HOTEL READING ROOMS. Their Principal Patrons In New York People Not Guests at the Hotel.

In one respect at least New York differs from all other American cities, and the reading rooms of its hotels. There are in New York 229 hotels, exclusive of apartment houses with restaurant attachments. Every hotel in New York or elsewhere-every genuine hotel, that is-has a reading room, and in it are to be seen gathered the most important accessories of a hotel-the newsstand, the telegraph office, the telephone office and the railroad and steamboat ticket office. In a country hotel the reading room is the seat of great activity, and it seems to be the bounden duty of the transient male patrons of the hotel, as well as the regular male boarders, to be in the reading room as long a time as possible between meals, and usually a late comer is obliged to wait his turn for a seat at one of the writing desks or tables or for a chance to read one of the newspapers which are kept on file. According to the observations of all hotel men throughout the country, the smaller the town the more important the hotel reading room; the larger the town the less important the hotel reading room. It is apparently in corroboration of this rule that the reading rooms of most New York hotels, though furnished in attractive style and well calculated to serve the convenience of guests, are usually deserted, or if not serted are patronized chiefly by persons not guests of the hotel. In other words, men not stopping at the hotel, but meeting friends in its main corridor, utilize the conveniences of the reading room. Added to these are a few of the transiert guests, who for the most part come to New York on business or pleasure from great distances, and especially from interior towns. Boston men, Philadelphia men. Baltimore men and Buffalo men are not great patrons of the reading rooms of New York hotels, but transient guests from the small towns of the country are, and some of them sit for hours at a time conning the back numbers of newspapers or writing mechanically and then nervously destroying letters to friends and relations. The paradoxical thing about hotel reading rooms in New York is that though ostensibly maintained for the use and convenience of the hotel guests they are at the service in nearly every case of persons who are not only not guests of the hotel, but who, furthermore, are resident New Yorkers. Nearly every hotel in the city has a large number of patrons who are known as "regulars," who stay for several months at a time, and who are seen very little in the hotel corridors or in the reading room. Occasionally a patron of a New York hotel, perhaps one of its oldest guests, will find it necessary to write a letter or to consult a newspaper file. and when he does he is usually compelled to wait until an ontside person not a gnest is ready to take his departure .-New York Sun.

Saved by an Elk.

A curious story of adventure comes from Montana. While a freight train was lying over at a small mountain station the engineer horrowed a shotgun Portland, - - - Oregon. and started out for a hunt. He was about returning to his train when a cow made her appearance. Before he realized that there was any danger the animal made a rush at him, and he ran with all his speed. But the cow was a better racer, and in a few minutes caught him by his clothing, splitting his coat from waist to collar and tossing him into the air. Getting to his feet as quickly as possible, he dodged behind a tree, and then to his dismay found that the gun barrel was bent so as to be useless. The next ten minutes were very lively ones. The cow chased the engineer round and round the tree, and when he got a chance to hit her with the gun barrel it only seemed to enrage her the more. It was only a question of time when he would succumb to fatigue, but a diversion occurred that saved his life. An angry snort was heard, and a big elk appeared upon the scene, head down and prepared for a fight. The cow was so mad by this time that she was ready for anything, and in another moment the two animals dashed at each other. The engineer watched the combat for a few minutes until prudence suggested that he should make a retreat while he and never knew the outcome of the battle, but the presumption is that the elk was the victor.-Exchange.

Silver Bedstands Now.

Brass bedsteads are no longer the most fashionable variety. They have grown too common for the ultra exclusive taste, and silver and white metal and plain silver now to a great extent supersede them. The new bedsteads are shown canopied with pale blue or pink, and the same scheme of color is carried care of the old cannon, and some ill adout in the other furnishings. Silver curtain poles and andirons and draperies the gun one day to the Leavenworth to match the bed canopied are the correct thing.

It must be a wretchedly poor Japanese girl who has not a silk obi-a long sash nearly a foot wide, of heavy silk, and so voluminous that it is made into a fold behind which covers half of the back. Nearly all have silk crape dresses, but they are carefully preserved, and many last a lifetime. A young bride in ordinary circumstances takes to her new home clothes enough to last her as long as she lives-a provision more merciful to the husbands than many of them deserve.

Washing Red Table Linen.

To wash red table linen use tepid water with a little powdered borax (borax sets the color); hang to dry in a shady place. The washing must be done separately and done quickly, with very little soap. The rinsing water should have a very little starch in it. Iron when nearly dry.

Homely Hints.

Put a little soap on that creaking gate or door hinge and permanently stop that intolerable nuisance of a noise.

When frying eggs, keep the adges turned up with a teaspoon as fast as they whiten. This will keep them from being tough and indigestible and make it easier to lift or turn the egg without breaking the yolk.

Black woolen and cotton hose should be washed by themselves (so as not to get lint on them), pulled in shape, hung on the line from the toes, as then the drip will go down instead of remaining in the toes and shrinking them.

When anything is spilled on the stove er milk boils over, making a suffocating smoke, sprinkle the spot with salt and dear, how good of you to say so !-- Chithe fumes disappear.

hands of the sheriff or other proslavery officers of the county or territory, the gun carriage was hidden in the south part of Leavenworth and the cannon responsible for many of the alments of buried in Dr. Davis' old peach orchard,

Fearing danger, it was dug up and dies. Prudence would suggest the taken to Lawrence one dark night in the bottom of a wagon covered with hay. It remained but a short time, when it was taken back to Leavenworth as soon as possible, and restore the and placed in Dr. Davis' temporary diseased organs to healthy and vigorous graveyard until the warelouds of 1856 action. Price $1 per bottle. For sale and 1857 had passed away. The gun was then resurrected and turned over to the society of turners of Leavenworth, in whose keeping it remained for a long series of years. On each recurring Fourth of July and other state occasions and holidays "Old Kickapoo" was brought out, crowned with laurels and escorted with music and joyous crowds > through the streets of the city. Finally the turners relaxed in their vised parties without anthority loaned Coal company for the purpose of niding them to free the shaft of a mass of debris that had fallen and clogged up could. He regained the train in safety the hoisting shaft. The gun was taken down the air shaft, loaded with solid shot, placed upright and fired into the mass above. As there was no chance for a recoil, the gun burst, tearing a huge piece from the side of the old warrior.

The gun was returned to the turners, but they seemed to have no use for it, and soon it was lost, and no one knew anything about it. About five years ago Colonel H. Miles Moore was passing down Shawnee street, Leavenworth, and in an alley near a tinshop noticed an old cannon. He gave it a close inspection and found it to be Old Elekapoo. $25, and he was about to ship it to Chi- man. cago for old brass. Appeals to patriotism were in vain, and Mr. Moore subsequently communicated with the Historical society, and after some correspondence the society appropriated $200 for the purchase of the cannon. In the meantime the tinner had shipped the gun to Chicago, where it was recently found in a brass foundry ready to be consigned to a furnace. The gun reached Topeka in safety.-St. Louis Republic.
