The way to build up Oregon City is to give Oregon City people your patronage.

FOR NEXT YEAR.

That another year a reunion of a week or ten days duration should be held was the expressed wish of all who attended the encampment in this city. As to the location nearly all favored Oregon City. Its central location and excellent transportation facilities for reaching it from all parts of the state were a factor greatly in favor of the city by the falls. Another point that won favor with our guests was the reasonable-ness of all charges they had to meet with while in Oregon City, and which will do much toward inducing them to attend a grand reunion at this place another year.

In Gladstone Park Oregon City has an ideal place for holding a reunion. Water, fine parade grounds, convenient to Oregon City and Portland with unexcelled transportation facilities make it a perfect place for a camping ground for the old soldiers and their families. The great Chautauqua auditorium, capable of seating 3000 people would be at their disposal in case of rain. Tents could be procured of the state authorities or of the government. Those attending the encampment who visited the park were more than pleased with its beauty and pleasant location and preferred it of all places they have seen in the state for holding a reunion.

If the citizens of Oregon City and Portland take hold of the matter properly one of the greatest gatherings of Grand Army men ever held on the Coast can be had in Gladstone Park next summer.

MASSACHUSETTS is about to open a tramp colony, similar in purpose and management to the German tramp colonies. Two thousand acres of cheap land have been purchased, which is capable of being transformed by hard work into profitable farm property. It is the intention to send to this farm for a term of two years, every tramp legally convicted of vagrancy. Thus, while the tramp is being converted into a working man, the land is being made available for homes. The men will, of course, be comfortably clothed and fed during their term of servitude. In addition to this provision for convicted vagrants, there will be an opportunity for men who are willing to work for the sake of having a home, service for one year being required for this purpose. This is presumed to be the first enterprise of this nature to be undertaken by any of the states. It is an experiment only as applied to American conditions, and it seems probable that it will prove the practical solution of the tramp problem as far as Massachusetts is concerned.

OREGON CITY feels exceptionally honored in having the guests that have been with us during the past week. A more orderly and dignified body of men could not be gathered together than were the men of the Grand Army, while the women of the Relief Corps were fine representatives of the intelligent, matronly American woman, who wins respect wherever she goes. The young men of the Sons of Veterans were typical Americans and gave the assurance that their part in keeping alive the fires of patriotism in this country would be fully carried out. Among those with us were many men and women who have made for themselves names known throughout the state and nation and whose presence in our city was both an honor and a benefit. Should these organizations at any future time desire to meet in Oregon City a most cordial welcome will be given them, and the "beans and soy bosom" will be made to hold out so long as they are with us.

THERE will be as many if not more people in Oregon City during the Chautauqua assembly than there were here during the encampment and the appearance of our city is a matter that should not be overlooked. Visitors in Oregon City during the encampment were greatly pleased at the handsome appearance of the city and of the pleasing effects produced by the decorations on the various buildings and the handsome arch and banners across Main street. It takes but little time and having the material on hand our people should decorate their buildings for the Chautauqua visitors. The board of trade entertainment committee hope to have the arch retained over to the street and appropriately decorated and to have the city present such an appearance as will give the many distinguished visitors that will be in Oregon City at that time a favorable impression of the place.

OREGON CITY now having demonstrated her ability to entertain, no further backwardness should be shown in securing the annual gatherings in this city of the various state organizations that exist in Oregon. Entertaining such meetings arouse in the citizens a better confidence and pride in their place and do much toward bringing about a more harmonious feeling that cannot but be beneficial to a community. These meetings can also be made a strong factor in maintaining the prosperity of a town, for the guests, if properly entertained, will be sure to speak a good word for the town and of its people. Now that a beginning is made there will be no difficulty in securing the annual gatherings of our state organizations, and Oregon City's hospitality is extended to every one of them.

WHILE Oregon City has one of the largest opera houses in the state outside of Portland, and halls and churches larger than is usually found in towns of its size, yet the need of greater hall accommodations was sorely felt during the late encampment. After accommodating the guests it was found impossible to admit the citizens of the town to any of the public meetings held, a fact greatly deplored by the committee having the matter in charge. It is to be hoped that the business men of Oregon City will at once take steps toward securing for the city a pavilion large enough to accommodate any meeting that may be gathered with us. As an investment, it will yield returns in more ways than one.

A NOTICEABLE feature to the old soldiers was the many pieces of bunting in the decorations that were placed up-side-down, indicating in the military code the sign of distress, the rule being to reverse the flag and put the blue field down when in need of help. Those not up in military matters should bear in mind when putting up bunting in making their decorations to always place the blue above, and thus avoid an exposure of their ignorance and at the same time give a more pleasing effect to their decorations.

THE whisky trust is said to be about to dissolve into its original elements. The cordage trust has reduced its capital stock from $34,000,000 to $12,000,000. Other trusts are said to be tottering, but the coal oil trust the monarch of all, seems to be invulnerable.

