FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1896.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE ELECTRIC STATION.—The Pacific Bridge Company, who have the contract of erecting the additional concrete structure at the West Side electric station, put a small force of men at work Monday, getting things in readiness for active operations. A rock crusher will be put in to prepare stone for the cement, which will be used in the structure, and by next week the number of men employed will be considerably augmented. It is the intention to push the work toward completion, and enough help will be employed to complete the structure before the high water of next winter comes. The new addition will double the capacity of the building, and the machinery will be so provided that treble the quantity of power will be produced. The foundation for this part of the work has already been built, and the contractors will only have to build the cement work on top of the foundation, put in the steel girders, roofing, etc. The intricate machinery, etc., will be placed in position by the manufacturers. There is a rapidly increasing demand for the power generated at the falls by the Portland General Electric Company, and it is the intention of this company to still further build on and add to the structure and machinery, until this will be the largest generating electric power station in the world.

DECISION RENDERED.—Early last spring Max Bollack, bookkeeper for the Oregon City Woolen Manufacturing Company, took out a $2,000 policy in the Manhattan Life Insurance Company, and gave his note for the amount of the premium, $30.28. As the policy did not arrive as soon as was expected, Mr. Bollack declined to accept the policy, although he retained possession of the same for a couple of weeks before returning it. When the note became due, S. E. Mulford, of Portland, general agent of the insurance company, brought suit in Justice Schuebel's court to recover the amount of the premium. B. F. and G. W. Swope appeared for the plaintiff and Hedges & Griffith for the defendant. The law points in the case were argued by the attorneys, and Justice Schuebel took the matter under advisement. Wednesday, the justice gave out a decision, awarding judgment to the insurance company for the amount of the premium.

WILL NOT BUILD.—A statement has been published that the Crown Paper Company intended to erect a pulp mill on the property recently purchased at Barlow. W. P. Hawley, superintendent of the Crown Paper mills, informed an ENTERPRISE reporter that there was no foundation whatever for such report, and that statements to that effect were published without any reliable authority. Mr. Hawley states that the property and water right was purchased by the company as an investment, and they did not yet know what they would do with it. He further said that the water power was a valuable one, and as the price suited them they made the purchase. In conclusion, Mr. Hawley stated, that notwithstanding they were having the roof of one of the buildings covered with asphalt to prevent its leaking, that no further improvements would be made around the works unless McKinley was elected president.

GRAIN YIELD ON THE WEST SIDE.—P. A. Becker was over from Stafford Wednesday, and reports that the grain in his neighborhood is not near all threshed yet. That already threshed, produced about two-thirds of a crop, which is considerably above the average for the wheat crop in other sections of the state. This is the best wheat-producing section of Clackamas county, and the most fertile of any portion of the Willamette valley. This part of Clackamas county too, is owned and controlled by a thrifty class of farmers, who know how to till the soil, and make it bring forth abundantly. Mr. Becker states, that notwithstanding the shortage of the wheat crop, potatoes will be up to the usual standard, and a splendid yield is anticipated. Hops look well, and the prospect is good for a bountiful crop, although the prospects are not favorable for remunerative prices.

THE DOREMUS RECEPTION.—Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Doremus gave a reception to the Young People's Society Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church at their home in this city. About 50 people enjoyed an evening most pleasantly passed in music, singing, games, etc. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, were served at a late hour, after which the host and hostess were complimented on the success of the affair and the guests dispersed.

FOR RENT.—A new hard-finished dwelling house, seven rooms, pantry, bath room, wash and wood room. Will be rented completely furnished with everything necessary for housekeeping, or only with stoves and carpets. Amount of rent not so much an object as the securing of a family who can guarantee absolutely good care of the house and fixtures. Conveniently located and in one of the best parts of the city. Apply at this office.

FOR MINERS.—The necessary blanks for filing on a mining claim can be had at the ENTERPRISE office, as well as blanks for all other needs. Portland prices duplicated.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison of Worthington, Ind., "Sun", writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Stehle, 2625 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat nor digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a bottle at Charman and Co's drug store.

For Young Men and Young Women

There is nothing that will arouse the ire of a young man or woman so quick as to have inferior laundry work put off on them. They may dress ever so well, but if their shirt front or shirt waist is mussed their neat appearance is spoiled. The Troy laundry makes a specialty of ladies' and gentlemen's fine work. There can be no better work than is done at the Troy. Leave your orders at Farnsworth's barber shop.

BITTEN BY A SNAKE.

That is What the Victim of a Practical Joke Thought.

