AFTER MANY DAYS.

A Clackamas County Populist Gets Disgusted, Repents and Returns to His First Love.

An ENTERPRISE reporter was sauntering around the court house on last Monday, and accidentally met a well known farmer, who resides a few miles from Oregon City. He was a thrifty, intelligent man, but for the past few years had become imbued with populist ideas. In the conversation on political matters that followed, he stated that he had experienced "a change of heart" during the past few days, and was hereafter going to cast his vote with his first love, the republican party. Said he: "when I first went off with the populists, I thought that they meant genuine reform. I closely observed matters, and finally became convinced that the leaders of the party were anything but reformers—they were playing the rank and file of the populist party for suckers. We expected our populist members in the last legislature to do something for the people, at least vote on the right side of questions, as they were in the minority, and could not be expected to do much else. But the way they voted for appropriations, right and left was a corker. Then they voted to raise the salary of the sheriff of Coos county to $1500 a year, for the reason that the sheriff of that county was a populist, notwithstanding Coos is one of the smallest counties in the state with a sparse population, and that official practically has nothing to do for six months in the year, but to rest the seat of his pants in a chair.

"When I went into the populist party I had faith in it as an organization. I threw my whole soul in the cause of reform, and had great hopes for populism, for its opportunities were great, and its prospects bright. I am informed by a friend, who has just arrived from Kansas, that the conditions in that state under populist government are not one whit overrated. In that unfortunate state, the party has fallen into the hands of a dictator, who has absolute power, and in disreputable political methods has outdistanced any of his competitors that ever existed in the matter of corruption and plunder. Why! the exaction of campaign assessments on vice in the larger cities, would put to shame the rottenness in special police and other circles in the wicked city of Portland. The governor of the state and his political advisors are cognizant of and parties to these official crimes. The representatives of the people's party are riding on passes and courting the favor of railroad corporations.

"In fact, stated my friend, who is in every way reliable, "the state legislature has been wofully corrupt and disgraceful, and profligately extravagant. Such is the history of the populist party, wherever it has been in power in the United States. I have the facts about the condition of affairs in Kansas from sources that cannot be disputed. The populist party is dominated by bosses, of high and low degree, who look upon the masses of voters as dumb, driven cattle, and laugh in their sleeves when one of them contributes a quarter to the campaign fund. The leaders of the party have deserted its time-honored principles, and are now trying to sell the votes of the party to a silver presidential candidate, who will reward them with official positions. This combination extends all the way down to county affairs. In Clackamas county, many of the old stand-byes in the populist party were turned down. The new bosses have no particular use for farmers, and a well-known merchant was placed on the ticket for sheriff, and an ex-schyster lawyer was nominated for representative.

"Yes, I read the ENTERPRISE last week. Every word it contained about the populists last week is the gospel truth, for I have investigated the facts myself. The Herald, by its course of prevarication and misrepresentation has materially injured the cause of populism in my neighborhood, who now have no confidence in its statements. Its policy has made populist votes for Maddock and Meldrum, and seriously injured the standing of several of its own candidates. Such self-appointed bosses of the U'Ren type, will soon ruin the populist party.

"The populists have been conducting a missionary campaign; every windy talker is appointed a committee of one to preach the principles of populism to his neighbors, not only once, but the object is to get him completely saturated with visionary ideas of bogus reform. The populist is taught that his first duty is to his party; his religion and private business are matters of secondary consideration. Of course, some people are inclined to accept anarchistic ideas like Vanderberg, for instance, and he has many followers in the ranks. This is a feature of the populist party that has always caused me considerable uneasiness. The practice of contributing to the campaign fund is also conducted on the missionary plan, and the duty of giving liberally is thoroughly impressed on the mind of the average 'pop,' who will permit his children to go without shoes, if necessary, to gratify his party zeal.

"I have learned the fallacy of populist theories by actual experience and observation, and will henceforth vote the republican ticket, as it represents the only genuine principles of reform, and I long for the good old days when high tariff made money plentiful and the country prosperous."

BOOK OF CHRONICLES.

Chapter Two.

And the Urenites, the Coxeyites, the Fiatites, Anarchites and the Bossites met together in council, and among them were the Pharisees, and certain Scribes of evil repute. They were discussing the battles that they had with the Republicanites, and as their wise men counseled they became sore afraid. Finally the chief arose, and said: These people are the children of God, and there are mighty and valiant men among them, and they wear the helmet of salvation and the breastplate of righteousness, and they are indeed hard to overcome. We have among us people possessed of seven devils, and Anniases and Sapphras in great numbers. We will grid on our armor and get to our dirty work.

We will put one of our scribes to work, and we will send him to the land of the Portlands and he shall write a little book, which will be circulated among the Republicanites, and cause them to rise up one against the other. And they shall accuse each other of writing the Book of Lies, and there will be scratching of eyes and gnashing of teeth.

But, lo! and behold! when the book came out and the people read the blasphemy therein, they said this is the work of the Urenites, the Anarchites and the Scribes. Let their blood rest on their own heads, and woe! be to their iniquities. These people hath said in their heart there is no God; they worship false gods and their sins are grievous in the sight of Lord, and in the last days they shall be cut down like green grass and cast into everlasting hellfire.

And the battle continued to wax fierce, and there were wars and rumors of wars, and lies and rumors of lies, for the Urenites and Coxeyites are given to much lying and blasphemy, and the republicanites and the democracies buckled on their armor to meet them in battle. And the Urenites and their clans rejoiced exceedingly, and said we have made some of the Republicanites believe that Judas Iscariot is among them, and we will wipe them off the face of the earth, for a house divided against itself cannot stand.

There are false prophets abroad in the land and wolves in sheep's clothing, but the Lord's people will certainly triumph on next Monday.

A Coos Bay Lesson.

The Marshfield Sun has learned something, and the lesson sent out from the shores of Coos Bay in its columns is worthy of attention. Both four and two years ago, it says it "worked" for the cause of populism—reform—as it was then called. It believed that the election of the populist ticket would "bring about retrenchment," and that officials would "carry out promises." But the populists elected only "stepped into the shoes of their predecessors and put on plutocratic airs that would sicken a democrat or republican even." The Sun says that on account of its populism, it was boycotted, and lost many subscribers, yet it was not discouraged by adversity. It still had hopes of "good fruits," but in vain. The officials were more extravagant than their predecessors. "Deputies by the score; county affairs recklessly handled; a court house dynasty that bids fair to be a lasting blight; an octopus at the county seat sapping the very vitals out of the county, and legislators getting pay for "returning by way of the cape of Good Hope!"

Thus, men and brethren, it has ever been' is now, and will be, world without end, am— (no, d— it!) The populists of Coos county are just like those of Multnomah or any other. They are after the offices, the spoils, the "stuff," and they are hungrier than even the democrats and republicans. Besides this, they profess some impractical and irrational ideas that make them, as a rule, unfit to be trusted on general principles. Nothing will be reformed here or elsewhere, any more than in Coos county, by electing populists to office. —Portland Welcome.

Help Home Industry.

The true foundation upon which to build up the prosperity of Oregon City is to patronize home industry and thus keep our money at home. In laundry work every dollar paid to Chinamen or to Portland laundries is practically lost to Oregon City especially when just as good work at the same price can be had at the Willamette Steam Laundry. This is a new home institution, employing only white help and is supplied with all the latest improved machinery, and using the purest spring water is able to guarantee firstclass work. A trial of our work and prices is asked. Delivery wagon to all parts of the city. Down town office at Wilehart's barber shop.
