THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

The question of the disposition of the Philippines was to a great extent left open by the protocol. All other questions at issue between Spain and the United States on the main lines were settled by that document and the peace commission at Paris has been dealing only with details, some important, but none essential in so far as to endanger the armistice now existing between the

When the question of the disposition of the Philippines came up with all the detalis concerning the same, it was a matter to be determined by the commission and was carried te the forum of diplomsey for determination. The question that a victorious and a vanquished party are the central figures, if any others need be considered, must be borne in mind. This country could not lose sight of the fact that this war was undertaken not for conquest, but for humanity. America being the conqueror, could dictate the terms, but they must be reasonable and in the interests of the nation, as well as foreigners, to command the respect of the civilized world. To wrest the islands from Spain appears like a war for conquest. To leave them to her is to perpetuate endless suffering and bloodshed and perpetuate a rule that can scarcely be called civilized. The war was undertaken to end this rule in the Western hemisphere. The United States could not help fasten it on islands in the east when the battles were fought in the name of humanity. America has destroyed all government and order that existed but now stands guard herself. It is hardly contended that the natives are able to maintain a government according to the standard of western civilization. Spain, cruel and harsh as her methods were with the natives, protected thousands of foreigners and millions of property.

A government that undertaks a war on humanitarian grounds must leave better protection than she destroys. Neither the natives or Spain can give it. To give the natives absolute control would be to drive foreigners and their investments from the islands with the chances that civilization would depart with them. This government finds stself in the position where she can not let go. She must do for the islands more than she found or the war would be a failure. To do these things she must hold them and she must recompense Spain. The commercial advantages to America are great, but the responsibilities assumed are greater, but nations like individuals grow by conquering difficult problems. day was one of the formost citizens of the

The election has resulted in a victory to the republicans. The next congress will be republican in both houses. The enate goes from the control of the opposition and will have a majority of twenty. The house stays in the hands of the republicans, but by a reduced majority, probably with very few votes to spare. The democrats in the East renounced free silver and gained scats in the house for that reason. In California and Washington the republicans gain deeided victories electing the state ticket both congressmen in Washington and nearly a straight congressional ticket in California. The Perfect Pompadour.

It is wrong to attempt to roll your front hair over a "rat" for wear with a hat when you are to be safe under a veil and the pempadour cannot slip. The only satisfactory pompadour is the result of combing down over the face locks long enough to come at least as low as the chin. Brush thoroughly. Get the hair fluffy by whipping it out with the brush. When it is so, turn it back with the comb. Let the roll stand as high as is becoming; then tuck in under it the ends. They serve to support the roll, and the edge of the hair, where it thus turns under, may be caught by the side comb and held perfectly. turning under should take place far enough back to conceal the parting Such a pomapdour will never slip.

Cycling Skirt Novelty.

For wear beneath the circular cycling skirt is a novelty which will meet with delighted acceptance. It is a combination of knickerbockers and underskirt. To a very deep fitted yoke is added a moderately full pair of bloomers drawn in below the knee by an elastic. Above these and added at the same seam is a full divided skirt open on the outside to the hip and edged by a narrow ruffle. This new garment is called the Cythere and is made up in china silk, taffeta and pongee. It is for wear with a golfing suit also. The singlegored yoke for the two garments does away with all clumsiness, and the dainty frills and drapery of the divided skirt atone for the severity of the trousers, always distasteful to the feminine mind.
