

LETTER FROM MANILA.

Lee Harding Writes to His Folks About War in the Philippines.

I also got a glimpse of the trenches that we had taken. I do not care what nation you may think of but it would never be ashamed of them as they were certainly built by men who were engineers and who understood their business.

I do not write the following as a brag of what we did but to show you what others think of our day's work. Germany, England and other nations had their subjects on the field that day and they say that they do not understand how such places could have been taken without the aid of the artillery.

As the insurgents were driven back, Malabon was deserted with the exception of a few troops which left the next morning when our troops occupied the place.

This is already a long letter and I have much more to write, so I will no longer dwell on that battle but will tell you the rest when I reach home about June 1st.

Early the next morning after a good night's rest we crossed the bridge (repaired during the night) and entered the town, it having been deserted by the enemy during the early morning. New graves could be seen in places while a few "good niggers" lay where they had fallen.

Three or four more men were wounded including J. Edwards, of "M" company, another O. A. C. boy. His wound was in the leg, and is doing nicely.

During the afternoon seven dead men were brought in while a great many wounded or exhausted came in. Some of the latter were just plain exhaustion, while others had sun stroke and had to be strapped down.

April 1—Since the 26th we have been in no fight, but the regiment has been divided and is now doing guard duty in different places and on the trains.

Working Night and Day. The busiest mightiest little thing that was ever made is Dr. King's New Life Pills.

The rich man's whiskey is HARPER because it is supremely delicious. The poor man's whiskey is HARPER, because such good whiskey helps him.

A day or so ago the chief-of-engineers of the insurgent army, a colonel, was killed and his sword and commission now are prized very highly by their American owners.

On the 28th and 29th we went on scouting trips, that is, "I and B" companies did. We saw much of the very fertile country, also Malabon, Polo and several small villages.

While going through a little gully or ravine I found two women and two children beneath the roots of an old tree. As I approached they held up their hands and began to beg for their lives.

It is reported that we are soon to leave for "paradise" but we have heard this many times. Perhaps there may be a little truth in it this time because the insurrection is almost a thing of the past and the Sheridan is in the bay.

Well, this is a long letter and probably you are tired but now you know what we have been doing and how we did it up to the present time so I will stop and wait until I get back to tell you the rest.

The health of our company continues to be excellent, in fact it is better since we left quarters. Of course, I am in fine condition, could not be better. Our diet is different since leaving quarters as we get field rations, which consists of canned beef, canned beans, bacon, and hard-tack.

I send papers describing the big battle, also a roll of films. I suppose it would do no good to send any more films now as they would not reach me here, but if you think they would, send them, as I want them very badly.

Now good bye before I make this any longer.

Married.

RANDALL-KRITSEK—At New Era, on Wednesday, May 17th, Wm. Randall to Mrs. Minni Kritseck, both of New Era, Rev. Mr. Oberg officiating.

A large number of friends from Oregon City and vicinity were in attendance at this pretty wedding, and the ceremony which was performed at the home of Mr. Randall, was one of unusual beauty.

The bride was prettily attired in white and blue silk and the groom wore a handsome costume of black broadcloth. Mr. and Mrs. Randall are two of New Era's most highly respected citizens and have a host of admiring friends who wish for them all that the happiest life can bring.

Sunday Services at the City Churches.

"The Comforter," is Rev. Mr. Hammond's morning theme at the Episcopal church, and "The Power of Christianity" will be the subject for the evening.

At the Presbyterian church Rev. Mr. Montgomery will preach as usual in the morning, and in the evening he has chosen to speak on "A Murderer of Souls."

Rev. Bolinger will preach on "Life's Exchange" in the morning and in the evening "A New Name, But Crippled."

Rev. George P. Ellis, of Baker City, will preach for the Baptist congregation both morning and evening Sunday next. All are invited to hear this gifted and instructive speaker.

Rev. Oberg will hold his usual profitable services at the Methodist church and all are invited to attend.

OREGON'S FRUIT OUTLOOK.

An Interesting Letter From the Oregon State Board of Horticulture.

PORTLAND, OREGON, May 6, 1899

TO THE EDITOR:

The season is at hand for the cultivation of, and caring for, our fruit trees this summer. The small crop likely to be gathered this fall, owing to the unseasonable climatic conditions, will have a tendency to cause many growers to neglect their trees when they need the utmost care and nursing.

In several of the reports issued through the press and leaflets, by the U. S. Weather Bureau, it is stated that the unseasonable cold wave in February had done little or no damage.

The continued cold rain, which makes the fruit drop, naturally tends to discouragement, and in addition, neglect of the orchard will invite fungus diseases and insect pests, and for these reasons alone the spray pump must be kept going, regardless of any crop or no crop.

Reverses are met with in all walks of life—the merchant, the banker, the artisan, and the grain farmer all share alike in off years, so to speak; why should the fruit grower be exempt even in this most favored state of ours.

I consider it not only a pleasure but a duty I owe to my neighbors to tell about the wonderful cure effected in my case by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.
