CORONER'S VERDICT.—When the ENTERPRISE went to press last week, Coroner Holman was busy with the hearing of the evidence in the death of Mark B. Blackburn, who was killed by a Southern Pacific train colliding with his team at the crossing on Tenth street. The inquest was adjourned until Monday afternoon, when the testimony of the injured son, Elmer, who was taken to the hospital at Gladstone, was heard. He stated that he did not know the train was coming until it collided with their team. No new features were introduced in the testimony at the adjourned hearing and the coroner's jury consisting of Henry Meldrum, foreman; J. K. Bingham, C. N. Greenman, C. W. Noblitt, W. J. Kidd and C. C. Babcock, returned the following verdict: "We your coroner's jury impaled for the purpose of inquiring into the cause of the death of M. B. Blackburn, find that he came to his death by coming into collision with a passenger train, consisting of an engine and one passenger car; that the collision occurred on Thursday, July 18, 1895, at the S. P. R. crossing on Tenth street, Oregon City. We find from the evidence that the usual whistle was blown for the crossing and that the bell was rung as usual, but we believe that the train was running at a higher rate of speed than should be allowed within the city limits, viz., fifteen miles an hour." Mr. Blackburn leaves a wife and six children who reside at Springfield. The two oldest sons, W. R. and Thomas drive teams for Lyons in Portland. Mr. Blackburn's remains were taken to Springfield for burial. Messrs Bronough and Fenton represented the interests of the railroad company in the hearing and L. L. Porter, deputy district attorney, appeared for the state.

CAMERA CLUB'S OUTING.—Some 12 or 15 members of the Camera Club went up to Oregon City, the Tualatin and the Clackamas rivers, Sunday and spent a very pleasant afternoon. During which over 60 views were taken. The club is collecting views for the exhibition to be given in October. The club now numbers some 44 members, all of whom are quite proficient in the photographic art, being able to develop their own negatives, make bromide pictures, etc. To those who call their interest in photography a fad, they reply that taking views of beautiful scenery is a more pleasant and rational method of enjoying themselves on an outing than by killing fish or birds.—Oregonian.

GOOD PROSPECTS.—Postmaster Green went to Portland Tuesday to witness a working test of a lot of ore from the Blue River Milling & Mining Company's mine in Lane county. This mine is owned principally by Oregon City parties, and all are pleased to know that the ledge shows indications of becoming a paying property. A test was made from a body of the medium ore with Capt. J. P. Shaw's dry process with good results. This was no uncertain assay from a piece of choice rock, but was an actual working test from medium grade ore, and shows a yield of a little over $12 per ton. As the ledge is twelve feet in width and plenty of ore in sight, the company evidently has a bonanza. Aside from this ordinary ore from which the test was made, some rich veins have been discovered, and Postmaster Green has a sample that would run up into the hundreds in a ton lot. A force of men will be put at work at once to run in a tunnel lower down on the hill, and indications tend to show that the mine will be rich when lower depths are reached.

ASSEMBLY COMMENTS.

Press Opinion of the Chautauqua Assembly.

Davton Herald: The second annual Chautauqua assembly now in session at Gladstone park, Oregon City, is well attended by people from all parts of the state. The exercises are said to be of a very interesting character. And the assembly is a great success. This is becoming one of the most popular and interesting annual meetings of the day. They are instructive and elevating.

Eugene State Journal: Tuesday was college day at the Chautauqua assembly at Gladstone park. The assembly was addressed by the college presidents of Oregon, each speaking of his own institution, and by President Jordan, of Leland Stanford university. It was brought out during the discussion, that Oregon does not claim a single university, notwithstanding that the name is applied to so many of her colleges.

Woodburn Independent: Gladstone park, on the Clackamas river, just below Oregon City, is an ideal summer resort for large gatherings. The new auditorium just completed, is a model of its class. Shaped like an immense Chinaman's hat, it is a light, airy structure, capable of seating nearly 4,000 people. It is supported by a row of six posts arranged in a circle upon which a light frame is constructed and shingled; 175,000 feet of lumber and 160,000 shingles being used in its construction. There is a row of 52 windows completely circling the roof at a distance of about thirty feet from the ground. The voice can be heard distinctly in all parts of the building.

