FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1897.

THE HESPERIANS.—The "Westerners" held one of their best meetings last Friday evening. Fred Meindle was elected president pro tem. The meeting was opened with a song by the girls' chorus. Miss Mabel Woods read in an impressive manner a well selected article. Misses Echo Samson and Jeanette Read sang an inspiring ballad which was much appreciated. Miss Maud Winslow's original declamation was the main feature of the evening and was most beautifully delivered. At times she would carry her listeners upon the heights of rhetorical grandeur and sublimity then would sway them by her impressive delivery in the realms of thought and meditation. The debate was: Resolved "that more knowledge is derived from reading than from traveling. The affirmative was sustained by Fred Meindle and Chas. Babcock while the triumphant negative was represented by Carl Joehne, Edgar Meresse and Arthur Holden. The speakers handled the subject with ease and precision and had the constant attention of the gathering throughout the debate. The meeting adjourned after having listened to a well delivered patriotic recitation by Miss Maud Noolie. The next meeting will be held Friday evening.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR THE ASSEMBLY.—The McLoughlin circle enjoyed a red letter night at Mr. C. H. Dye's Monday evening, the occasion being the visit of State Secretary J. R. Greenfield of Portland. At the close of the astronomical discussion, felicitous addresses were made by Mr. Greenfield, Col. Miller, E. E. Charman, A. S. Dresser, C. H. Dye, Professor Holmes and others. Mr. C. H. Canfield was called for but refused to be bribed into making a speech by the promise of all the Chautauquians that they would vote for him for school director. Mr. Greenfield says there will be a large class to graduate at Gladstone this summer representing all parts of the state. Very general interest was expressed in the assembly which promises this year to surpass all its predecessors in excellence and variety of talent.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. J. H. Miller, dentist, treats all diseases of the oral cavity such as pericoronitis, periostitis, gingivitis, necrosis of the maxillary bones, pyorrhea, alveolaris and fibrous tumors of the gums. Artistic gold and porcelain crowns and fine plate work, first-class workmanship. Examinations free. Terms reasonable. Office 7th street.

These boys are not only liable to be crippled or killed, but should they continue the practice, subject themselves to arrest and their parents to pay a fine.

MEETING OF THE TEACHERS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Clackamas County Teacher's Association was held at Willamette Falls school house, Saturday, February 27, 1897.

Called to order at the usual hour by the president, H. G. Starkweather. The minutes of the previous meeting, as prepared by the Secretary, Fannie G. Porter, were read and approved.

The program was opened by the association singing "America"

Prof. S. W. Holmes spoke on "Examinations and Reviews" in school work. "We have two extremes in ideas concerning examinations—those who believe in judging of a pupil's fitness for promotion, entirely by formal examination and those who believe in judging by the work done day by day. The review should begin on the second day of school. Teachers generally agree pretty well, on the theory of examinations, but differ greatly in practice. It is always difficult to live up to what we preach. The teacher should know without formal questioning whether a pupil should be promoted. He should know just in what portion of the work the pupil is weakest and endeavor to give strength therein, by reviews."

Professor C. W. Durrette also spoke on this subject. He condemned the practice of studying or "examining" for examinations. He believed that this could be overcome by not giving notice of examination beforehand. "If pupils were ignorant of the time for examinations until the hour of beginning, the written tests might prove a true statement of knowledge."

Rev. Rogg followed in discussion. He thought examinations were getting to be a bad. He doubted if they were of real benefit. He believed the incidental review was the only one of practical benefit to either teacher or pupil.

