All notes for this column should be sent to Mrs. H. S. Gibson, editor, Oregon City, Oregon.

TO VOTE ON SCHOOL BOOKS. State Superintendent of Instructions G. M. Irwin, is sending out circulars to the county superintendents of schools, requesting them to prepare and send him their votes designating the remaining list of school books for use in the schools that failed of being chosen last year.

At the last voting contest at the close of the year there were a number of books that failed to receive a majority of the votes cast and for that reason no election was made. Therefore there must be another contest to decide the question. The books upon which a decision was not reached were:

- Drawing books.
Physical geography.
Composition and rhetoric.
English literature.

Supplementary reading (elementary intermediate and academic.) The two receiving the highest number of votes in each series will be submitted for decision now, as provided by law. Superintendent Irwin has been waiting action of the legislature for the past two months before taking further steps in the matter, inasmuch as it was believed that that body would do away with this system of selecting books, but it did not do so, hence the superintendent has no alternative but to proceed and carry out the usual programme.

SCHOOL NOTES. The spring term of the Mink school will be in charge of A. C. Strange. Mr. Strange is one of the brightest teachers in the county and the patrons of that school may expect a very successful term.

THE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. G. M. INITIAL EMBROIDERY

DIRECTIONS RELATING TO MATERIALS, STITCHES AND COLORS.

Letters With Floral Decoration Which Are Adapted to Many Materials—Cording Is a Beautiful Method of Outlining Work. How It Is Done.

According to The Art Amateur, the first point to be studied before beginning to embroider initials with floral ornamentation is the necessity of preserving the proportions in both weight and color tone between the letters and the floral decoration of them. Just what INITIAL WITH FLORAL DESIGN. is meant by this is illustrated in the drawings. The letters being heavy and the flower sprays dainty, the proportion is kept by drawing the letters in the broadest and simplest way, while a good deal of detail should be expressed in the flowers.

In combining colors for these designs keep the letters less prominent in tone than the flowers. They are adaptable to almost any material, but if applied to linen cannot be as elaborately worked as on a heavier fabric.

The following are directions for cording, which is a beautiful method of outlining work: Where stems and leaf veins occur, outline finely in one thread of fine floss. Then mount the ground material firmly. Work the decorations in long and short stitch, slanting to the center of the blossoms—to the veins in leaves.

The color combination is to be according to nature in flowers naturalistically drawn. This work finished, outline the letter edges with a cord ("line lay cord" on linen, a silk on other materials), couching it down firmly with sewing silk, stitches an eighth of an inch apart, always at right angles with direction the cord is being carried. The cord must terminate where the little scrolls end. Finish those points by splitting the cord, threading the strands in a coarse needle and drawing them through to the wrong side, where they may be fastened. Never break the material in order to take the whole cord through at one time. Now, with a double thread, bring the needle up at the base of one of the couching stitches, hold the needle up from the work until the thread is taut; then twist until the strand will end where relaxed; then send the needle down on the top of the next couching stitch. In this way cross the cord from its start to its end; then return in the opposite way, crossing the first series of stitches.

Many original ways of slanting these stitches suggest themselves to a worker. Two or three rows of cord may be laid parallel and close together in this way, or the ground being heavy, the entire width of the letter may be so covered, and in this case any number of pretty little diagrams will be formed by the couching and twisted silk crossing stitches. A color combination adds to the intricate effect.

In case only one line of cord is used express the little shading work by stitches following the lines of shading indicated in the drawings.

Where the scrolls curl work the edges in perspective solidly to throw out the upper edge. This is a pretty method and is worth a little patient practice, which will be necessary to learn to keep the cord well twisted and tight.

Dress and Fashion. The newest linen shirts are embroidered all over in sprays of white or color. Sashes of varying widths of ribbon and those of soft silk and chiffon are an especial feature of summer gowns.

Black gloves are coming into fashion again. Among the numerous accessories of dress are the "Fistuff" and "Cromwell" collars of pale to vanish lace.

Plaid silks have become very popular for dressy gowns. The most stylish sailor to wear with the drill gowns must exactly match the color of the dress and have a band and bow of the color in the blouse.

Mohair is gaining in favor, especially in light colors, and the new ones are soft and glossy as silk.

Rosettes are superseding the bow at the throat. Blouses are a distinct feature this summer and are in many styles.

A few yards of chiffon with a little ribbon transforms a ball gown which has done duty through one season into a fresh up to date dress suitable for any dressy occasion.

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF A STOVE.

Clean Each Different Part According to the Metal Therein.

The various parts of a stove require careful treatment if it is to be kept shining and bright. Once a month is often enough to apply blacking to a stove, provided the kitchen is kept clean. If something is spilled on the stove, it should be cleaned off at once and not allowed to burn in. A heavy flannel rag should be kept on hand for this purpose. In case of a very obstinate grease spot a very little kerosene may be used. Where sirup or anything of a sugary nature is spilled it is probably the best way to let it burn to a char and then take it up.

It is unavoidable that a little grease should fall on the stove in broiling unless there is a regular broiling arrangement attached to the stove. In such a case the grease must be wiped off the instant the broiling ceases with a heavy flannel cloth kept for the purpose. Otherwise it will burn in and make an ugly and unseemly stain.

In blacking the stove at the monthly blacking remove the nickel work. This is easily done, as it is merely screwed on. Black the stove thoroughly, dampening the blacking if convenient with a little coffee rather than water. After applying the wet blacking with one brush to a small portion of the stove polish it off with a dry brush, and after the whole stove has been polished in this way rub and polish it with a chamois kept for the purpose or a clean cotton cloth. This last process removes the dust of the blacking. No patent blackings which have been invented to do away with the labor of polishing can be recommended as durable. They require to be continually renewed and do not take the place of the old fashioned blacking.

After the stove has been fully blacked and polished the nickel work should be cleaned bright with whiting and put back in place. If the stove has ground polished edges, as most of the best stoves have, do not polish them with blacking, but clean them bright with sapollo.

How to Fry Smeets. Rinse them thoroughly; then lay them all out on a piece of coarse linen folded in two or three times and cover them with another piece folded in the same way. Pat with your hands until the fish are perfectly dry; then dip each one separately into an egg that has been beaten to a foam and after that into fine cracker dust in which there is a liberal sprinkling of salt. Lay them carefully on a platter and let them stand in a cool place for an hour; then drop each one into a kettle of hot fat and let them fry till a golden brown. Serve on a platter on which is laid a fringed napkin. Decorate with sprigs of parsley and bits of lemon.

Mrs. J. P. Bell, Ossawatimie, Kan., wife of the editor of The Graphic, the leading local paper of Miami county, writes "I was troubled with heart disease for six years, severe palpitations, shortness of breath, together with such extreme nervousness, that, at times I would walk the floor nearly all night. We consulted the best medical talent. They said there was no help for me, that I had organic disease of the heart for which there was no remedy. I had read your advertisement in The Graphic and a year ago, as a last resort, tried one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart, which convinced me that there was true merit in it. I took three bottles each of the Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine and it completely cured me. I sleep well at night, my heart beats regularly and I have no more smothering spells. I wish to say to all who are suffering as I did; there's relief untold for them if they will only give your remedies just one trial." Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.00, 6 bottles for $5.00, or it will be sent prepaid, on receipt of price by The Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
