FRIDAY, AUGUST 16, 1895.

TIED OF HIS QUARTERS—Will Moore, the club suit man, is very tired of jail life, and his roving spirit chafes under restrictions of solitary confinement. As he was apparently suffering in health from close confinement in his steel cell, and receiving treatment from the county physician, he was given the freedom of the corridor, his physical condition precluding any serious attempt at escape. Thursday afternoon Sheriff Maddock loaned him a brace and bit to make some repairs to his bunk. He did not return them, and about two o'clock Friday morning Peter Nehren, the court house janitor, who lives in the basement adjoining the jail apartments, heard a grating noise, and after watching and waiting for some time located the noise in the vicinity of the assessor's office. He cautiously unlocked the door, and discovered Moore making his way through a hole cut in the floor. He told Moore to go back, but the latter argued the point at some length, and when Nehren used some forcible persuasion he slid back into the jail corridor knocking over an empty box that stood on a table, and his person falling on the floor with an audible thud. The sheriff was summoned and locked the prisoner in his steel cell, where thieves do not break out and steal. If Nehren had been two minutes later in opening the door of the assessor's office, Moore would have been out through one of the office windows on the ground, and making a race for liberty. Moore must have worked industriously for several hours, as he had placed an empty box on the table standing in the corridor, and mounted on the box he cut a hole through the ceiling with the small brace bit and a buck-saw. As he had to reach through the hole made in the ceiling to work an opening in the floor, the work was done with the brace bit alone. When Nehren came in Moore had thrown his coat and vest through the hole, and had his head and shoulders through the opening and was raising his body up by means of his elbows. The prisoner is now closely watched and his liberties have been curtailed.

FRANCHISE LAID OVER—The city council had a special meeting Saturday evening to consider the ordinance read at the regular meeting, held on the Wednesday night previous, granting the East Side Railway Company a franchise to run express and freight cars into the corporate limits of Oregon City. The mayor and all the members of the council were present except Porter, Cooke and Broughton. The committee on streets and public property to whom was referred the ordinance, made a minority report presented by Councilman Meldrum recommending that the life of the franchise be changed from perpetual duration to two years, and that the annual license be raised from $20 to $100. A lengthy debate on the matter of East Side Railway franchises followed in which Councilmen Meldrum and Howell championed the cause of the Railway Company, and Councilmen Stevens, Jaeger and Moffatt were arrayed in opposition. The council refused to refer the ordinance back to the committee, and it was effectually pigeon-holed by being laid over until a decision is rendered in the suit brought by the city against the East Side Railway Company, for forfeiture of its franchise, on the ground that it has never paid its assessment for the Main street improvement. The principal excuse given for the fight against the railway company, is that it has virtually refused to pay its just proportion of the Main street assessment.

PAYING OUT FUNDS—Capt. J. T. Apperson of Oregon City, one of the regents of the Agricultural college at Corvallis, was in the city yesterday and had a lengthy and quite satisfactory conference with Secretary of State Kincaid. The understanding has been that Mr. Kincaid would hold the Agricultural college on the same basis in the matter of funds as the Weston Normal school and other institutions whose calls for money allowed on appropriation have been denied except upon presentation of bills to be audited by him. Such was the inference drawn by the regents from the discussion in the newspapers and was strengthened by other circumstances that were not properly understood, so those gentlemen were up in arms and determined to enforce by law the respect which they believed their demands for money from the proper sources were by law entitled to. Capt. Apperson came yesterday with "blood in his eye" but he went away with a smile. Mr. Kincaid assured him he had no notion of refusing the requisition of the regents for their share of the school fund when asked for; that such a demand had not been refused yet and would not be. The statutes provide especially just how the agricultural funds shall be paid and when the application is made in accordance with those provisions, the funds will be paid. Mr. Kincaid said that is true of all other state institutions also. Where the law states certain modes of payments specifically, that law will be recognized, even though there may be a technical conflict with the constitution; but in the absence of legislative direction covering the payments specifically, then Secretary Kincaid will follow the mandates of the constitution. So there is no danger of conflict between the Agricultural college and Mr. Kincaid.—Salem Statesman.

