A PAIR OF POETS.

The Talented Bride of Paul Laurence

Here is a recent portrait of Alice Ruth Moore, the bride of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the Afro-American poet who has become famous within the past two years. She is a fitting match for the talented young poet, who is hailed by critics, press and public as a genius.

Mrs. Dunbar is from Louisiana and is s representative of the best of the colored race. She is highly accomplished and is a poetess of rare gifts and is well known among the colored people not

She Made an Impression.

Queen Victoria lately accorded a spereception to Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston at Windsor castle, and it is announced that the Prince and Princess of Wales are to pay a similar honor to this distinguished American woman, who, while her uncle, James Buchanan, was president of the United States, filled the onerous position of "lady of the White House" most graciously. Miss Harriet Lane's first appearance in public life was as the companion of her uncle in London, where, from the spring of 1854 to the fall of 1855, she shared with him the social duties of the American minister at the court of St. James. She appears to have made a deep impression upon English society. and more than one Englishman of high rank has paid court to her,—Boston Woman's Journal

The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Pleasant Leiter.

It takes a clever man to find a good word to say on every occasion. It is said of Thomas Bailey Aldrich that he once received a letter from his friend, Professor Edward S. Morse, and found the handwriting wholly illegible. Mr. Aldrich was not at a loss for an answer. In due time there came to Mr. Morse

the following reply:

My dear Morse, it was very pleasant to receive a letter from you the other day. Perhaps I should have found it pleasanter if I had been able to decipher it. I don't think I mastered anything beyond the date, which I knew, and the signature, at which I guessed

There is a singular and perpetual charm in a letter of yours—it never grows old, and it never loses its novelty. One can say every morning as one looks at it: "Here's a letter of Morse's I haven't read yet. I think I shall take another shy at it today, and maybe I shall be able in the course of a few years to make out what he means by those t's that look like w's and those i's that haven't any eyebrows."

Other letters are read and thrown away and forgotten, but yours are kept forever-unread. One of them will last a reasonable man a lifetime. - Youth's Companion.

A Sure Sign of Croup.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Many mothers who have croupy children always keep this remedy at hand and find that it saves them much trouble and worry. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by Geo. A. A New Clothes Hanger.

A patent clothes hanger of great value to those who have to hang their clothes on lines running from a pulley near the window to a pole has recently been put on the market. It is a simple contrivance, and a homemade one could easily be manufactured. A stout wooden or iron bracket is swung on hinges just outside of the window on one side. A crosspiece is attacked to the end, on which two pulleys are fastened. The ropes from the pole in the yard run through these pulleys. The bracket is swung in front of the window, and the clothes are hung on the line without compelling one to lean out of the window. Then a rope running from a hook on the other side of the bracket pulls the line of clothes out free from the window. The chief object of this arrangement is to do away with all dan-ger of falling out of the window while hanging the clothes.—Housekeeper.

The Clever Princess.

How cleverly the Princes of Wales, while appearing to favor one style of dress, has really adapted her own ideas to each passing fashion is perhaps scarcely realized. In regard to bonnets she shows a marked predilection for floral trimmings, and her favorite bat used to be a soft felt with high Tyrolean crown. If she likes a certain shape, she keeps to it, having it retrimmed to suit the requirements of the moment. Years ago she used to wear a "sailor" hat, trimmed with a band of black velvet, and another shape patronized by her royal highness was the "rink," or "porkie." Sealskin hats were kept in fashion a long time by her persistence in wearing them. Whatever her headgear may be, it is invariably close fitting. Her daughters also favor small toques and hats, Princess Maud alone occasionally choosing a tolerably broad

Perfume Tablets.

Perfumes are put up in tablet form nowadays. They come in two sizes. It is unquestionably a very convenient way of investing one's self with delicate flower scents. Dropping one or more within toilet boxes and wardrobe drawers, they are said to afford a fra-grance equal in strength to an ordinary ounce sachet bag, which is bulky and likely to be in one's way.

These come in just one order—the hudutine violet, and are quite the rage this season; they may be tucked away so cleverly within loops of ribbon or bunches of flowers. Nearly every girl has one hidden in her coiffure and concealed within the puff of her ascot tie. The beauty of them is that the delicate fragrance is not so fleeting as in other forms of sachet perfumes, and oh, joy of joys, they sell for only 50 cents a dozen!

Poor Girls.

The poorest girls are those who are not taught to work. Rich parents have petted them, and they have been taught to despise labor and possibly to look upon a working woman as belonging to a lower order and have been accustom-their daughters from this deplorable condition. A great wrong is done to them if they neglect it. Girls should be taught to earn their living.

The wheel of fortune rolls swiftly and the rich are likely to beco poor and the poor rich. Skill added to labor is no disadvantage to rich and indispensable to poor. Well to do parents must educate their daughters to work. No reform is more imperative than this. -Philadelphia Times.

They Answered In Chorus.

There have been several boy babies born in Atlanta this past spring and summer. This is not intended as a startling piece of news, because their arrivals have been duly and appropriately chron-icled, but it is only stated as the basis of a little joke.

Some days ago four of the happy young mothers, all of whom had fine boys at home, met in one of the dry goods stores. All of them completed their purchases about the same time. As they were all leaving the store, in speaking distance of each other, a fresh young clerk, in an effort to be pleasant, fired the stereotyped question at one of them, "How is the boy today?" In an instant four beaming faces were turned toward him, and four pleased voices answered in chorus, "Oh, he's all right, thank you." The clerk fainted.—Atlanta Constitution.

Women's Colleges.

The Elmira Female college needed $100,000 to give it a fresh lease of life, and the money has been raised. Half of it was given by citizens of Elmira; half was raised elsewhere.

The University of Rochester needs

$100,000 to defray the cost of opening the university to girl students. The money has not been raised yet, but the women of Rochester are bent on getting it and will try hard.

Barnard college, in New York, has also polished rolled steel. Latest invention called for $100,000 for equipment of for mending clothing, underwear, table its new buildings. Half the money has been promised on condition that the whole sum is subscribed before Oct. 3. The largest subscriber so far is Mr. John D. Rockefeller, who has made a provisional subscription of $25,000.— Woman's Journal

The Throneroom of Spain.

The throneroom of Spain is a magnificent apartment of crimson and gold, with colossal mirrors and a chandelier of rock crystal that is considered the finest example of the kind in the world. Under the gorgeous canopy are two large chairs handsomely carved and gilded and upholstered in crimson brocade. These are the thrones where the boy king and queen regent sit on occasions of ceremony. Sometimes the daughters stand beside their mother, when it is proper for all the royal family to receive the court.
