THE TEACHERS' FRIEND.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine, who gave $25,-600 a year ago to the Teachers' College of the University of Chicago, is going to show her interest in the cause of education by endowing a school of pedagogy in the same city. She has promised to give several hundred teachers.

Mrs. Blabe has had this idea in nend since 1803. The daughter of the late Cyrus H. McCormick, the great mower and reaper man, she inherited a fortune of millions. She has long been eminent among Chicago women for

She told her idea to some of her millionaire friends and has received assurances, it is said, of contributions which will aggregate a foundation fund of $1,000,000.

ers in establishing an institution under the broad ideas that have been developed during his long career as a teacher of teachers.

Mrs. Blaine's great alm is to benefit the poor and not to pauperize them. Emmons Blaine and Anna McCormick were married at Richfield Springs Sept. 26, 1889. He was 33 and she 23 and the possessor of $3,000,000, Emmons was the favorite son of the late James G. Blaine and was the pick of the flock. He was educated as a lawyer, but afterward went into the railroad business and became general freight agent of the Santa Fe road at Chicago. He died June 18, 1892. You will find them the most inexpensive and satisfactory material you can employ for this purpose. If it should be your fate to live in a section of the country where cattails do not grow, then substitute the silk from milkweed pods. Gather the pods in the full of the year, hang them away in paper bags to dry, and they will burst open before the winter is over and can be umde up into pillows in the early spring.-Woman's Home Companion.

The Bats Off Habit.

Besides the houseful of untidy heads that the hats off habit at the theater has engendered there is another result of the practice almost as unfortunate. From removing her hat at the theater, a woman wants to remove it at all times. This has nothing to do with the summer practice of going bareheaded; it is a winter tendency, and it manifests itself in various ways and upon various occasions. A woman finds her hat a burden while shopping; in traveling, no matter how short the trip, she has the longing to lay it aside and often does so. At concerts and lectures, where there is no spectacular necessity for removing bonnets, she finds herself instinctively taking out her hairpins. Church and women's club meetings are, in fact, the only places where the tendency has not yet shown itself to a marked degree, and at the former it is already recommended, while at the latter the fact that such a proceeding would strike at the very roots of the club institution must be accounted as the true and only reason for the omission. Women find themselves on the lookout for two attributes in a new hat-lightness and an unnamable attribute requiring no mirror in the putting on and taking off of the article. All of which may be a Services every Sunday at 11 A. M. Sunday blessing and may be not; it is, however, logical.-Philadelphia Times.

Girls With Thin Arms. Thin arms should be carefully concealed. They have an impoverished look that robs their owner of some of her dignity. If the arms are unduly long, as they occasionally are, the efwide bands of black velvet fa ... oned with pretty buttons or clasps or buckles. This reduces the apparent length of the arms. "Thin arms," says M. Charles Blanc, the great French authority on dress, "denote bad health and an enfeebled race." The best remedy is to wash the arms with a fine lather of soap at least twice a day and to dry them thoroughly and rub them vigorously. This treatment brings the pores into action and induces a healthy condition of the skin. Rubbing with a soft chamols leather in Ladies' Home Journal
