sovereign reigns, but does not rule—but the courtiers and the flunkies that it brings into existence. Charles II was not a commendable sovereign, but I always have had a liking for him on account of his undisguised contempt for his courtiers.

EUROPE'S TORCH OF WAR.

The Great Powers Ready For The Spark That Will Set It Aflame.

After the dreadful Franco-German war of 1870-1 the principle of prolonged military service and of diminished annual contingents was given up. The monstrous principle of universal service was adopted instead. By this principle the whole nation is under arms. A country is no longer a country; a people is no longer a people; a nation is now nothing but an army, and a country is only a barracks. Everybody is sur-ley qui vive. If war breaks out today, all professions become deserted, all functions abandoned; the life of the nation stops, so that national activity may be said to begin again only with the blood that is shed.

Moreover, before two hostile armies—that is, two nations when they are enemies—join in combat each of the two armies—that is, each of the two infinite hordes which traverse their several countries to meet eventually on the field of battle—will leave behind it a country in famine, its factories silent and its trade paralyzed.

Again, enormous stocks of food supplies must be accumulated on the frontier where the two armies are likely to meet, but before reaching these inexhaustible magazines the army must be fed while crossing their own territories, and that requires money. So that before even the first gun is fired each army will have expended enormous sums and left in its train towns and villages stripped of men and beasts, the cities in famine, the country without a single tiller of the field.—McClure's Magazine.

The Return Courtneys.

In the course of the debate on the bill to dismiss railway postal clerks Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio was giving the house the benefit of his knowledge of the experience in the postal service as far as appointees in his own district were concerned. He thought that if the bill were amended so as to require the old employees to pass an examination and grade 50 per cent not one of the dismissed clerks, who, of course, were all Democrats, would come within 1,000 miles of getting back.

"The gentleman is a distinguished member of congress," said Mr. Pendleton of West Virginia. "Does he think he could pass the examination required to enter the railway postal service?" "I think so," said Mr. Grosvenor, "if the gentleman from West Virginia had to put the questions."—Washington Post.

The Year 1894.

The year 1894 corresponds to the one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eighth from the birth of Christ, to the year 7408 of the Byzantine era, to the years 5654-5 of the Jewish era (the latter year beginning at sunset on Sept. 30), to the year 2647 since the foundation of Rome, to the year 2564 of the Japanese, and to the years 1811-12 of the Mohammedan era, the year 1312 of the era of the heira having begun on the 5th of July.—St. Louis Republic.

"I SPY STRANGERS."

England's Revolt Against the Cry That Clears the Commons Galleries.

As is well known, it is only through courtesy and in violation of strict rules that any one is allowed to witness the proceedings of the English parliament. If an ill-natured member chooses to call out at any time, "I spy strangers," the galleries must be immediately cleared. This custom, of course, has become obsolete, and of late the ladies, who can go anywhere else in Westminster where visitors are allowed, through their especial champion, Mr. Byles, have endeavored to secure the same privileges relative to admission to the members' gallery as those accorded to men.

In a recent declaration before the house of parliament Mr. Herbert Gladstone stated that the exclusion of ladies from this place was based on the rule enforced by successive speakers that women cannot obtain admission to the house. "In former times," he said, "between 1679 and 1778, the occasional presence of women in the gallery below the bar was permitted. Notice having, on Feb. 2, 1778, been taken that strangers were present, the strangers who were men withdrew in obedience to the sergeant-at-arms. The ladies who filled the gallery exhibited such persevering reluctance to comply with the order that they interrupted the business of the house for two hours. Since that ladies have never been allowed to sit within that part of the house."

Mr. Herbert Gladstone's statement filled the English newspapers with columns of letters on the subject, the general trend of which goes to show that the British maid and matron propose to assert that they have equal rights to witness the doings of the lawmakers with their husbands and sweethearts.—New York Advertiser.

GOLD SWEATERS AT WORK.

Your Double Eagles Are Liable to Be a Dollar Light.

A startling discovery was made in the subterranean other morning, and as a result all people are warned against the $20 goldpiece, as the "sweater" is at work again.

