and causes us to remember those days when we marched together, fought together, triumphed together, slept together under the same blanket and drank from the same canteen; charity prompts us to the noblest efforts for the destitute wards of our Grand Army and causes us to gather around our altars and before high Heaven swear that no worthy comrade living within the jurisdiction of a post should suffer want or be buried in the potter's field; loyalty that knows no North, no South, no East, no West, but one country, one language, one flag.

In speaking of the feelings entertained by ex-Union soldiers and sailors toward their late enemies in the great Civil war, Capt. Ormsby said: "We who fought on the side of the Union believed then and believe now that we were right and eternally right, and that they who fought to destroy the Union were wrong, eternally wrong. For the leaders in the rebellion, those who brought all the sorrow and suffering upon the nation, those who, educated at its expense and who had taken a solemn oath to support its constitution and defend its flag and then basely deserted it and raised the standard of rebellion against it, we shall never seek to palliate their offense or condone their crime; but for the rank and file of the rebel army we have a very different feeling. We know how easily they were deceived and led astray by designing traitors, and we know how well they fought. We met them on many a bloody field. We saw their serried columns torn by shot and shell and swept by flames of musketry; we saw them go down to death by scores and hundreds only to close up their depleted ranks and gathering around their tattered banners over the bodies of their fallen comrades, rush on to victory. We saw them at Gettysburg, after one of the grandest charges recorded in modern warfare, flee away in tattered rags and bare and bleeding feet. We honor their valor, their heroism, their constancy, though in a bad cause."

Mr. Ormsby expressed the fear that the lost cause was still cherished in the hearts of many people in the South today and that there was a tendency to magnify and teach the children that it was a righteous cause and may yet prevail. Spoke of the pomp and military pageant which attended the removal of the remains of Jeff Davis three years ago, how the rebel flags were brought out and how the Southern orators extolled the virtues of their dead leader. The sight of these things caused our hearts to be stirred within us, not by malice and resentment but by pity and regret. He thought the placing of the old flag over every school house and the giving of the flag salute by school children of the nation, North and South, would instill into their hearts a love of our common country and love for the flag that no power could efface. Referred in glowing terms to the fact that no class of our citizens were more jealous of the honor and integrity of this country than the boys who lately wore the blue; how during the great strikes, and even today when the national honor is at stake in the Samoan and Hawaiian islands and in Nicaragua the Grand Army says to the president of the United States that to maintain the rights of the nation and to defend its honor, every veteran and son of a veteran is at your disposal; that the old soldiers had said to Coxie's army when it started on its march to Washington: "Keep those in the middle of the road and commit no overt act lest there be trouble."

In closing the captain said: "Comrades of the Grand Army, this day is peculiarly our own. It was designated as a day on which to honor our dead by the immortal Logan, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., in words both pathetic and sublime, which will live while time shall last and memory shall endure. And as each recurring year has brought around Memorial day, more and more have the patriotic citizens of this land united with us in honoring the memory of our fallen comrades, until today millions have come together and with bowed and reverent heads, stand around the hallowed graves where sleep the nation's honored dead. Silvered age, joyous youth and trusting childhood unite this day with us in garlanding their passionless wounds with the brightest and choicest flowers of spring. In thus recalling to our minds the sacred cause for which they suffered, may we receive an inspiration of regard for our common country, love for its flag, faith in its justice and respect for its laws."

The oration was followed by reading the roll of honor by Adjutant Williams and the sounding of taps by Bugler August Zimmerman. The roll of honor is composed of the following members of Meade Post:

- F. O. McCown, captain Company E, 1st Oregon infantry.
A. L. Sawyer, Company K, 38th Iowa infantry.
Thomas Means, Company F, 14th Kansas cavalry.
J. R. Blount, Company G, 107th Illinois infantry.
Charles Warren, Company E, 1st Oregon cavalry.
C. C. M. Newton, —Massachusetts infantry.

- Lyman Seaman, Company E, 1st Oregon infantry.
Henry Webb, Company G, 23d Missouri infantry.
Captain Clark, New York volunteers.
Richard Williams, Company K, 22d Wisconsin infantry.
A. F. Surfas, Company I, 2d Iowa cavalry.
Wm. Coad —Wisconsin infantry.
Wm. Johnson —
J. O. Wetherell, 1st Minnesota heavy artillery.
O. Holmes, Company C, 18th U. S.
John Higgins, Company E, 40th Wisconsin infantry.
C. J. Imel, Company G, 82d Indiana infantry.
A. J. Washburn, Company I, New York infantry.
L. M. Andrews, surgeon 47th Illinois infantry.
A. S. Lawton —110th New York infantry.
M. T. Roots, Company I, New York infantry.

