AT THE MASQUERADE.-The armory was a scene of mirth and merriment New Year's night, it being the occasion of the masquerade ball given under the auspices of the Oregon City camp Modern Woodmen of America. The maskers were not numerous but they managed to furnish much amusement for a large number of spectators. The costume prizes were awarded by a committee consisting of Dr. Strickland, Forbes Pratt and Will Logus. The winners were: Best dressed gentlemen, Wells Drurie, representing Spanish Knight; best dressed lady, Miss Dode Bullock, Queen of the Carnival; best sustained character, Chas. WHAT TWO WOMEN SAW.

Two New York women stood in front of Weaving, weaving threads of faith Pattern of a woman's heart, Who can ere anticipate The huse of life in every part? Will the colors warmly glow— All traced in love and happiness; Or will they fade in somber wos? A woman's future who can guess? There is infinite pathos in the way that the purpose and meaning of their lives To young and happy women it seems as if destiny was weaving their future in all the colors of the rainbow like a merry dance of cupids weaving garlands about a May pole in the spring-time of life. But to thousands of women life looks to be all "a warp of sorrow in a woof of pain."

WHAT LIFE REALLY IS. A woman's life pattern is really woven by herself. A great philosopher has said "Life is neither pain, nor pleasure; it is serious business." If a woman would make it her serious business to understand herself mentally, morally and physically, using the common sense that God has given her, there would be far less misery and suffering woven into the pattern of her life. She can make it almost anything she

Every woman who wants to derive the full share of happiness, which nature infull share of happiness, which nature in-tended her to find as a woman, wife and mother, ought to read that great and wise book, The People's Cammon Sense Medi-cal Adviser, by R. V. Pierce, M. D. Several hundred of its thousand pages are devoted to the subject of woman's special physi-ology, telling in plain and refined language how a woman may build up her physical self to meet the emergencies of her de-veloning career.

The author of this great book is among the most successful of living physicians. His "Favorite Prescrition" is known in every corner of the civilized globe as the most remarkable supportive tonic and health creator ever devised for weak and ailing women. It imparts direct strength and healthful vitality to woman's delicate, special structure, and increases the vigor, endurance and recuperative force of her endurance and recuperative force of her entire system.

A Pennsylvania lady, Mrs. Alonzo Rathmell, living at the curner of Meade and Almond Sts. in Williamsport, in a recent letter, says: "My life is a story of misery. Until the birth of my boy I had health that I often boasted of. I married in my twenty-fifth year, and two years afterward my boy was bon. Then the health I boasted of was suddienly gone. Pen or tongue can never describe theawful suffering I endured for a year and a half. I was so miserable I longed for death to relieve me, when a kind neighbor came in and asked me to try a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I said, despairingly: "Oh, its of no use, I can't ever be any better." She insisted, and my kushand, who despairingly: Oh, its of no use, I can't ever be any better. She insisted and my hushand, who was in despair, got a bottle, and I took it just to please him. I had not taken half a bottle when I was able to walk across the room without feeling faint or having any palpitation of the heart. Oh what a God send your medicine is to suffering humanity. We had spent two hundred dollars with the leading doctors without any henefit whatever.

"Last December I had a baby, and, thanks to your "Favorite Prescription." I stood the con-finement well and have a fourteen pound baby girl. To-day I feel as well as I ever did in my flow."
