The way to build up Oregon City is to give Oregon City People your Patronage.

ALGER and Pingree are both denying that they are in a deal to control Michigan.

GORMAN is after Bryan and will get his scalp unless the latter looks out. He is dead and the Eastern democrats realize that something besides this and calamity is required to win.

It is claimed that Alger is a figure head and that Corbin runs the war department and that it is a shame to run Alger out of the cabinet.

It is investing enough in Clackamas county of money brought here so that the proprietor of this paper pays $200 in taxes, including two dollars paid on the Enterprise to one paid by the Courier Herald, makes the proprietor of this paper a "carpet-bagger", then we plead guilty.

The chairman of the populist national committee says that that party will not fuse with the democrats at the coming elections. The treatment received by the populists have at last opened their eyes to the fact that the democrats never intended to unite with them but wished to absorb them bodily.

The experiments of the fish department with planting the Western salmon in the East is not a success. Nature has distributed her products where she intended they should flourish and man can do little to change the order of nature without bringing disaster.

The editors saw Eastern Oregon before arriving in Portland and then took a trip to Astoria on Saturday, and Sunday morning went up the valley on the west side road, coming back Tuesday on the east side. They have seen pretty much of the state and to say that they are pleased and astonished is to put it mildly.

The administration has decided to organize ten new regiments and volunteers are called for the same. These are not to be furnished by the states, but by the country at large.

should be present to garrison all places taken by the Americans.

The latest news from the Second Oregon is that they wish to be mustered out in San Francisco so as to get travel pay. They are entitled to this and their wishes should be law.

REFORM PRINTING.

The proprietor of the Courier-Herald in his last issue got his feet tangled and it is hard to say where he was going. Just keep your head Brother Cheney, as we have a little more of your reform printing.

A member of the board of commissioners informed the Enterprise that at the June term this reform printer promised not to rob the people any more at the rate of $3 an inch, but he has kept it, right up and on the very day of his last issue he was before the board and again promised not to charge more than $2.25 an inch for this work, but on the same day he took $3 per inch for one of these notices.

At this July term he put in a bill for $85.50 for supplies furnished which was cut to $54, nearly one-third.

The Enterprise stated that the county would have saved money at the time the contract was let to have taken its proposition on the printing. This is now becoming evident.

A REINCARNATED DOG.

He Hadn't Lost His Human Traits In The Process.

"You can't tell me there is nothing in the theory of reincarnation," remarked a traveling man, "for I know there is. I was down in Florida recently, and in St. Augustine I saw a snob dog—an out and out snob. His name is Towser, and he is just a common yellow dog, lives in the street and belongs to no one.

"In the summer, when no wealthy northern people are in the town, he plays with all the middle class children and dogs and will greet patronizingly the middle class men and women who know him. But in the winter, as soon as the season begins, he attaches himself to some rich New York family, loafs in their yard, tags their footsteps or carriages all about the city, attends them to church and home again and so far as he is able makes himself one of them. For his meals he has been forced to resort to the back yards of a plain, good woman, who pities him and feeds him regularly. He is friendly with her at his eating hours, but never so far forgets himself as to wag his tail at her on the street or when he is with more pretentious people.

"When society functions take place in St. Augustine, there is Towser. Golf matches, afternoon teas, picnics or boat parties, all are attended by him with most conventional regularity. He never greets any ordinary acquaintance when thus socially engaged and has even been known not to eat for several days when a fashionable wedding was on his mind. With the swell dogs of St. Augustine Towser never has any rows, having, no doubt, studied the politic art of being agreeable, but with commoner cuts he is irritable and defensive. That dog has been human in his time, and I'd give a penny to know who he was."—Indianapolis Journal.

AMONG THE CANNIBALS.

A Traveler's Experience With the Man Eaters of West Africa.

Mr. P. A. McCann has had 19 years actual residence in West Africa. Mr. McCann's seven years' trading and residence with the cannibal tribes of the French Gaboon probably form the most exciting part of his experiences. He got friendly with them and thoroughly studied their habits and customs. They quite believed that the white men ate white men as they themselves eat their fellow blacks. A big chief offered Mr. McCann the smoked thigh of a native. This was considered a gracious act. To refuse it would be unfriendly. Mr. McCann was in a dilemma.