Cashier Stout received a sack containing $5,000 in gold coin from a bank on Third street. As usual, he weighed each piece before accepting it and found five double eagles each $1 short. Careful examination shows that they had all been remilled.

Remilling gold coin is the latest trick of the men who find counterfeiting too dangerous. They go to a large city and deposit a sum of money in bank and a few days later draw it out in $20 goldpieces. These they put into a lathe and trim off the milling, which they carefully put on again, gaining at least $1 worth of gold in the operation. As the coin is not mutilated, but only slightly reduced in diameter, the coins are readily passed on the stores and in market, where money is not weighed when received.

The wife of the "sweater" makes trifling purchases at the stores with them, and the good money received in exchange is rebanked and drawn out in gold again. Thus the capital is kept turning over at a lively rate, constantly growing, at a slight risk of detection.

A diligent "sweater" can clear from $50 to $75 a day easily. These are the first indications that Cincinnati has been worked, but from now on double eagles are under suspicion.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

BOTH BROKE THE RECORD.

How Congressman Allen Secured One Appointment From President Cleveland.

Like other men of wealth and influence, Congressman Allen of Mississippi has his poor relations. But, unlike most men of wealth and influence, he does not turn them down. One of them wanted to get an appointment and appealed to Mr. Allen to secure it for him. Inasmuch as he had been uniformly successful in having his indorsements ignored, he concluded it would do no harm to say a good word for his worthy and eminently respectable relative.

Going to the White House one day last week, he shook hands with Mr. Cleveland. "Mr. President," he said, "you have never appointed anybody I've asked you to appoint, and I have never asked you to appoint a relative of mine. Now, let's both break the record."

"All right, John," said the president, laughing, "I'll make the appointment."—Washington Post.

Harrison's Heavy Trunk.

An amusing story has leaked out in connection with ex-President Harrison's visit to this city. One of the trunks with which he is traveling this summer was extremely well loaded and tasked the strength and patience of a baggage smasher at the Forty-second street station to such an extent that he lost his temper and made a very emphatic remark.

"Be aisy, then," said his companion. "That's Mishter Benjamin Harrison's trunk."

"Begorra, thin," answered the irate Irishman, "he's got his presidential boom inside of it."—New York World.

Prophetic.

A cartoon which the Paris Figaro had ready to publish at the time of President Carnot's death was one of the usual illustrations by Forain. The artist, thinking of the possible retirement of Carnot from the presidency, had figured two waiters at the banquet of Lyons exchanging opinions. One says to the other, pointing at Carnot: "Look at him well. It is the last time you will see him." Of course the picture was never published.

Cause For Praise.

The following notice was given last Sunday from a suburban pulpit: "The pastor will preach his last sermon this evening prior to his vacation, and the choir have arranged a special praise service for the occasion."—New York Observer.

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY! A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, confusion of the mind etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and lungs. The nerve system is like a telegraph system, and must be kept in obedience to such decree, I did, on the 14th day of November, 1894, duly levy upon, and will, on Saturday, the 15th day of December, 1894, at the hour of 12 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the front door of the court house in said county, offer for sale at public auction, and sell to the highest and best bidder, for cash in hand, all the right, title and interest in the following described real property, to-wit: Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), of block one (1) of Sunset City, Clackamas county, Oregon.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution and order of sale issued out of the circuit court of the State of Oregon for the County of Clackamas, bearing date the 9th day of November, 1894, in a suit wherein M. C. Graham was plaintiff and J. W. Graham was defendant, commanding me, in the name of the State of Oregon, that out of the real estate hereinafter described, to realize a sum sufficient to satisfy the demands of said decree, to-wit: $430.00, together with interest on the same since said decree was entered, and also the costs of attending this sale.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS. Square Type. The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spinalized Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a choice volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Constancy Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find pleasure in the magnificent oil-pictures of roses, 16 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches, reproduced from the original painting by the Louvre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 35 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of the greatest interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the sister sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with a merit, send for a specimen, and you will find that seeing these THUMBS has put us in the way of saving money by finding in our magazine everything the literary wants of a whole family.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS. Square Type. The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spinalized Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability.
