He Couldn't Reach It.

The following anecdote concerning the famous lecture on "The Holy Land," which, it is said, ex-Governor Oglesby never succeeded in delivering as he prepared it, is related in Franc B. Wilkie's pamphlet on the life of the

He had been invited to deliver this lecture at a country town in Illinois and accepted. A large crowd gathered to hear him, and he was greeted with loud applause as he stepped forward to lecture. He was only to speak for one hour and said in beginning he would preface his lecture with a few remarks on his experience in Europe. At the end of 21/2 hours he was still talking about Europe, and because the people seemed so delighted he announced that he would deliver the lecture the next evening.

The same people came back, re-enforced by many more, and at the end of another two hours he stopped without having said anything about the Holy Land, except to announce that as his subject. The third night there was a monster gathering, and Governor Oglesby, after finishing up Burope, started to say a few words about Egypt and the Nile before beginning lecture. At last he looked at his watch and, with a look of astonishment, turned to one of his friends on the platform and said:

"Well, here it is 11 o'clock, and I'll be hanged if I've got to the Holy Land yet."-Chicago Tribune.

Sam Houston and His Corns.

Professor Hiram Corson of Cornell university, who used to be a reporter for the United States senate, tells this story about Sam Houston: "We reporters took turn and turn about each for an hour. One day I was sitting Huge of frame, he was particularly huge of feet, and those extremities were rendered the more conspleyous in those days of boots by being incased in laced shoes. On this occasion there seemed to be an amount of pain in those feet proportionate to

"The senator kept one upon his knee, rubbing it, with an anguished expression and periodically exchanging for the other foot. After awhile he unlaced his shoes and drew them off. Then the nursing of his aching toes continued for a time as before. But no relief came, and at last, to my utter amazement and amusement, he slowly divested himself of a long blue woolen knife with which he was wont to pass the time whittling, he proceeded deliberately to pare his corns in the senate of the United States."

But He Made a Good Officer. Some 20 or 25 years ago a gentleman of this place was elected constable, and although he had no opposition his nervousness as to the result was quite noticeable all during the day. After the polls closed and he was declared elected he hied him to the river bank, Pioneer Chapter No. 28. O. E. S. meets in the meantime having armed himself the second and fourth Tuesdays in each | with an old pepper box pistol, one of the earliest patterns of the revolver, through this colloquy with some one and dramatic style:

"Halt! I am constable of this district and command you to halt. You won't, eh? Well, here goes"-bang! "I hate to do it, but it is in the discharge of my official duty. Now, I told you then the old pepper box became unbang went the remaining four loads. The firing soon attracted a crowd and the tree was thus saved.

But, notwithstanding the episode of the sycamore and the scars it still shows, the gentleman is said to have made a good officer.-Hazlegreen (Ky.) Johnson's barber shop.
