ADJOURNED CIRCUIT COURT.

until they have first tendered that which is admitted to be due. After such a tender they would be entitled to an injunction against sale for any costs made by virtue of the alleged illegal proceedings of the sheriff.

Further I do not think it is a case in any event where one person can sue in his own name on behalf of all other persons whose property is advertised for sale. The courts are uniform I think in holding that the right to have personal property sold first before a levy on realty, is a personal privilege that the tax debtor can insist upon and which he may waive, and this being the case, plaintiff cannot urge this privilege on behalf of other persons who have not taken interest enough in the case to join as plaintiff.

If the case had been brought earlier to restrain the incurring of a useless debt for advertising, I would have been inclined to have restrained such advertisement until the forms of law had been complied with, so that the county or the purchaser wanted to get a clear title, but that expense has now been incurred and the county, if liable at all for the expense of advertising, (concerning which I express no opinion,) could not be benefited by now enjoining the sale.

For the reason before, and particularly for the reason that no tender or payment for the amount of tax actually admitted to be due has been made or offered, I think that the injunction should be dissolved and the parties left to their remedy at law, but am clearly of the opinion that the costs of this sale cannot be collected legally from the persons whose property is sold, and any attempt to hold them for such costs upon redemption under these sales will involve needless litigation, which the county may easily avoid.

T. A. McBRIDE, Judge.

The motion for a new trial in the suit of Sarah A. Blackburn against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, was denied and ten days allowed for a bill of exceptions. Upon the plaintiff's motion for judgment, it was ordered that she have and recover the sum of $2,000 and costs and disbursements.

The suit of James Adkins against H. A. Waldron was dismissed.

Levi Stehman was given judgment against J. C. L. Miller for $155, and attached property ordered sold.

In the suit of Rudolph Koerner and Fred Meyer against the Willamette Iron Works of Portland, it was ordered that the defendant be compelled to pay into court within a reasonable time $2,200, with interest for the use of the plaintiff or be barred from the right to redeem.

BARLOW NEWS.

Politics Stirring in this Locality—General Local News.

HARTESTING OVER.—Nearly all the threshing machines have been stored away in their respective sheds for the winter, as the farmers are all through threshing. The yield of spring and fall wheat has fallen below the average, and the late sown oats did not make over a half crop, it that. Together with the prices it is a gloomy outlook for the farmers.

POLITICS.—As the days pass to Nov. it is more noticeable each day of the interest taken in politics. Here and there you will see a gathering of men discussing the issues, and to a bystander it is hard to tell who has the better of the argument, the gold or the silver devotee. But, Nov. 3d will tell the tale.

HOP PICKING BEGINS.—Yesterday was a lively scene in the hop yards as nearly all the hop growers commenced picking. The hops promise to be a fine quality and the yield per acre will be large.

BOYS.—Early Sunday morning Sept 6, to the wife of A. B. Widdows a daughter. Mother and child doing well.

There is nothing that will arouse the ire of a young man or woman so quick as to have inferior laundry work put off on them. There can be no better work than is done at the Troy. Leave your orders at Farnsworth's barber shop.

MAZAMAS' OUTING.

We finally arrived at Crater Lake on the morning of the sixth day after leaving Ashland and we all marched to the top together, greeting the campers already there with the Mazama yell, and hastened to the edge of the crater to get our first view of this wonderful sheet of water. We spent all the forenoon drinking in the beauty of the scene that was before us. The color of the water is an exquisite, deep indigo blue, one of the four lakes in the world having that color, two of the most noted being Lake Tahoe in Nevada and Lake Geneva in Switzerland. Around the edge is a border of bright green where the water is shallow, but as the banks are very steep and the lake is hundreds of feet deep only a rod or two from the shore, the green strip is very narrow. At first the water did not seem very far below us but a couple of men down there attracted our attention by shouting and after locating them with difficulty, we were quite surprised to see how extremely small and ant-like in size they seemed to be. We then began to realize how far it was and the grandeur and sublimity of the scene gradually came over us. It was about a thousand feet down to the water from where we were and in several places the edge of the rim is 2,000 feet above the lake. The slides are very precipitous and at times almost perpendicular and a rock dropped over the edge will bound from point to point and usually not stop until several feet beneath the surface of the water, taking an avalanche of other rocks and loose material along.

There being no evidence of an explosion, the conclusion of the U. S. Geological Survey that the mountain must have fallen in and that it must have been at least as high as Mt. Shasta. The latter is shown by the fact that the highest points around the rim are all old lava streams that ran down the gulches and filled them to overflowing. The interesting points being composed of looser material have gradually decomposed and been washed away, leaving depressions where the ridges were originally.

Death of Mrs. Randall.

The many friends of Tom P. Randall, who has resided during his life time in Oregon City were pained to hear of the death of Mrs. Randall, which occurred at Albina last Saturday. Mrs. Randall had been in very poor health for several months, and the best available medical skill failed to prolong her life. The numerous friends of Mr. Randall tender their condolence in his sad bereavement. The following obituary notice was handed in by a friend for publication:

Died, Saturday September 11, 1896, Violet Matthieu, wife of Tom P. Randall of Oregon City and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Matthieu of Batteville. The remains were taken to the old home for interment, the funeral taking place from the residence of the parents of the deceased at 11 a. m., Rev. M. L. Rugg officiating, and a quartet from the Baptist church of Oregon City sang the favorite songs of the deceased. The service throughout were most impressive and touching and as the clergyman dwelt upon the uncertainty of human hopes and life the truth was fully realized, for the silent form within the snowy casket a few short months before stood in the same spot, a happy bride. The sound of mirth now hushed, today we hear a dirge. Loving hearts and hands did all they could to soothe and comfort the bereaved ones. Many floral emblems and flowers were brought as a last tribute of affection to one loved and esteemed.

Relatives and friends from Oregon City and Portland and with those of Batteville followed the remains to their last resting place, making one of the largest funeral corteges ever taking place at Batteville.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. G. A. Donaldson died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wyland at Needy, of heart disease, Monday, August 31, 1896, aged 74 years, 5 months and 18 days.

Mrs. Donaldson was born in Indiana, March 13, 1822; was married to Mr. Donaldson in 1847 and came to Oregon in 1852. She had been a widow for 23 years, her husband dying in October 1873. She was the mother of eight children, three of whom are still living. Mrs. Donaldson was converted at the age of 13 and united with the Methodist church of which she has ever been a consistent member. She peacefully passed away to that home to which she longed to go. She had been an invalid for years and often expressed her wish to be with Christ at rest, where sin, sickness and sorrow never came. The funeral service was held in the Congregational church at Needy. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."