Superintendent Armstrong, of Multnomah county, spoke on "Interest." "There is no enterprise of any magnitude but has to do with interest in some form and teachers are generally concerned about impressing on the minds of pupils the true principle of computing interest, that they may be qualified to do work which will in all probability be required of them in adult life. It is not to be presumed that all or many people agree in their ideas on any subject. I believe in reviews—all them examinations or any other name—I believe in them, and I find it impossible to procure indelible impressions without them. He condemned a practice of condemning text books. He would not go out of his way to put stumbling blocks in his own way. The practice of picking flaws in text books is unfortunately quite common among teachers, especially young teachers. There are very few teachers who know enough to get along without text books. What is 'Interest?' It is an equivalent for the use of money. If you hire a horse and buggy from a livery stable, you pay so much each for the use thereof. You must return the property in as good good condition as it was when you hired it, and the liability is for interest. If you go to a banker and hire money for a given time you must return the money at the stated time and a certain amount of money for the hire, or the interest, on that money. At first the teacher should select problems that are easy to understand—that will come out even—don't frighten them in advance. If pupils fail to understand interest, it is generally the fault of the teacher. Don't begin to talk about short methods at an early stage of the proceedings that should come later on." He illustrated several problems in interest, recommending the cancellation method. If pupils are allowed to make mistakes because they have not been warned of difficulties, the teacher, not the pupil, is to blame. Most things in mathematics may be taught if the teacher can manage himself. If he can't do that, then he has mistaken his calling. Questions were asked by T. J. Gary, E. M. Ward and M. L. Rugg.

"Morals and Manner" was the subject of an excellently written paper by Miss Addie Clark. She spoke of the responsibilities resting on the teacher, of the good work which ought to and may be done in the school-room, and of the certainty that the most conscientious efforts of the teacher may meet with poor success if the work is not supplemented at home. She urged earnest, whole-hearted work. "Let us not be weary in well-doing."

Parkplace was chosen as the next place of meeting, to be held the last Saturday in March, and Prof. Gray, Miss Bracken and W. W. Austin were asked to prepare a suitable program for the occasion. The association then adjourned to the upper story, where a delicious luncheon, tastefully spread on three long tables, awaited discussion.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Called to order at 2 p. m. by Supt. Starkweather.

The association sang "Mt. Vernon Bells"

The name of Helen C. New was proposed for membership and duly elected. Col. L. H. Hawkins, of Portland, and Supt. A. P. Armstrong were elected to honorary membership in the association. Little Bonetta Ralston recited "The Nineteenth Century Teacher."

"The Superintendent's Notebook" was the subject of an address by Supt. Armstrong. The superintendent is required by law to visit the different schools and as a general rule he visits the teacher in a friendly spirit and not with a desire to find fault. The utmost confidence should prevail between the superintendent and the teacher. If he finds a teacher who cannot be endorsed at all, he should ascertain the length of the term for which that teacher is employed and when that time expires he should recommend that another teacher be hired. Schools are maintained, not to give employment to a deserving person, but for the benefit of the school children. The children's best interest should be considered first of all. The Superintendent's talk was listened to with close attention by all present.

Several cute recitations by very small pupils of the school were a pleasing feature of the day's entertainment.

Miss Harriette Dotson read a very instructive paper on "History and Literature." Her ideas were good and her words carefully chosen.

Prof. C. W. Durrette spoke on "The Teacher's Preparation." "There are certain attributes of hand, of heart, of brain, which a person must possess in order to ever become a successful teacher. If the teacher possesses personal magnetism in a marked degree is eminently fitted for the work of a teacher, if prepared in other lines. The teacher who does not honestly care for the welfare of his pupils cannot be a really successful teacher. A broad and thorough cultivation of the mind is very essential to successful teaching. A teacher who does not read and keep informed of what the world is doing, should not be allowed to receive a certificate, even when passing a creditable examination. A dwarf may find his field of observation vastly widened when he gazes on the world from the shoulders of a giant. We may gaze on the great field of culture and the best in educational development from the shoulders of such intellectual giants as Page, and White, and Baldwin and Gregory."

The following resolution was offered by Mrs. H. S. Gibson and unanimously adopted: "On behalf of the Teacher's Association of Clackamas county, I desire to offer a resolution of thanks to the people of Willamette Falls for the kind treatment and lavish hospitality shown us to-day. A special vote of thanks is due to Superintendent Armstrong for the favor of his presence here, and the instructive talks to which we have listened; to Secretary Moody for his invitation to visit the Capen shoe factory; and to Col. Hankins for his offer to pilot the teachers through the electric station and paper mills." A vote of thanks was extended to Prof. Strange and Miss Scott. On motion, the association adjourned to meet at Parkplace the last Saturday in March.

The True Remedy.

W. M. Repine, editor Eskilwa, Ill., "Chief" says, "We won't deep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for coughs, colds, whooping cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Charman & Co's drug store.

Yet relief is ready to the hand of almost any one who will use systematically the remedy that has permanently cured thousands.
