GABROT.—A number of choice cows in Clackamas county have recently died from garget or inflammation of the udder. The disease is one which usually supervenes shortly after calving, and may involve the whole udder or only one or two of the four quarters. Cows, which are in a plethoric condition at the time of calving, or as a result of being put in very rich pasture, when the udder is very active, are liable to contract the disease. Inflammation of the mammary gland is frequently the result of overstocking in order to make a show for sale purposes. Irregularities of diet and injuries directly applied, or cold, will also cause the disease. The symptoms of the existence of the disease is swelling of the gland, heat, pain, and redness of the inflamed part. The properties of the milk secreted are considerably changed, being curdled, whey-like and usually mixed with blood, and in severe cases the chewing of the cud will be suspended. Abscesses may form, and if they are not opened the pus will burrow by means of sinuses into deeper parts of the gland, causing great pain to the patient and complete loss of the quarter. W. W. Quinn, of Canemah, furnishes the following remedy from the Irish Independent, which has proved very successful: A good purgative should be given, and the best for this purpose in cattle is three-fourth pound of epsom salts, three-fourth pound sulphate of soda, a like quantity of treacle, and a full dose of ginger, all mixed up in a liberal amount of tepid water. The udder should be fomented with warm water and be kept free from milk by regular drawing with the hand. The fever will be moderated 40 minims of the tincture of aconite, three times daily. Poultices of linseed meal, containing about three drachms of the extract of belladonna, must be applied three times daily. In some cases the gland becomes indurated, in which case benefit will result from the administration of one ounce of bicarbonate of potassium, together with two drachms of iodide of potassium twice daily in a sufficiency of water. If abscesses form they should be opened and the parts dressed with carbolic acid one part, linseed oil, six parts.

SCHOOL MATTERS.—The fall term of the Oregon City schools begin next Monday with the following teachers, who have been assigned to their grades: Barclay School—10th and 8th A, Prof. S. W. Holmes; 7th A, P. M. Weddell; 6th B, Miss Gertrude Finley; 5th, Miss Hattie Wetherell; 3rd, Miss Laura Beattie; 2nd, Miss Hattie Cochran; 1st, Miss May Kelly. Eastham School—9th, Prof. L. W. McAdams; 7th B and 6th A, Miss Nellie McAdams; 4th and 5th, Miss Erma Lawrence; 3rd, Miss Anna Baird; 2nd, Miss Ora Spangler; 1st, Miss Mollie Hankins. At a recent meeting of the school board, N. N. Robbins was appointed janitor of the Barclay school building, and A. E. Donaldson, janitor of the Eastham school building. It was also ordered that L. L. Porter be instructed to institute proceedings to collect the school tax illegally remitted by the county court of Clackamas county, belonging to school district No. 62. The school district was divided as follows: Commencing on the south boundary of the city on the edge of the bluff; thence along bluff to Fifth street; thence on Fifth to John Adams street; thence on John Adams street to Seventh; thence on Seventh to J. Q. Adams street; thence on J. Q. Adams street to Ninth; thence on Ninth to Harrison; thence along Harrison to city limits; thence along city limits to place of beginning. Those pupils belonging to the first, second, third and fourth grades, and living south and east of the above line are to attend the Eastham school. Those belonging to the same grades and living north and west of this line are to attend the Barclay school. All pupils of the 6th A, 7th B and 9th grades are to report at the Eastham school. All pupils of the 6th B, 7th A, 8th 9th and 10th grades, are to report at the Barclay school.

COAL IN CLACKAMAS COUNTY.—Mention was made in these columns last week that Samuel E. Midlam had leased 320 acres near Wilhoit for the purpose of mining coal on the premises. Albert G. Walling, of Oswego, is the owner of the land, and the term of the lease is 12 years, with the condition, that if, after two years of prospecting, none of the products named, coal, clay and rock for building and other purposes cannot be found in sufficient paying quantities, the instrument shall be void. Mr. Midlam came to Oregon a few months ago from the Pennsylvania coal regions, and claims to be an experienced coal miner, and an expert in geological matters. He says there is coal, kaolin, fuller's clay, asphaltum and building stone in the land he has leased, but he does not yet know whether in quality and quantity sufficient to make them profitable to work. He feels reasonably sure of coal, however, and says he will have several wagon loads to Oregon City in a few days and will probably begin at once to supply the local market. He says it is not lignite, but a good coal for blacksmithing. The prospecting will be carried on through the winter in a small way, but it is not expected much will be done in the way of development until next year. The existence of traces of coal at Wilhoit has long been known, but little interest has been felt in its development.

