

CORRESPONDENCE

Oswego.

(Too late for last week.)

Oswego, Feb. 21.—On last Saturday the house of Olaf Anderson that stood about one mile west of the R. R. station, was entirely destroyed by fire. Mr. Anderson had been up nearly all night looking after the comfort of his wife and two days old babe. About six o'clock in the morning he built a fire in the cook stove and replenished the fire in the heater, and then went to the barn to feed his cows, when he returned he found the roof in a blaze having caught presumably from a spark falling upon the roof. A high wind was blowing at the time. Mr. Anderson barely had time to get his wife and little ones out of the house, into the barn before the roof had tumbled in. Mr. Anderson had $250 in paper money and $40 in gold in the house. After the fire he recovered the gold in small nuggets,—leeson learned never keep paper money except it be in a fire proof safe.

Redland.

REDLAND, Feb. 28.—From the appearance of everything spring is at hand. The crowing of the chimney cock, the boot of the grouse, the drumming of the partridge and the whistle of the quail all are a sure sign of spring. Say Oregon isn't all right when it comes to fine winters.

The social and entertainment given by the children and teacher of the school at Dist. No. 75 was an elaborate affair. The proceeds, $14, will be used to add more books to their library which now contains 90 or more volumes all of which have been earned by the children. Next in importance in a school room to a good teacher and a dictionary comes a good library says our men of education. I wish more could see as we do for it is from books and good literature that is placed into the hands of the children, that do much in shaping their after life and forming in them a desire for good and wholesome reading instead of trash that is circulated broadcast over our country. It is a good library that keeps hundreds and thousands of boys and young men from seeking the saloon and card table, and thus we should take pains to put books that are of value in building up the mind into the hands of the young, whether they be books of fiction or truth. We hope the day will come when all schools will have a library, as our school has, and in this way let the lights of our wise and noble men that have passed and gone shine out that they may be seen and caught by some of our young that are growing up that they may make this world brighter and better by their having lived in it.

From the first dose the quiet and rest begin: the tickling in the throat ceases; the spasm weakens; the cough disappears. Do not wait for pneumonia and consumption but cut short your cold without delay.

Carus.

CARUS, Feb. 26.—Washington's birthday was celebrated in this place by the raising of a flag at the school house. We are informed that this flag was purchased by the contributions of the pupils. On the evening of 22nd, in the M. E. church, the program published in a recent issue of the Enterprise was rendered with great enthusiasm by the pupils, and much interest and appreciation on the part of the audience. Where singing, recitations, dialogues etc. were all so good, criticism must be impartial. The flag drill by several young girls was very prettily executed. A pleasing and unique feature was the "Continental Congress," representing the discussion and signing of the Declaration of Independence. Twelve youths dressed in colonial style with wigs, knee breeches, and low shoes rendered the piece very realistic. The admission fee of 10 cents amounted to about four dollars and fifty cents, which will be used for the benefit of the school.
