STRENGTH OF GIBRALTAR.

Its Overwhelming Effect Upon an

American Tourist. "There is no doubt that Gibraltar is, from the nature of its location, the strongest fortified spot on earth," said not satisfactory. Price 25 cts., and 50 a recently returned tourist, "but the cis. C. G. Huntley, the Druggist. English officers who are on duty there seem impressed with the idea that there is some weak spot about the place and that some American may discover it. They have very nonsensical rules and regulat -us governing the fortification, and one of them is that Minute Cough Cure. no American can be admitted to the fortified places, though they are allowed to wander all around the outside as long as they care to.

"I do not think the combined guns of the rest of the world, all working together and for 12 hours each day, Sundays and public holidays included, for one year, could seriously interfere with Gibraltar beyond cutting off the mail communication. The walls are solid rock a quarter of a mile thick, and such a thing as doing any damage in the middle of Sept. or we shall have a military sense would be simply nonsense. Gibraltar could resist any attack, and the conditions there are such that the attacking party would necessarily have to be exposed in making its attack. This exposure would have to be within range of the guns of the fort, even if they are 50 years out of date. Consequently they would be nearly as effective as modern guns, for with all that is claimed for modern warfare there probably flever will be any fighting done when the opposing parties are out of sight of each other.

"While all this is admitted by military men of all countries, it seems funny that there should be anything of a secret or hidden character about Gibraltar that Americans should not be allowed to inspect as freely as the people of other countries are. England may be whipped some time in the history of the world, but the defeat will not take place at Gibraltar, I assure you."-Washington Star.

SCENERY FOR A NEW PLAY. Its Preparation In Modern Theaters an Interesting Process.

The preparation for a new play, as far as the scenery is concerned, is most interesting. A complete model in minfature is made, about the size of one Sol King ...... 5 00 of the German toy theaters seen in the shops. The picture is carefully painted; the rocks, if there be any, and the foliage are cut out, and all the details are followed with no less thought than when the real affair is attacked.

The work is done in water color, mounted on pasteboard, and if the placed on file, and that Deputy Surveyor scheme be an interior there are real Meldrum make a resurvey of said road curtains in miniature, flights of steps, and the hangings, all seriously worked out. It is something that would delight the heart of a boy and furnish him with endless amusement. These models are kept until after the piece is produced, and are then put away on shelves, alas! only to warp and become covered with dust.

But the master painter's work does report of H M Reibhoff, W P Kirchem not end here by any means, for there are lights to be arranged, since they play an important part in the performance and must be regulated by the scheme of color; so there are long conferences with electricians and many discussions with the makers of glass shades whereby the exact tints may be obtained.

When every detail has been settled, spread on the paint frames, and the drawing is begun. Large china pots are used for the colors. These are filled with paints, which are mixed with water and a size, and enormous brushes put the pigment on the canvas. It is wonderful to watch the artist, who dashes on the paint with no apparent care and who has to work fast to cover the surface before the color dries, which it does quickly .-New York Commercial Advertiser.

Some Superstitions.

When starting for the river, says a writer in London Field, if you have to turn back and get something that you have forgotten, you are sure to catch little or nothing that day. This is an article of Devon folklore, and I am inclined to think the west country folk right herein. The disappointment, the hurry and the bringing of wrong what out to be the unruffled, even temper of a successful angler. He becomes hasty and rash, most often with ill results to his basket.

In the western highlands it is currently believed that if you see a colt with its back to you when starting in the morning on a fishing excursion it is the worst of luck, only to be exceeded should you hear a cuckoo before breakfast.

Billey's Neat Copy.

James Whitcomb Riley wrote a long poem for a New York newspaper. It was ordered in advance and was to be sent in upon a certain day. Now, most writers, especially poets, are dilatory. But the Hoosier bard is an exception to the rule. His poem arrived the day it was promised. It came by express in a formidable parcel. First were the outer wrappings of heavy brown paper, then some soft packing stuff, and beneath that the board covers within which was the manuscript, tied together with a small ribbon, and so neat that the editor was almost afraid to turn the leaves.-Philadelphia Evening