Yanhill Independent: Brother Hofer, speaking of the tendency to give politicians prominent places on the program of Chautauqua assemblies, says: "It would seem as though we are to use everything even the church for base political purposes these days." We expect some of the newspaper fellows will say that Hofer is jealous because he did not get a chance to talk at Ashland or Gladstone park, Oregon City, but we hardly believe this is the reason why he raises this objection, which we consider well grounded. The Chautauqua movement is the great popular educator of the present time, and while the discussion of social and economic questions would very naturally find a place on the program of its annual gatherings, we think it would be best to keep the professional politicians in the background more than has been done of late.

The Dalles Chronicle: A large number of residents of this city are attending the Chautauquan exercises at Gladstone park and one of them has sent to The Chronicle some words concerning Prof. Thomas Condon. Mr. Condon is well known to many of our citizens. In the early '70s he was pastor of the Congregational church at this place and has many friends who remember him. Since leaving The Dalles he has attained national fame as a geologist. Following is the letter:

Mr. Condon's kind face, beaming with good feeling to all his friends, and all who come within hearing of his kind voice are his friends, and had an especial tenderness in the greeting of the delegation from The Dalles. It was most heartily reciprocated, for the inheritance received by the present residents of The Dalles from their predecessors is to claim the genial professor as "our Mr. Condon."

The auditorium is an attractive building like an immense umbrella, covered with shingles to within a few feet of the ground, comfortably seated, a Chickering piano on the rostrum, the front walls decorated with flags, the rear walls with something not provided or paid for in the contract—a most wonderful echo. It was at times impossible to believe that someone with his mouth full of mush was not parodying every sentence of the speaker. Prof. Condon's manner is conversational. Often an "and ah—" was most amusingly reproduced in the rear, followed by the rapid finishing of the sentence as the words he wanted came in to his memory. This is but a slight trouble, as the audience soon forgot the voice in the rear and gave profound attention to the little man on the rostrum.

Prof. Condon described three pictures in ancient Oregon history. The first, the "ocean period," was of the time when all of Oregon was ocean, except two islands, one which he named Siskiyou, consisting of the peaks of the mountains of that name and the other, 300 miles eastward, which he named Shoshone and was formed of the Blue mountain section. Specimens of the ocean beaches of both these islands were exhibited and explained by Mr. Condon. The second period was called the "lake period" and formed by the uplifting of the great dike, which we know as the Cascade mountains. The fossil remains of this period were also exhibited in beautiful specimens of leaf impression in lake mud, acorn cups, maple, elm, willow and palm, preserved by that incomparable collector, nature, in an imperishable barbarium. The last, or "river period," is of an Oregon, with whose topography we are familiar. Mr. Condon's address was received with profound interest. The last quarter of his hour was occupied in answering questions, such as, "Are there found fossil remains of animal life on that were the islands of Siskiyou and Shoshone?" Answer—"No, not until the further uplifting connecting them with the mainland." The horse of ancient times aroused many questions. Someone asked, "Were there any birds there?" This question brought me statement that Mr. Condon was the owner of eighty specimens of bird bones which were loaned to an Eastern society for scientific investigation, and were never returned. Mr. Condon had used all peaceable means to secure their return, but so far has been unsuccessful. Mr. Condon has daily instruction to a class at 9 a. m.

The immense advantage of this Chautauqua assembly will be far more keenly felt in 1896. Everyone says "Next year I will bring a tent and stay the whole time."

Bandon Recorder—The Chautauqua Assembly is making great preparations for a meeting at Oregon City, when sermons and lectures by distinguished divines will be delivered. The OREGON CITY ENTERPRISE announces that a bicycle tournament has been arranged for with the assembly committee, and some rapid bike riders will enter the contest. This is a lively age we live in, and in the near future we may have camp meetings announced with horse racing every afternoon, and meetings of the Society of Christian Endeavor to close with a grand masquerade ball.

Portland Portlander: Patriotic Day, last Monday, at the Chautauqua Assembly, was nearly as well patronized as the Catholic Hospital dedication and street parade on Sunday. The prominent gentlemen programed to make speeches were nearly all absent. Gen. Beebe and a few others were out of the state, and therefore could not attend. But Gov. Lord and State Treasurer Metcalf, who took an active part in the Catholic parade and dedicatory ceremonies on Sunday were here, but no doubt too tired to attend the public patriotic meeting.

DEAR SIR:—Replying to your favor of 23rd Inst., I beg to say that the Prune Grader I bought from you last year, has given perfect satisfaction. Never get out of order, is easy to operate and grades the prunes as even as can be desired, and affords me great pleasure to speak a word in its praise.
