SERVANTS IN JAPAN.

They Render Excellent Service if They Are Treated With Consideration

Jupaness servants are axcellent if you them with discretion and treat them with the established consideration of the country. There is a universal social compact in Japan to make life pleasant by politeness. Everybody is more or less well bred and hates the man or woman who is yakamashunoisy, uncivil or exigent.

People who lose their temper are always in a herry, bang doors, swear and swagger, find themselves out of place in a land where the lowest cooly learns and practices an ancient courtesy from the time when he wabbles about as a baby upon his mother's back. Therefore to be treated well in Japan-as perhaps, indeed, elsewhere-you must treat every-I body, including your domestics, well, and then you will enjoy the most pleasant and willing service.

Your cook will doubtless cheat you a little, your jinrikisha man will now and then take too much sake, the musmu and the boy's wife will gallop all over the place about everything you do, and the gardener and the coachman will fight cocks in the back yard when your back is turned, but if conscious of your own you can forgive the little, sins of others. You can hardly fail to become closely attached to the quiet, soft voiced, pleasant people, who as soon as they have learned your ways will take real pleasure in making life agreeable to you.

A present now and then of a kimono to the maids, of toys and sweetmeats to the children, a day's holiday now and then granted to the theater or the wrestling match are richly rewarded by such bright faces and unmistakable warmth of welcome on arriving and of good speed on going as repay you tenfold. Respectful as Japanese servants areand they never speak except on their knees and faces-they like to be taken into the family conversation and to sit sometimes in friendly abandon with the master and mistress, admiring dresses, pictures or western novelties and listening sometimes to the samisen and koto as children of the household. - Edwin Arnold in Scribner's.

Their Waterloo.

The grocery clerks met the barbers on the bowling alley. Toesday night and went down before them like June bugs before a band of turkeys. Ben Munson was the mascot for the greeers and Secore for the barbers. The grocers were very sanguine of victory and were busy during the day inviting their friends to come out and see them lay it over the shavers. Oregon Road Club Mason went to the bat first for the grocers and never touched a pin, but said if he had only had a cabbage head the result would have been different. F. A. Sleight also wants to try it over and use a bale of hav, while Billy Rhoades thinks a pumpkin would answer bis purpose better. Barber Johnson got so badly excited and stattered so hard he couldn't keep a ball on the alley and but for the timely service of Mayor Mc-Clure the game would have been lost. Surely the words of the Psalmist are applicable to the case when he said: What is a groceryman that thou considerest him? In the morning he struteth about in his pride, seeking whom he may devour; in the evening he meeteth the barber and is wiped off the atley. Thou searchest for him and be cannot be

Bir Henry Irving's Magnanimity.

The changes of fortune place people sometimes in peculiar and embarrassing positions. A good story is told of Sir Henry Irving, the famous actor. When a young man, earning his laurels and comparatively unknown, Shakespeare's play "Much Ado About Nothing" was about to be presented to the public by a certain manager of prominence. Irving had a part assigned to him, which he diligently studied. Letter perfect in his lines, he felt assured of ultimate success, but unfortunately the manager disliked his acting of it and took occasion to censure him before the company. much to his mortification. Furthermore, the manager took the part away and gave him another, less prominent, but more difficult.

Years went by, and Irving steadily climbed to a fame that brought him knighthood, while the critical manager gradually lost ground. One day, shortly after Irving announced bis intention of producing "Much Ado About Nothing," the old manager presented himself and asked that a part be assigned to him. Irving granted the request and gave him the very part he had forced him to play years before. During rehearsal Irving narrowly watched the manager's acting and at the conclusion went up to him and shook his hand after gravely complimenting him upon his rendering of the part. Then he promoted him to the part from which he had been reduced. "I never knew what 'coals of fire' meant till then," was the remark which the old actor and manager was overheard to make when Irving retired. -Harper's Round Table.

The Awful Carib Fish.

A traveler in Venezuela gives an interesting description of the fish of the Orinoco country. He says the party several times came in contact with the carib fish, which are the most ferocious inhabitants of the water known. The fish are not over 14 inches long, but they travel in schools. Their teeth are three cornered. Any living object which attracts their attention is attacked with fury. Mr. Thompson tells of an Indian woman who entered the water to fill a bucket. She was attacked by the fish and reached shore only to die in 15 minutes. The flesh was literally torn from her body. Mr. Dart, who was with Mr. Thompson, caught one of the fish and pulled it upon the bank. He held the carib under his foot while he pointed at the peculiar teeth with his finger. With a quick movement the carib flopped out from under Mr. Dart's foot and seized him by the finger, cutting that member to the bone. The fish frequently have been known to bite ordinary fishhooks in two. Another fish which the party often came across was the merocoto, the fiavor of which is like Lake Superior whitefish, only more delicate. The morecete is provided with molar teeth and subsists on vegetable matter, which it thoroughly masticates before swallowing. Another peculiar creature found was the morecoy, a species of land turtle, which at night utters a cry of wonderful sweetness, plaintive and clear .-