CHOLERA RAGING.—The cholera scare has not reached Portland, nor is there any probable event in which it should, for rigid sanitary laws, enforced by the local health officers, says the Portland Telegram, have done away with any danger which might have existed of the plague being brought to this city by steamers and ships arriving from the Orient and Honolulu, where cholera is raging. Another safeguard for Portland is the quarantine inspection at Astoria of all ships entering the Columbia river, each vessel having to undergo an inspection by the United States quarantine officers before anyone aboard is allowed to go ashore. The rules are rigidly enforced, and when the officers of the government find grounds for the least doubt as to the health condition of the vessel, she is at once ordered into quarantine. Arriving in Portland, should the stamp of the health officer from the sailing port of the steamer be missing from any piece of baggage belonging to either crew or passenger, that parcel is sufficient to detain the ship in quarantine until the baggage is thoroughly fumigated. This double inspection of vessels arriving in the Columbia from infected ports is almost a certain protection from the introduction of disease.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM INSTANT DEATH.—Ira Wishart was riding up Main street on his bicycle Saturday at a rapid gait, about two lengths ahead of the Gladstone electric car. When he reached a point opposite the Red Front store, two dogs ran out from the opposite side of the street, and one of them ran against the front wheel of the bicycle with considerable force, causing the rider to lose his hold on the handles and throwing him across the railway track in front of the car. He pushed the bicycle away, and the motorist reversed the car, when he pulled himself off the track just in time to prevent his body from being mangled by the electric car. He lost his hat which was demolished on short order by the car, where it fell on the roadway, and he received some severe bruises on his right arm, caused by the fall. It was a very narrow escape, and the trouble was all precipitated by a small dog running out and making himself familiar.

Mrs. MILLER'S ADDRESS.—The Ashland Tidings in its account of the proceedings of the Jackson County Pioneer Association, pays the following tribute to Mrs. Col. R. A. Miller's address on the "Pioneer Women of Oregon:" "Mrs. Miller's address was in every way entertaining and enjoyable. It consisted, in great part, of graphic pictures of pioneer life, motive and results. She showed how the pioneer women of Oregon, as well as the men, had left the influences of noble character, courage and achievement on what is now, through them, a great commonwealth of which we are all proud. The address sparkled with beautiful word pictures, nicely toned with telling points of humor. Tears and smiles were provoked by the skill of her whom everyone recognized as a talented and accomplished lady. The decorations of the auditorium and excellent music seemed to find a fitting complement in an address, blending sweet sentiment, pathetic incidents and great results with the harmony of music and flowers. It was not an address to be analyzed in the usual way, but to be taken as one would take music, for the beauty and harmony, blended by an artist.

HUNTING LAW BREAKERS.—Constable Melvin McCown and Deputy Sheriff Millard Hyatt returned Monday from a fruitless search after Alvin Russell and Charles Knowles, the parties accused of slaughtering the 12 elk on the headwaters of the Clackamas, but did not learn anything concerning their whereabouts. The boys had a rough time making their way through the brush and rain to the pocket in the mountains where the elk were killed. On reaching the camp they claim that they saw no evidence of the meat having been wasted; that the hunters had dried the meat on racks, and carried out a lot of it on horses. They claim that they could not find any evidence that would convict, so after visiting the camp did not consider it worth while to continue the search. McCown succeeded in killing a 400-pound bear while out on the trip. They think from the appearance of the elk bones, that they might have been killed before the close season. It is not believed that any complaint will be made against the elk slayers.

It Saves Children.
Last summer, we had a child suffering from bloody flux, when we came into possession of a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I gave some of it to the child according to directions. It afforded almost instant relief and effected a permanent cure. I can cheerfully recommend it.—Geo. Jenkins, Cedar Creek, Taney county, Mo. Chronic Diarrhoea in South Africa.
For over six years I was a constant sufferer from chronic diarrhoea. I tried a great many remedies yet found no relief. By chance, I noticed an advertisement in the newspaper calling attention to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I sent for a bottle, and before half of it had been taken I was completely cured. E. C. KIRK, Vredefort, Orange Free State, South Africa. For sale by G. A. Harding, Druggist.
