Washington, March, 21.—The British government proposes a modus vivendi of the United States in the Behring sea, women of today. and it will be interesting to note whether that is being laid, as it means that if the Britishers get their footbold over the declared line of boundary in Alaska, it will take a great deal of trouble to get them out. The extremely friendly relations between the United States government and Great Britian, the further fact that Secretary Hay was ambassador to Eng- ral generals and smaller officers in the land and his relations with the English diplomats being very pleasant, make it possible that the proposed modus may be accepted. Any action looking to the giving up of valuable territory in Alaska will be resented in the next congress. Some suggestion has been made that the United States troops should be sent to the disputed points in order to maintain the American claims, but this will not be done until there are jurther diplomatic negotiations.
