Weather Synopsis.

People who have lived in the Willamette valley for years and who are familiar with the peculiarities of its seasons, say that never can they recall such a backward spring season. Never a day this month has the heat from old Sol. rom this city to the Rebeccas been sufficient to keep a house even lowell is spending his time moderately warm without the aid of a fire; and here on Wednesday, the 17th of May, the streets were fairly white with hail stones. The almanacs prophesy disagreeable weather all over the U. S. this year and so far they are surely correct in their forecasts. The weather bureau morning. The area of high pressure which has been moving northward along the California coast is losing energy, and unless a change takes place there will be a recurrence to more frequent showers."