"A good many years ago," said an ex-congressman to a party of congressmen, "I was in Georgia. A party of us decided to go from Atlanta to Clarksville on horseback. Tim Murphy, an Irishman, was a lieutenant of the Atlanta police force. He wanted to go, too, and we consented. On our way to Clarksville, through the mountainous sections of the state, we killed two large rattlesnakes. Murphy was amazed and frightened. He wanted to know if snakes were plentiful, and we told him that they were. We told him that at Clarksville they had often been found in the rooms of guests at the hotel. Tim hated to turn back and so went on.

"We knew that at Clarksville a saloon keeper had a stuffed bull snake, and we concocted a plan to make Tim wish he had never left Atlanta. We got to the old fashioned hotel all right. We were put in a big room, with four beds in it. We drank a good deal, and Tim was in excellent spirits. It was a warm night, and most of us undressed. Tim pulled off everything but his shirt. He lay down face foremost across the bed. Then I tied a string around the neck of the snake, put a fishhook at the other end of the line and cautiously hitched the hook to Tim's shirt.

"The next time he turned around he got a glimpse of the snake. 'Holy schmok!' he yelled! 'Look!' And then he made a dash for the window. As he jumped out the window the fishhook pricked him in the back. He uttered an awful yell, said he had been bitten and went flying through the sandy streets of the town dressed in Kongo style. We followed and tried to catch him. At every step he swore he had been bitten, and that he would die. We overhauled him after the whole town had been aroused. We took him back to the hotel and filled him with whiskey, telling him that was the only cure for a snake bite. The next morning he went to Atlanta and took a course under a physician for snake bite. For years after that Tim would brag about killing 20 snakes at one time and of having been bitten by one of them. He did not learn of the trick for five years, and then he threatened to take my life."—Washington Star.

The Aryan Cowboys.

The study of domestic cattle should be of especial interest to us because they have undoubtedly occupied a more important place in our own ancestral history than any other species of animal. The Aryan tribesmen from whom nearly all western civilization folk are descended were cowboys almost to a man. Like the Kafirs and damaras of South Africa today, all their thoughts were about their herds. This is shown in a curious way by the study of the early development of our language. The Sanskrit word for a king meant originally "a chief herdsman." The word for an assembly, or the meeting place of a congress, was the same as that for a cowyard. A soldier was "one who fights about cows." It would seem as if they regarded nothing else as worth ruling over or talking about or fighting for. Professor Max Muller traces the word "daughter" to the ancient term for a milkmaid. In the good old times they plainly did not take any account of young ladies who were not accomplished performers in the cowpen.

The cow or ox was for long ages the chief standard of value. Everything, from a new coat to a new wife, was priced at so many cows. Many of our words which refer to money bear traces of this, such as "fee" and "pecuniary," which are directly derived from the old English and Latin words for cattle. Doubtless there were currency disputes when other materials began to be used for coinage, and difficulties arose about the adjustment of relative values. "Cow metalism" might well have been an important plank in some of the Aryan political platforms.—North American Review.

The Thought Switch.

"I suppose," said Mr. Glimmerton, "that if a man is blessed with fairly good health he ought to be able to sleep nights, but, as a matter of fact, many people lie awake half the night worrying over things not worth fretting about, and waking up in the morning tired out to start with.

"What is needed is a thought switch that will switch the thoughts over from unpleasant lines to lines that are pleasant and keep them there. There are plenty of such switches now, but the trouble with 'em all is that they don't lock. They're all open switches. A man gets over all right, but it's always up grade where this switch is laid, and the first thing he knows he slides back on the old line of thought. What we want is a switch that will keep him on the right track till he's gathered strength enough to climb the hill to the level, where the going is easy, and where the track lies straight for dreamland.

"There's money for the inventor in this, and what a boon he would confer on his brother man."—New York Sun.

Heartless Girl.

"Proud beauty," said he, striking an attitude he had learned by constant attendance at the 10, 20, 30 drama—"proud beauty, I go from here to the river, where I shall end my sorrows by jumping in."

"I wouldn't go to the trouble of jumping in and having to be searched for with grabhooks," said the girl who had refused him. "Just take a drink of the water. That will do."—Chicago Journal.

Variations.

"I wish," said the editor of the comic journal, "that you would give us something first rate in the way of a bicycle joke."

"I'm afraid the bicycle joke has been overworked lately," was the answer.

"H'm! Maybe it has. Well, give us something about the bicycle joke being a chestnut."—Detroit Tribune.