The salute over the graves of the heroes was then fired by "F" company when the members of the post deposited flowers in memory of the comrades of their respective regiments who had given up their lives for the Union on the bloody fields of battle during the memorable struggle from '61 to '65, after which the procession re-formed and returned to the city.

GAVE LESSONS IN PATRIOTISM.

A Delegation of Grand Army Men and Ladies of the Relief Corps Visit the Schools.

The greater part of last Friday was spent by the members of Meade Post, No. 2, G. A. R. and Meade Relief Corps, No. 18, in visiting the various schools of Oregon City and in assisting in carrying out the exercises of a patriotic nature that had been arranged by the teachers and pupils of the schools.

The Parkplace-Gladstone school was visited during the forenoon and a splendid program of patriotic songs and recitations was carried out. An interesting feature to the visitors were a series of essays on Decoration day which had been prepared the day previous by the pupils in the 10th grade as a part of their work in the rhetoric class and were written without previous notice. The papers showed that the young people had a thorough knowledge of the noble purpose to which the day is dedicated. Addresses were made by Capt. Apperson, Judge Galloway, C. H. Dauchy and Charles Meserve. The exercises were closed by a thoughtful address by the principal of the school, Prof. J. W. Gray, after which the school sang "America" as the closing piece.

At 1 o'clock the members of the post and corps assembled in their hall and carrying their banner marched in a body first to St. John's school, where a very pretty and patriotic program was carried out by the pupils of the school. Addresses were made on behalf of the Grand Army by Comrade Johnson and Commander Moore, after which Father Hillebrand thanked the visitors for their presence and gave a brief address on the duties that parents and teachers and especially of the G. A. R. in teaching the lesson of patriotism to the young. The school room was handsomely decorated with flags, and bunting and pictures of Washington, Lincoln and Grant were hanging over the platform surrounded by beautiful wreaths.

The delegation then proceeded to the Barclay school where they were received by the principal, Prof. Holmes and the teachers and pupils who were gathered in the assembly room where the exercises were held. Owing to the limited time in which the visitors could be present the regular program was carried out by the pupils, some well rendered songs constituting their part of the exercises. Capt. Apperson and Commander Moore made addresses followed by Mrs. S. M. McCown, state president of the Relief Corps, who gave a brief talk to the children. Prof. Holmes then thanked the members of the post and corps for their presence in his school after which the scholars sang a closing song with such spirit as to greatly please the visitors. Flags and bunting, together with pictures of America's greatest statesmen and soldiers and beautiful flowers gave a most pleasing appearance to the various rooms of this school.

The Eastham school was then visited and again owing to the limited time a splendid program which the pupils had prepared had to be dispensed with. The Grand Army people were received in the assembly hall where the pupils and teachers were soon assembled, the perfect marching of the children as they filed in from their rooms and took their positions was greatly admired by the old soldiers. After an opening song by the school, addresses were given by Mrs. McCown, C. H. Dauchy, Capt. Apperson and Charles Meserve after which Prof. McAdam tendered the thanks of the school to the visitors, followed by a patriotic song that was rendered with a will by the little folks.

AT MT. PLEASANT.

The exercises at the Mt. Pleasant school last Friday afternoon, consisted of patriotic recitations and songs and a salute to the flag. Rev. A. J. Montgomery on behalf of the G. A. R., addressed the school. His address was greatly enjoyed by all present. Several members of the G. A. R., together with all of the school board and about thirty other persons were present at the exercises.

The Marketing Point OF CLACKAMAS COUNTY The factory towns of the East are noted for affording the best market to the neighboring farmers and gardeners in proportion to the population of any of the towns in that section. The reason for this is that the people of these towns have a fixed income upon which they can always depend, and, as a consequence, they are liberal buyers, paying cash for all their purchases.

As the Great Manufacturing Center of the Pacific Coast. OREGON CITY.. Is Coming to be One of the Best Marketing Towns in the State

This is proven every day by the number of farmers, who are to be seen on its streets selling their produce, who, until just the last few years, sought the markets of other towns. The system of macadamized roads that is being built into all parts of Clackamas county, will enable all the people of this county to share in the profitable market that Oregon City affords. If, as it is sure to do, the demands of Oregon City increase in the next five years as it has in the past five years, this city will rank next to Portland as a market place for
