

HOW TO CARE FOR THE SKIN.

The Bath is Valuable, but There Are Many Necessary Accessories.

While all baths are good for the skin, except in certain peculiar cases, the hot bath has advantages over the cold in that it opens the pores and thus encourages the escape of matter that would otherwise clog the system and impair the general health.

Valuable accompaniments to the bath are the bags of bran, oatmeal or almond meal sold by druggists. A little borax or ammonia added to the water is excellent for people with greasy skins.

The woman who desires a good complexion must wash her face carefully. If soap is used, it must be of the best, and every particle of it must be rinsed off before drying the face.

Water alone will not thoroughly cleanse the skin. If the face is gently but thoroughly rubbed with cold cream and then wiped off with a flannel, the grime that will be coaxed from the pores will give mute evidence to the truth of the statement.

In every city there are establishments for facial steaming and massage, where better results are possible than can be obtained at home.

There are two ways of doing this at home. One way is to set a teakettle of boiling water over a strong alcohol lamp and then insert a wide mouthed funnel in the spout.

Another way of steaming is to hold the face above a basin of boiling water, throwing over the head a large towel that will hang down on all sides and prevent the escape of the steam.

How to Freshen Figs.

Figs, when by long storage have become hard and withered, may be freshened without impairing their flavor and rendered quite fit for table use by following these simple directions:

How to Make a Doll's House.

Take a wooden box about 3 feet long and 1 1/2 feet wide. This will cost a quarter of a dollar. Put the lid on hinges and stand the box on end, the lid forming the door or side of the house that can be set wide open.

How to Care For a Lamp.

Oil in a lamp should not be allowed to get down to less than one-half the depth of the reservoir. The wick should be soft and completely fill the space for it, but without crowding.

How to Avoid Colds.

There is one simple way of avoiding colds—keep your mouth shut when out of doors. The man or woman who comes out of a close room, especially late at night, and breathes through the mouth will either catch a bad cold or irritate the lungs sufficiently to cause annoyance and unpleasantness.

How to Prepare Floral Conserve.

Women can make dainty conserves of flowers that are specially recommended as giving a dainty perfume to the breath and lips. They are made from violets, or very highly perfumed roses, or carnation pinks.

How to Cook Cereals.

Cereals can be made palatable even to those who begin by disliking them if they are prepared properly. They should not be boiled simply in water, but in a mixture of equal parts of milk and water. They should not be stirred, for stirring makes them starchy, but cooked in a double boiler.

IN THE APIARY.

What to Do With Partly Filled and Un-necessary Sections.

The American Bee Journal, believing that in "the multitude of counselors there is safety," invited an expression of opinion from beekeepers in different localities on the disposition of partly filled and un-necessary sections.

C. C. Miller wrote: "If you have a market for them, sell the best for something less than full price. It may pay to extract some. As for the rest, put them in piles in supers, protected from the weather, and let the bees rob them out, allowing entrances for only two or three bees at a time, so they will not tear the combs."

S. I. Freeborn answered as follows: "Sell all you can at the best price obtainable above the price of extracted honey, then extract the rest. Let the bees clean up the sections, and then store them in a dry place, safe from mice, for next season's use."

R. I. Taylor thought that the disposition of the partly filled sections depended upon how much honey these contain. He collects such as are nearly full, puts them back and secures their completion by feeding extracted honey.

G. W. Demaree said: "There are two methods of management, and only two by which the unfinished sections can be handled without loss. The more profitable of the two plans is to have them completed by feeding back pure honey, having the work done by properly prepared colonies."

Womanhood has its own special medicine in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. And every woman who is "run down" or over-worked, every woman who suffers from any "female complaint" or weakness, needs just that remedy.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nerve, and the only medicine for women which—once used—is always in favor.

Experience and money cannot improve Dr. Sawyer's Family Cure, because it radically cures Dyspepsia, Liver complaint and Kidney difficulty.

Say, why don't you try DeWitt's Little Early Risers? These little pills cure headache, indigestion and constipation. They're small but do the work.