But he feigned illness, said he was not eating just then. The chief eventually put the matter off good naturedly by saying he supposed the white man preferred white man to eat instead of black man. "The Mpongwees," said Mr. McCann, "are in ferocious and pugnacious qualities second to no other tribe in Africa. Their villages mostly consist of a single street from 600 to 1,500 yards long, on each side of which are the houses. In these houses they cook, eat and sleep and keep their store of provisions, the chief of which is smoked game and smoked human flesh, hung up to the rafters.

"Although ferocious and quarrelsome to a degree, they are very industrious. They show considerable skill in the manufacture of pottery, and the designs of their cooking pots, water jars, tobacco pipes and palm wine bottles are extremely artistic. In ironwork they are also skillful workers. Although they kill game for food, they much prefer human meat to any other."—London Globe.

Where the Crabs Come In.

When a school of menhaden make their way into a bay, they may stay for days swimming around in one region. Larger fishes, including perhaps some sharks, feed upon them there. From such feeding there are more or less fragments that sink down through the water, and the various crabs and other crustaceans come scuttling from all parts of the bay to get them. It may be that the tide carries some of the litter about or perhaps the crabs and other creatures smell it, as bluefish scent the bait that is used in chumming, but when a school of menhaden are preyed upon at the surface all the crabs in the bay congregate on the mud below to catch the crumbs that fall.—New York Sun.

North American Review.

"The third part of what may be called the official history of the war with Spain, by Major General Nelson A. Miles, is published in the July number of the 'North American Review.' It describes the movement of the American troops to Puerto Rico, and the engagements there which resulted in the reduction of that island. Referring to his tactics in outwitting the Spaniards by changing the destination of the expedition while enroute to Puerto Rico, General Miles says:

"Of course, the tugs, the launches and other fleet steamers of the enemy in Puerto Rico must have been on picket duty well out from the northwest shores of the island, ready to give quick notice of the discovery of the skyward curling smoke of the approaching squadron, which would be seen by them long before they themselves could be observed from the squadron, and hurry back to announce its approach by telegraph from Aguadilla or Arceibo, as the case might be. They might fairly have reported that the squadron standing well out to sea was sweeping eastward off to Mona Passage, which meant of course, its probable appearance at Fajardo on the morrow. But later that squadron, having turned sharply south was plowing the Mona Passage, its officers and men having had their first glimpse of the mountain peaks of Puerto Rico through the dim, misty light of the eastern horizon. Under cover of the darkness of night the fleet was quietly stealing down the broad passage, every light extinguished, and even the port holes on the port side closed, notwithstanding the intense heat and close atmosphere. In the gray shadowed light of the evening and night the fleet presented a picture unlike anything I had ever seen before.

The Amen! of marriage is always a baby. Without it, wedlock is a summer field that never blooms, a flower that never buds, a night without stars, a sermon without a benediction, a prayer without an Amen. There never was a husband worthy of the name, who did not aspire to be the father and the grandfather of healthy, capable children to hand down his name and the fortune accumulated by the sweat of his brow, from generation to generation. There never was a wife fit to bear that noble title, who did not wish to wear womanhood's most glorious crown, the sceptre of motherhood. Thousands of wedded couples, otherwise happy, fall short of wedlock's greatest happiness because they are childless. In the majority of cases, this is because the wife, through ignorance or neglect, suffers from weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. For women who suffer in this way there is one great medicine that does not fail to accomplish its purpose. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned and makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones the shattered nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It quickens and vitalizes the distinctly feminine organism. It banishes the maladies of the expectant month and makes baby's introduction to the world easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-come's health and nourishment in plenty. It is the best supportive tonic for nursing mothers.

Mrs. Jennie Parks, of Marshall, Spokane Co., Wash., writes: "I am glad to tell of the good results of your great medicine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It benefited my medicine in confinement. It gives me strength. I have no tired feeling, and my baby is the picture of health. I feel better than I have in ten years."

In cases of constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used as an adjunct to the "Favorite Prescription." They are extremely simple, perfectly natural and insure prompt and permanent relief.