THERE is a prospect that the example of the Chicago firm, which the other day announced that it would resume the scale of wages in force before the panic, may soon be followed by other manufacturers of steel and iron in the East and elsewhere.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

The municipal authorities of San Francisco have laid down a rule which should become part of the unwritten organic law of this republic, says the Astoria Budget. They have decided that in processions and other formal gatherings the only flag shall be the stars and stripes. There is nothing invidious about this. It is the emblem of popular sovereignty and of freedom to all people who seek shelter beneath its folds. No man not born within its sway has a prescriptive right to set foot on this soil, and the generous welcome extended by the American people to those of all nations to enjoy our constitutional privileges entitles them to demand in return at least an outward respect for an emblem we hold so dear. The rule now laid down is that the stars and stripes shall be the only flag, but that organizations or societies shall have the privilege of displaying banners suspended between two poles or swung across one by means of a cross-bar. This will permit the Free Masons, the Sons of St. Patrick, the Helvetian Society, the Society of St. Andrews, the Sons of St. George, the Knights of Pythias, the Ohio Society, Native Sons of the Golden West, and every other combined body of men formed for social purposes to fling to the breeze the silken emblems of the order. The display of banners adds very much to the magnificence of a parade, and it would have been a pity to shut out all such insignia in order to avoid a violation which is objectionable to very many Americans, native-born and otherwise. The happy solution of the question will meet all requirements and should offend none. "When you are in Rome, do as the Romans do," is a very old maxim, but there is much wisdom in it. All that makes emigration to and residence in this land desirable is typified in "Old Glory," and it should share the honors of this people with no other flag, rag or badge on earth. "Only one flag," is the law; all reminders of other lands or other governments are only relics which may be held in affectionate remembrance, but must not be flaunted.

Score one for Hoke Smith, says the Portland Sun. At the request of Senator Mitchell, the secretary of the interior has revoked an order of the general land office prohibiting sheepmen from herding their flocks on the Cascade timber reserve. Acting Commissioner Bowers, forgetting that the reserve comprises a vast amount of territory, denied the sheepmen this privilege for the reason that the sheep would destroy the herbage and undergrowth. He evidently did not know that the reserve is covered with great trees, instead of vine, maple, poplar, dwarf oak, and other growths peculiar to the East. Secretary Smith is rapidly learning the ropes of his office.

The man who has no love for American institutions, says the Sheridan Sun, for the "old flag" above all other flags, for our government above all other governments, is not a good American citizen, and should not be so regarded by loyal Americans. America needs no foreign advisers on the financial question or any other question of national importance.

GLADSTONE GLEANINGS.

The Chautauqua Auditorium Nearing Completion—A Beautiful Park.

GLADSTONE, June 18.—Gladstone is a sweet retreat for flowers of numberless variety; they grow, they multiply, they adorn and make fragrant, and make the heart of the Gladstonian sing with joy. Where the flowers find a home is surely the place for a busy, over-tired business man to find rest and quiet to recuperate his wasted energies. The cool air and still hours of night ensure a refreshing sleep. The ride up in the morning on the Gladstone car is an eye opener that not many can indulge in, and makes the way to the city a pleasure trip instead of a drudge.

The great auditorium for the Chautauquans at the park is progressing under the care of White and Morrison, two of Oregon City's leading architects, and looking at it one has delightful visions come before him of the great feats in which the old Greeks and Romans used to indulge in such buildings; and now to look at the difference of their pursuits and aims today! The arena of brute strength is no more and the arena of intelligence and mental strength stand before us, and what a chasm is between the past and present!

The Chautauqua has every prospect of a great and grand success. It is worthy the attention of everybody, both young and old. The energetic old Clackamas river still rushes from its mountain fastnesses to join the Willamette, and they to join the proud old Columbia as she meanders her majestic way to the glorious Pacific ocean.

The splendid transportation facilities of Gladstone make it a very attractive place, and men to whom time is an object are constantly directing their attention toward it.

The Gladstone Park now presents a beautiful appearance. If you were to carpet it with the finest Turkish carpet you could not get anything softer to the tread; and campers will find it better than a feather bed to recline on.

The hospital at Gladstone is still under supervision of the popular Misses Libker and Utter, and is a most convenient neighbor to have at hand.

Gladstone is building up rapidly for these hard times, and the outlook warrants a good investment to all residents.

Col. Miller's handsome little cottage is nearing completion, and is a great addition to the looks of Gladstone.

Fred Fuller's house is assuming very handsome proportions. Asa Parker's house has its last coat of paint on and looks very near. Mrs. Bold's house is nearing completion.

Angust Goetting is building a little addition to his house in the shape of a porch, and will soon have his house radiant with a coat of paint.

Mrs. Gilman Parker's nanay patch is a wonder to behold, and supplies half of Oregon City from its beautiful lap.

Mr. and Mrs. Tingle have a nod and smile for everybody.

THE OLDEST CHERRY TREES.

MILWAUKEE, June 12.
TO THE EDITOR:—Will you kindly allow me space in your widely read paper to say a few words concerning an error that has been published by a number of papers in the state?
The Freighter of May '95 states that "the oldest cherry tree in the state is that one on the Barclay block in Oregon City, planted in 1852." The oldest cherry trees in the state will be found on the old Luelling place, below Milwaukee, now known as the Lambert place. They were planted by Henderson Luelling in 1847, who brought them together with a variety of other grafted fruit trees, numbering about 500 in all, "across the plains" in that year, he being the first to introduce grafted fruit trees into Oregon. An accurate account of his enterprise will be found on page 568, Hines' History of Oregon.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with LaGrippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial bottle at Charman & Co's Drug Store, Charman Bros. block.

Our Candid Advice.

It is seldom that we appear in the roll of spiritual adviser or family physician but there are times when we feel justified in calling the attention of our many subscribers to an article of true merit. We feel justified in saying that Moore's Revealed Remedy contains more actual merit than any medicine it has ever been our good fortune to test. One trial will make you as enthusiastic as the writer.
