Malarial produces Weakness, General debility Biliousness, loss of appetite, indigestion and constipation. Grove's Tasteless Chill tonic removes the cause which produces these troubles. Try it and you will be delighted. 50 cents. To get the genuine ask for Grove's. For sale by C. G. Huntley.

T. P. Randall, Burt Greenman and Peter Wells returned last Saturday from a trip to the headwaters of the Washougal in Clarke county, Washington, where they went to examine the mines recently discovered on that stream. They think the indications very good, the rock showing strong traces of gold. They each took up a claim and will go back next spring and develop them.

The chronic grumbler still lives, but there are less cases of chronic indigestion and Dyspepsia than formerly. The fact is so many people in the past have taken Simmons Liver Regulator that they are now cured of these ills. And a great multitude are now taking Simmons Liver Regulator for the same troubles and they'll soon be cured. "It is the best medicine."—Mrs. E. Raine, Baltimore, Md.

George A. Harding, the druggist, will tell you that no one is better qualified to judge of the merits of an article than the dealer, because he bases his opinion on the experience of all who use it. For this reason he wishes us to publish the remarks of other dealers about an article which he handles. Messrs. C. F. Moore & Co. Newberg, Oregon say: "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than all others put together, and it always gives good satisfaction." Mr. J. F. Allen, Fox, Oregon, says: "I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have handled." Mr. W. H. Hitchcock, Columbus, Wash., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy sells well and is highly praised by all who use it."

Oregon City is at last to have an orchestra able to play a high grade of music and to render it in a manner that will not arouse the ire of persons who appreciate good music. The new organization is to be known as the Willamette orchestra and the parts so far assigned are H. G. Hamilton, director and 1st violin, Bert Nash clarionette and M. W. Randall, cornet. The piano accompanist has not been chosen yet, Mr. Hamilton desiring to take time and secure a first-class player, either lady or gentleman who can handle music from second to fifth grade, and will become a permanent member. Anyone desiring this position can meet Mr. Hamilton at his residence opposite Huntley's drug store, the players so far selected are among the best musicians in Oregon City and are perfect gentlemen in every respect and will be the nucleus for an orchestra that Oregon City can be proud of.

PERSONAL NOTES.

J. T. Rue, postmaster at Willamette Falls, was in the city Tuesday.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES

All communications intended for this column should be addressed to Mrs. H. S. Gibson, Oregon City, Oregon.

The regular monthly meeting of the Clackamas County Teachers' Association was held at Needy, October 31, 1896, and was called to order by President H. G. Starkweather. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Fannie G. Porter.

The programme was opened by a song from the Needy school. J. A. Jennings spoke on "The Use and Abuse of Text Books." He was followed by H. S. Gibson. Miss Thema McDonald recited a comic selection. Jennie C. Rowen spoke on "Common Fractions;" the discussion was continued by T. J. Gary and Mrs. Wells. Ex-Supt H. S. Gibson led a discussion on "What changes, if any, should be made in our school laws?" The discussion was continued by J. A. Jennings, Annie H. Wells, T. J. Gary and H. G. Starkweather.

Called to order at 1:30 p. m. "Reading in the Lower Grades" was the subject of an excellent paper prepared by Mrs. Helen Ross Ken, of the Portland schools. By request of the Association Mrs. Ken's paper will be published in the ENTERPRISE later. "History" was the subject assigned T. J. Gary, who spoke at length upon the topic; he was followed by A. J. Yoder.

It was decided to hold the next Association meeting at Concord, and T. J. Gary, Shirley Buck and Mrs. A. H. Wells were asked to prepare a suitable program. Words of encouragement were spoken by B. F. Smith.

A vote of thanks was tendered the people of Needy for the entertainment received. After singing "America" the Association adjourned to meet at Concord school house the last Saturday in November.

Prof. Gray, principal of the Parkplace school, in order that the members of the class in civil government in his school may more fully understand the science of government as applied to our national, state, county and municipal affairs, gives out to them each month a subject upon which they are to write an essay. The subjoined article was awarded the prize at the recent examination as being the clearest and best exposition of the manner in which a president of the United States is chosen:

THE ELECTION OF THE PRESIDENT.
There is usual much excitement attending a Presidential campaign, political speeches and processions being the order of the day.
The President is elected by the indirect vote of the people; the first step in his nomination is the holding of primaries in the different precincts of each county, the voters who assemble at these primaries choose delegates to attend the county conventions; these, in turn, select delegates to attend the state conventions, held in the larger cities of the states.

The state convention nominates Presidential electors, as many as there are members in the two houses of Congress from that state, and choose delegates to the National convention, which is held in some large city in the Central or Eastern states, the National conventions this year being held in St. Louis, Pittsburg, Indianapolis and Chicago.

The National convention meets, the chairman of the National committee calling the convention to order, the first thing is to elect a temporary chairman, the National committee nominates a candidate who is usually elected, sometimes, however, another candidate is nominated, but very rarely elected.

The temporary chairman appoints several committees, the principal ones being those on credentials and on platform, the committee on platform appointing a sub-committee who prepares the platform and submits it to the full committee.

After the committee on credentials has ascertained who are entitled to seats, the convention elects a permanent chairman and proceeds with the business on hand. After the platform is adopted they nominate their candidate for President; great enthusiasm sometime prevails, the applause—when a favorite candidate is nominated—sometimes lasting for half an hour. Before the convention adjourns a Vice-President is nominated, and a National committee appointed, to serve the following four years, or till the next National convention. This committee consists of one member from each state.

During the time from the nomination to the election, which takes place on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, the candidates make speeches and write campaign documents. The National committee of each party sends out speakers who agitate the political questions and urge you to vote for their candidate. On election day the voters assemble at the polling place in the different precincts and vote for Presidential electors. On the second Monday in January the electors assemble at the state capitol and cast their votes for President. Three duplicate messages are prepared by the electors, announcing the result of this ballot; two of these lists are sent to the president of the senate, one by mail and the other by one of their number, while the third list is filed with the judge of the United States district court of the district in which the electors meet. On the second Wednesday in February, the two houses in congress meet, the president of the senate opens the messages and announces the vote of each state; the votes are counted and if either candidate has a majority of all the electors, he is declared elected President; but if no candidate has a majority of all the votes cast, the case is referred to the house of representatives, which selects not more than three of the candidates who have the largest number of votes and choose, by ballot, the President; each state has one vote, cast as a majority of the members present from that state may direct; a majority of all the states is necessary to elect. But if the house of representatives fails to elect a President before the fourth day of March, next following, the Vice-President becomes President. Upon the election of the President, he is officially notified by the president of the senate. On the fourth of March following, the President has his inauguration and takes the oath of office, administered by the chief justice of the supreme court, makes a speech outlining the policy he intends to follow in his administration and enters upon his duties as President.

The Ins and Outs of It.

If you get best wear out of a coat, best work must have gone into it. You can't get good bread out of poor flour.
Moral: You can't get the best out of anything, unless the best is in it; and the best has to be put in before it can be taken out. Now, we have a rule to test those sarsaparillas with a big "best" on the bottle. "Tell us what's put in you and we'll decide for ourselves about the best." That's fair. But these modest sarsaparillas say: "Oh! we can't tell. It's a secret. Have faith in the label!... Stop! There's one exception; one sarsaparilla that has no secret to hide. It's Ayer's. If you want to know what goes into Ayer's Sarsaparilla, ask your doctor to write for the formula. Then you can satisfy yourself that you get the best of the sarsaparilla argument when you get Ayer's."
