TOSSED BY THE HURRICANE.

The Shorn "Colonel" and the Wrecked "Captain" Dine Together.

estern town before a financial hurricane hit it met for the first time in years in a Sixth avenue eating house the other day. In the days of their prosperity one of them was a political lever nd was called colonel. He had been on a governor's staff. The other in some ay had acquired the title of captain. oth had front seats in every event of e town in which they had lived. The overnor's ornament is now a plain ookkeeper in Broad street. The other man is a dry goods clerk.

After greetings, explanations and a w mournful references to perished deghts, they had a combination meal, and f you don't know what that is you have ever had any trouble, and any one who asts a shadow is worse than a heathen. When the meal was over, the two old riends walked out and stood for a few inutes under the splutter of an arc ght. As they were parting the man the used to ride the big bay horse in be governor's parade, and who had commanded the populace of his town to and back, said in a low, mournerlike

"If you come to see me, don't call ne colonel. Nobody knows me as coloel now. I am just an employee on a alary.

The are light spluttered again as the little man replied in a squeaky, hall bedroom voice:

"And if you come to see me just call me, 'Say, you!' That's what everybody alls me in the store."

"Well, goodby, captain." "So long, colonel."

It was the first time they had heard the titles in years and each walked way with a lighter step and lighter heart.-New York Sun.

DUTIES OF CHRISTIAN LIFE.

So Virtue In One's Daily Actions Unless It Is Established In the Soul.

The obligations and duties of the Christian life are not all external," writes Cardinal Gibbons, pointing out a seligious life to young men, in The La-des' Home Journal. "They are mainly material and must proceed from the heart. There is no virtue in one's daily octions unless it be first established in soul and is only an external expresdon of the soul's convictions or prolonration of heartfelt sentiments. Yet the external practice of Christian virtues and the performance of Christian duties pertain to the integrity, if not to the esntial character, of the Christian life. The interior sentiments soon perish without external expression, as life and bodily powers become extinct without due and proper exercise or employment.

"However, as the external duties are not absolutely and under all circumstances essential, they vary both in sumber and frequency according to en-tiron and frequency according to en-tiron and frequency according to enman is expected to do, a man in trace not what a man in leisure can accomplish nor a man of the world all that is ossible and easy to one who keeps himelf from society. But all, no matter place in which to study negro character and manners than the camp meeting. Two men who had been chums in a This time honored institution is no less social than religious in its nature. It is usually held in a partly cleared grove, under the auspices of the local clergy. Hither the colored population of the surrounding region flocks, coming on foot, in carriages and wagons, in ox carts and mule carts, on horseback and mule back-in short, by every conceivable mode of locomotion. Its dress is as varied as its vehicles. Indeed the negroes of the south are of all people the most cosmopolitan in the matter of dress. Clothes of every imaginable style, color and "previous condition of servitude" are pressed into use, so that in this particular they present as great a variety as the beggars in the nursary thyme.

> As we approach the grove what a medley of sounds breaks upon our hearing-the neighing of horses, the bellowing of cattle, the heehaw braying of mules, the laughter and screams of children, and joined with these a perfect babel of human voices, the whole forming a discordant din such as no human car ever heard elsewhere! Entering the grounds, we pass bands of children, climbing, tumbling, romping, like so many troops of monkeys; gawky young fellows awkwardly making love to dusky beauties; groups of brawny men discussing abstruse points of theology with as much zeal and more harmony, perhaps, than a body of learned divinity doctors. Here and there a gossiping company of old "uncles" and 'auntics" may be seen reviving the memories of bygone days .- Chautauguan.

Saffron.

Saffron would strike an ordinary observer as decidedly expensive at 56 shillings per pound until told that it is composed of the central small portions only of the flowers of a species of crocus, 70,000 of which it takes to yield the material for one pound. The won-der then becomes that it is so cheap; that it can pay to grow and gather it at the price. As a matter of fact, it has failed to pay the English grower—by this retaining, in the name of his town of Saffron-Walden, but a hint of former importance in this particular direction, French and Spanish soils being more suitable to the full growth of the flowers and foreign labor cheaper in the work of picking. Its use in medicine has practically died out, barring perhaps the popular belief that, steeped in hot milk or cider, it helps the eruption of measles to fully appear.

As a dye in creaming curtains and to give a rich appearance to cake it is still, however, in general demand, for which purpose it is well suited in being both parpose and strong, one grain, com-posed of the style and stigmas of nine flowers, being sufficient to give a dis-tinct yellow tint to ten gallons of water. Its high price, by the way, has led to a peculiar form of adulteration, for, apart from the crude and commonplace one of dusting with a heavy powder, such as gypsum, to give weight, the similar thoroughly in among the genuine ones. -Chambers' Journal

A Mexican Custom on Good Friday.

Mrs. Sara Y. Stevenson contributes to The Century an article on "Maximilfan's Empire," one of a series devoted to the French intervention in Mexico. In describing the scenes that followed the siege of Puebla Mrs. Stevenson says:

It was a Mexican custom on Good Friday to burn Judas in effigy on the Plaza Mayor. Judas was a manikin made in the shape of the person who happened to be most unpopular at the time. It was quite admissible to burn Indas under different shapes, and sometimes these summary autos-da-fe were multiplied to suit the occasion and the temper of the people. At the same time fattles were sold on the streets and universally bought alike by children and dults, by rich and poor, to grind the hones of Judas, and the objectionable noise-second in bideousness only to that of our own sending off of firecrackers on the Fourth of July-was religiously kept up all day. In the year of our Lord 1863 Judas was burned in Mexico on the Plaza Mayor under the mapes of General Forey, Napoleon III, and last, but not least, M. Dubois de Saligny, who especially was roasted with a will amid the wild execrations of the populace.

He Was Not So Smart.

"No," said the man with the large head, "I can't say that I think very much of the fox in the old fable of the fox and the grapes. It is recorded of him that after trying to get the grapes by every way that his ingenuity could suggest he finally turned up his nose and said, 'Oh, I don't care; they're sour !'

"Now, if that fox had had any commendable wisdom in his triangular skull he would have looked at the grapes blandly and then announced to the world that they were sweet, but that sweets didn't agree with him; that, owing to the condition of his stomach, he considered it inadvisable to eat anything containing saccharine matter, and that, besides, a properly philosophical fox believed in self denial and in taking things that were easily at his disposal instead of trying to climb a trellis to secure attractive but deleterions grapes.

"If he had done that, instead of being the laughing stock of succeeding generations he would have stood a good chance of being appointed professor of philosophy at the varsity and of living on yellow legged chickens the rest of his natural life."-Strand Magazine.

Cultured Tramps From Boston.

"Tramps in Boston are by far the most intelligent and modest of their kind," said a native of the baked bean city, "maybe because of their culture My experience with one of these (?). gentlemen of leisure' was quite funny. One came to our house and asked for some clothes, and while my mother went to get them I thought he looked hungry, so I brought him some breakfast. He said to me, 'I am sorry to put you to all this trouble.' Then, mother appearing with the clothes in a bundle, he said he did not like to carry clothes through the streets exposed to view, and when I wrapped them in an old newspaper he was indignant and said gentlemen never carried packages done up in that style in Boston."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.
