IN MEMORY OF WHITMAN

Sermon by Rev. A. J. Montgomery Last Sunday.

The services at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning were of unusual interest and were attended by an audience that filled the comfortable auditorium of that church. The sermon was in memory of the martyred Dr. Marcus Whitman and his wife and the part of the pastor, Rev. A. J. Montgomery. The following is a brief synopsis of his discourse :

1832, when there arrived in the city of St. Louis four flat-head Indians from hit me all over." He was hadly bruised the Columbia river. They came to see Gen. Wm. Clarke, who, associated with the unfortunate Lewis, was sent by President Jefferson on the well-known exploring expedition. They asked Gen. Clarke for a copy of the "white man's cian found his wounds were not dangerbook of heaven." Somehow he totally uos. The passengers in the car received failed to comprehend the sincerity of a severe shock, but none of them were their request, and allowed them to depart without giving them a copy of the Bible. A clerk in his office related the incident to Geo. Catlin, the celebrated Indian artist, who gave it to the world through the pages of a religious paper in Pittsburg. The Christianity of our nation was aroused as it never has been before. In 1834, the Methodists sent out a party of missionaries, in which the importer of inen goods, whereby a were the Revs. Daniel and Jason Lee, which ultimately settled in the Williamette valley. Owing to a delay that was accidental, the American board did not send out its missionaries, until the year following. The Rev.
