

A ROYAL WELCOME.

The Reception to Co. I so Successful as to Exceed all Expectations.

Oregon Cityites put a big feather in their cap in the manner in which they welcomed home the boys of Company I. It was planned to have the reception a grand affair but the most sanguine of the promoters hardly dared to hope for such an occasion as it proved to be. In an affair of such magnitude as this it is only reasonable to look for and expect a weak spot somewhere in the arrangements, in fact it is almost impossible to carry it through without someone blundering. But on this particular occasion there was not one detail, even the smallest, but what was in perfect harmony and from the time the train arrived in the morning until the last tired mortal had left Broderick's Park late in the evening, perfect harmony and success marked the way.

Probably no one thing would emphasize the fact that the reception was a success more than that the boys themselves, tired and worn out from lack of sleep, entered into it with enthusiasm, and many declared that Oregon City's reception was such that even the one given them on their arrival at San Francisco was but a side show. The welcome tendered them came from the hearts of the people; and needed neither words nor actions to assure the boys that they were welcome. The members who came down from Albany were made to feel that the reception was for them as well as Oregon City's boys and the words of gratitude and appreciation uttered by many of them more than repaid for the many hours of labor in preparing a "welcome home".

At an early hour in the morning the people began to gather near the depot and when the train rolled in there was a surging, struggling mass of humanity packed in every nook or place where it was possible to see or secure a foothold. The train was over an hour late but the crowds waited patiently and never thought of surrendering their points of vantage. As the train pulled in there was a subdued roar from the masses, not the rousing cheer that comes from a stout pair of lungs, but a low, deep, intense murmur of satisfaction and joy that came directly from an overflowing heart. Everybody crowded forward to press the hand of friend or relative, but the boys had not had their breakfast and the greetings were cut short that they might do justice to the meals awaiting them.

Promptly at 10 o'clock Grand Marshal T. W. Sullivan gave the word for the parade to start and when the head of the column moved down Main street and the various societies quartered on the side streets moved out into position there appeared before the eyes of the thousands of spectators one of the biggest and best parades witnessed in Oregon City for years. The line was headed by a platoon of police under Chief Burns and a posse of deputy sheriffs under Sheriff Cooke and were followed by Marshal Sullivan and his aides on horseback; the Silverton Marine Band came next and were followed by a color guard of the G. A. R. Union Veterans, German War Veterans, Boy's Brigade, Roake's Mounted Battery, carriage with flower girls and then came the guests of the day, the members of Company I under command of Lieutenant Campbell, and stepping to the martial music furnished by Capt. John Kelly, the veteran drummer. The second division was headed by the Georgia Band, leading the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the Catholic Knights of America, the Artisans, Woodmen of the World, followed by a number of citizens on foot and in carriages. Main street was crowded the entire line of march and as Company I passed along with the steady swing of the trained soldier they were greeted by cheer after cheer.

The exercises at the park were followed as outlined on the programs and proved interesting. The addresses were short, snappy and full of genuine welcome. Judge Thos. A. McBride speaking on behalf of the state of Oregon, Judge Ryan on behalf of Clackamas county, Mayor Latourette for Oregon City, Hon. Geo. C. Brownell for the entire people, and Mrs. Emma Galloway spoke from the standpoint of the mothers, wives, and sisters. The musical part was excellent and the selections all appropriate. Miss Mary Case sang "Ah! 'Tis a Dream", Mr. Little touched a responsive chord with the "Flag That Has Never Known Defeat" and Miss Imogene Harding gave the beautiful solo "May Morning". Miss Lyle Lawrence recited "The Victory" and Chas. A. Miller sang an original song that gained him much applause. Mrs. R. C. Ganong sang "The Star Spangled Banner" in a very artistic and pleasing manner, while the entire audience rose to their feet in salute, and Mrs. E. E. Charman and Prof. Campston rendered the duet, "I Would That My Love". In addition to these there were several songs by the chorus, under direction of Prof. Campston, and selections by the Silverton Band.

At the close of the program there were calls for Lieutenant Campbell to address the crowd. In reply Mr. Campbell stated he was not loaded for a speech but would gladly speak a few minutes about the members of Company I. His remarks proved very interesting, as he gave short sketches of incidents happening during their journey to Manila and during the campaign. He was very enthusiastic in his praise of the boys for their bravery and readiness to respond to the calls of their officers and recited incident after incident showing that Company I was composed of men and soldiers and the audience enjoyed it hugely and would only permit him to stop on the arrival of an imperative order from the banquet hall that the feast was spoiling to be eaten. The tables were loaded with all kinds of delicacies and when the crowd broke away the tables looked as though a cyclone had passed that way.

The program of toasts was interfered with by the anxiety of friends to claim the soldier boy for private visits, and they were cut short. Dancing until 6 p. m. brought the day's festivities to an end—and truly—each and every member of every committee may well feel proud that they assisted in preparing for such a pleasant occasion. In every sense of the word it was a "howling success".

TWAS A GLORIOUS VICTORY.

The "Jolly Fellows" Defeat Portland's Crack Base Ball Team.

Last Saturday the Oregon City base ball enthusiasts who accompanied the "Jolly Fellows" club to Portland where they met the crack Multnomah team, witnessed one of the prettiest and swiftest games of base ball of the season.

The "Jolly Fellows" were determined to win the game if it were within the possibilities and Manager Hedges had the boys get right down to work for some days previous to the game and the results of his careful and insistent work was plainly visible when the teams came together. The Multnomahs had their best team in the field and appeared satisfied of an easy victory, but their confident air rapidly gave way to one of puzzled uneasiness as their mighty sluggers stood up before Nefager and retired in one-two-three-style. Nefager was feeling good and had perfect control of the ball, while Wills was a regular stone wall through which nothing could pass. Not only was the battery in good form but the support were invincible and try as they could the pets of Multnomah could not break through for more than three scores. While Multnomah was unable to add to their score they were able however to hold the "Jolly Fellows" down in good shape and five of the little marks was all that the "Jolly Fellows" could lay claim to.

The game all the way through was a splendid exhibition of sport and the spectators got the worth of their money. The "Jolly Fellows" went up against the splendid combination in this neck of the woods and won the game in a fair and square contest and feel proud of their achievement and their friends feel proud of them.

Preparation.

It was evident the moment she entered the parlor that he was angry. "What do you mean by suing me for breach of promise?" he demanded. "I never proposed to you in my life."

"Why, of course you didn't," she answered in a conciliatory tone. "And I wouldn't have accepted you if you had. But you know I am going on the stage, and I must make some preparation."