OREGON CITY FIGS—Mrs. Mary La Forest has demonstrated that figs can be successfully produced in this climate. For 22 years a fig tree has stood in her front yard in this city, that bears fruit continually every season. The figs are about half the size of an ordinary Bartlett pear, which they resemble in shape. The fruit begins to form in March, before the leaves come out, and if the weather is warm the young figs attain sufficient standing to safely winter the April frosts. On the other hand, if there is cold weather in March the young figs fail to attain sufficient growth to withstand the blight of later April blasts and frosts, and a portion of the fruit is killed, although the tree never fails to bear a part of a crop. The figs are of a large variety, of good flavor and are now ripening. The tree was grown from a slip planted by Mrs. La Forest, and with its large leaves, ripe figs in different stages of growth, presents a pleasing and ornamental appearance. Mrs. La Forest has a couple of two-year old fig trees in her garden, that are thriving in appearance, and will come into bearing next year. These, too, were propagated from slips taken from the old tree.

SWIMMING EXPERTS—Seth C. Maker and William Fisher, went to Oregon City yesterday morning with the intention of swimming to Portland from there, a distance of about 14 miles. Arrangements for a boat were made with a young man who was fishing and the start was made at 9:15 from Oregon City. A good rate of speed was maintained until the mouth of the Clackamas was reached, at which place the river runs quite swift, and for a mile and a half the swimming was exceptionally fast. After the rapids were passed, the man in the boat began to think he had earned his money, but there was no sign of quitting, and he rowed while the boys swam. The water below the rapids ran slowly, and progress from that point was slow, the current being of little avail. Maker, who swam the breast stroke, gradually grew ahead of Fisher, until he had gained about a quarter of a mile. They were about six miles from the starting point, and as it was impossible to keep within safe distance of both swimmers, Fisher, who was very tired and cold, was hauled into the boat. Maker continued to swim until about seven miles had been covered, and in a cold streak of water was taken with cramps and was compelled to quit, after being in the water 4½ hours. Fisher, who works in the office of the Portland Flouring Mills Company, is a small well-built fellow, and one of the best swimmers in Portland. Maker is the instructor at the Olympic baths, and in addition to being an all-around athlete, holds the world's one-hour record for typewriting.—Monday's Oregonian.

PICNIC AT GLADSTONE PARK—The attractive surroundings, beautiful scenery and convenient transportation facilities is making Gladstone park the most popular resort for public gatherings and picnic gatherings of any place in the state. Last year the merchants' picnic was held down the Columbia, and the occasion was hampered by the lack of transportation facilities. After all the boats on the river had been procured, including two barges, no less than one thousand people were turned away for lack of transportation, one-half of whom were little children, whose disappointment was depicted on their countenances as they watched the merry crowd sail away for a day's outing. Says the Oregonian: The merchants' picnic, which will take place on August 28th, promises to eclipse in proportions the monster demonstration of one year ago, while in entertainment, comfort of transportation and real pleasure there will be no comparison. The committee having the matter in charge has spent a great deal of time casting about for suitable grounds, accessible by transportation facilities, and has decided upon Gladstone park. This beautiful ground is situated on the Clackamas river, about 11 miles from Portland, and about two miles from Oregon City, and the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and the East Side Railway Company both run to the very gates of the park, and quick service will be made both from Portland and Oregon City. With the present arrangements 12,000 can go as comfortably as $6,000, which was the number that applied for transportation last year.

SCHOOL MEETING—The board of directors of Oregon City school district No. 02, met at the office of Thos. F. Ryan, at 7:30 p. m. August 10th. There were present: T. S. Lawrence, chairman, J. W. Noble and J. W. Norris directors. On motion it was voted that school commence for the ensuing year on the 23d day of September. The subject of grade work and the assignment of teachers was discussed. TESTIMONIALS.
HILSDAL, Or., April 25, 1895.
The Portland Wire & Iron Works, Portland, Or.
DEAR SIR:—Replying to your favor of 23rd Inst., I beg to say that the Prune Grader I bought from you last year, has given perfect satisfaction. Never gets out of order, is easy to operate and grades the prunes as even as can be desired; and affords me great pleasure to speak a word in its praise. A good many fruit growers visited my place during prune drying time and were supplied at the excellent work it does.
Yours Truly,
HENRY E. BOSCH.
