Here is a sample of commission business. Last Tuesday, J. A. McGlashan, manager of Fellows' grocery, purchased 400 bushels of wheat from a farmer, paying 40 cents per bushel, cash. That same afternoon he realized a profit of 15c cash per bushel over his purchase price. He never even saw or handled the wheat. He simply paid the cash for it and had the farmer load it on the freight car for Portland. Yesterday he purchased 300 bushels of oats at 30 cents, and disposed of them the same way for 36 cents.

Last Saturday at Butte, Mont., Charles Paustien shot Alex Tate and wife, killing the former and wounding the latter, and then blew his own brains out. He claimed the Tates were responsible for his wife obtaining a divorce from him. He lived in Oregon City for several years. About three years ago he married Mrs. Mehall, a daughter of ex-mayor Hiram Straight. She recently procured a divorce from Paustien, over which he committed his awful deed.

Joseph N. Kelley, engineer of Portland, has furnished the special committee of the city council with a survey of a sewer system for the bluff portion of the city. His estimate places the cost of a first-class system, draining all the property on the hill, at $13,000. His plan is somewhat elaborate, and with the omission of a few manholes, and catch basins the cost could be reduced to $10,000. His idea is to come down the hill at the Weinstadt outlet.

The idea of establishing a commission house, operated by the citizens, came one too soon. During the past three weeks a gentleman from Portland has made several visits to this city, taking in the situation, with the same idea in his mind. He is at present operating three large merchandise stores in South Africa with his son as manager, who reports a great depression in business on account of the war. He talks of a $100,000 department store, but whether or not he will locate here remains to be seen.

David W. Kinnaird at high noon last Monday took Mrs. Rena Strange to wed. The ceremony of marriage was performed at the home of Rev. A. J. Montgomery, the officiating clergyman. He is very prominent, not only in this county but throughout the state. The bride is well and favorably known, and is quite popular in Eastern Star circles, being Worthy Matron of that order in this city. They left for a trip to Victoria and the Sound, and on their return will make this their future home.

G. C. Wood, who for the past year has been superintending the Clatsop Speckles sargur plantation in Honolulu arrived in this city last Monday. "Climatically" says Mr. Wood, "the islands cannot be excelled anywhere on earth, but the recent bubonic plague has driven many Americans back to the United States, temporarily." He says the epidemic was transmitted to the islands through the medium of a peculiar bird's nest, exported from China, which is eaten on New Year's day by the celestials and considered a luxury.

The wages paid for common labor is low, but skilled mechanics and tradesmen receive from $4 to $5 per day, while good bricklayers are paid $7 per day and board. He also states the natives are perfectly content with American sovereignty, and expresses the belief that when the islands are thoroughly Americanized and a better system of general cleanliness inaugurated, plague and epidemics will become extinct. Mr. Wood is a resident of Minneapolis, but is well pleased with the west and may locate and embark in business in this city.

OREGON'S OLDEST APPLE TREE

Where Once Frowned a Forest a Brick Structure Will Stand.

About four months ago Judge Ryan purchased the property on Main street where Dimick & Eastham's law office, Johnson's barber shop and Mrs. Sladen's millinery store now stand. The lease upon this property will expire some time in June, and the Judge is contemplating the erection of a brick structure in the near future. In excavating for such a block would necessitate the felling of Oregon's oldest apple tree.
Standing on the property above described, is an apple tree whose history dates back to the year 1841. That year the seed was brought across the plains and planted in this spot by John M. Bacon, who was afterwards postmaster of Oregon City for a number of years. The tree is now 58 years old and it has borne fruit continuously for the past 55 years. Many of our citizens remember picking apples from the old land mark 40 years ago, when they were boys. It is undoubtedly Oregon's oldest apple tree.
