THEY COINED WORDS.

A Young Lady's Interesting Dream of Invention and Wealth.

"Good merning," she said. "You look quite griggish." "Griggish?" he interrogated. "What kind of a look is that? I-is it-is it anything alarming?'

"Oh, no, silly! Don't you know what griggish means? I manufactured it ages sgo out of grig, a grasshopper-something blithe and sprightly, you know. That reminds me, I had the most interesting dream the other night. I dreamed we kept a word store.' "A word store?"

"Yes, we coined words and sold them to the inventors of foods and of typewriters, and"-

How were they sold, by the yard or by the dozen?" he interrupte 'Neither way. We sold each word according to the amount of brains expended in inventing it, except the words pertaining to bicycles—they came high, because they were so fashionable. Oh, it was quite a large store, all divided up into departments. There was the bicycle department, the cigar department, the electrical department, the patent medicine department-in fact, all lines were represented in which inventions might be made needing names. You see, we sold a name for so much. and then if the invention proved successful we shared in the profits." Well," said the man, "I hope you showed more taste in the matter than the person who invented such words as cupograph, 'mimeograph, 'comptomeand 'operaphone'-they give one literary indigestion."

"Oh, yes," she replied, "our coinage was of a much higher order. Of course we had words ending in graph and phone and cycle, but they were exceedingly cheap, and inventors were rather ashamed to be seen buying them. Words like 'pegamoid' came high. I wish I could remember all the lovely names we coined," she went on. "The only one I can think of is 'hamwich,' a substitute for ham sandwich. Don't you think that's choice? I dreamed that we 13 Astor Plac sold it to a restaurant man and he made a mint of money out of it."-Chicago Tribune.

WARFARE OF CLASSES.

Modern Football Mere Play to Yale's Old Freshman-Sophomore Struggle.

The organization and development of intercollegiate athletics now absorb much of the energy that used to be given to the furious internecine warfare of classes. From time immemorial there were mighty games of football on the their formal challenge on the bulletin of lyceum, and the supercilious acceptance of the sophomores named the day for the struggle. "Come," cried the class of '60,

And like sacrifices in their trim To the fire eyed maid of smoky war, All hot and bleeding will we offer you. And the Tyrtæus of '58 cheered his mates with the noble lines:

Let them come on, the baseborn crew! Each soil stained churl—alack! What gain they but a splitten skull. A sod for their base back!

On the bloody day appointed both sides massed in heavy column with Na- dollars a year in advance, or less than poleonic tactcis, while the New Haven fathers surrounded the field. When the round leather ball was kicked, 200 men clashed together in frantic, shoving, dusty, roaring chaos, the one side striving to kick the ball to the Chapel street fence, the other to force it to the steps of the statehouse. Swift runners hung upon the outskirts to seize the ball chance directed to their feet, and hurry it amid full gazing applause to the goal. But it was in the middle press where deeds were uncrowned, where shirts became streamers and rib squeezed rib until they cracked, that the heroes of war and the college bully were to be found. From this Titanic struggle the degenerates of today have evolved the emasculated game which they call football, a wretched sort of parlor pastime! -Judge Henry E. Howland in Scrib-

Turkish Traffic In Slaves.

Slave dealing in Constantinople, as we know, always exists, and the wife of a pasha is not above the wretched business. Richard Davey, in his book, "The Sultan and His Subjects," says:

"A good deal of Turkish traffic in slaves is conducted in the following manner on very well conceived commercial principles: The wife of a pasha, as a matter of speculation, purchases two or three little girls for a trifle, either from a slave dealer or some poor woman, generally a Christian, possibly a Bulgarian refugee who is unable to bring up her own children. The lady educates each child, teaches it those accomplishments which are indispensable to harem life, such as singing, dancing and playing on musical instruments. washing, starching, ironing, embroidery and even a little cookery. To this may be added a smattering of some foreign language and a very elementary knowledge of Turkish caligraphy. When the child is grown up, if she is handsome the lady turns ber to account and liberally repays herself for her Main Street Bakery trouble by selling her at a high figure to some pasha of her acquaintance through the medium of one of the well known old women whose business it is to carry out transactions of that sort.

In Judge Schuebel's Court.

State of Oreson vs. Edmond Kinney. Complaint filed by Walter Wyland charging defendant with assault with a dangerous weapon. This case came on to be heard Wednesday and after the examination of witnesses the court took the same under advisement until yesterday morning when the defendant was discharged Wyland, it seems has for a long time been the object of suspicion in much stealing that has been going on inthe vicinity of Macksburg. A few days ago he was accused of having committed an assualt on John Barth. These and other suspicions caused a posse of several persons to visit the house where Wyland was stopping a few nights ago and requested that he leave the county within 24 hours. Kinney being spokesman for the crowd and having with him a shotgun, was arrested on the charge above stated. In the meantime Wyland was arrested on two complaints, one for assault on John Barth and the other for stealing goods from J. W. Smith. In the larceny case Wyland was placed under $100 bail with Cornelius Bair and L. Riggs as sureties. The case for assault will probably come up next Monday and the larceny case on Tuesday. In the meantime Constable Mo-Cown is out in the country in quest of the other parties to the transaction.
