DREAMS OF TWILIGHT.

When the windows flame at sunset And the streets are slulted with blood And the dying day is sinking In the night's advancing flood, Runsky volumes lightly trailing Vol the housetops stark and high, Tinged with purple that the moment Despens in the western sky.

When the shadows round us gather And the darkness sottles fast And each flish of life conclusive Secone but prelude to the last, Dreams shall odian wasted faces, Fraught with pressage dark tonight, Dreams that like the amoke shall vanish At the coming of the night.

TATENTA STATEMENT AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND EXCELLENT REASON

"Ob. thanks!"

Being a Woman, Winifred Was Not Apt at Giving Reasons, So a Man Helped Her Out.

"Is it something immensely important?" I asked as Winifred looked up with a number of wrinkles on her forehead.

"Immensely," she said, with a sigh. "Are you writing a poem?"

"Nothing could possibly be more promiles."

"Then I may be able to help you," I suggested.

Certainly not." she exclaimed, and she instantly covered her sheet of paper with the blotting pad. "That," she added, "would be too ridiculous." "Now, why is the idea of my helping you ridleulous?" I demanded. Well, it is."

"A woman's reason?"

"At all events," she insisted, "I must write the letter myself."

Whom is it for?" I ventured to ask.

"Lord Carfield." "I wasn't aware you corresponded," I suggested.

"Oh, we don't. At least he has never written to me before," she answered.

"And so you find Lord Carfield's letter difficult to answer?" I asked.

Winnie sat with her right elbow on the edge of the blotting pad, her eyes fixed on the window, a charming air of self consciousness on her small face. A tress of her hair fell forward over her forehead, which was still wrinkled.

"Suppose you let me tell you what to say ?" I proposed, standing with a hand on her chair.

"Oh, I know what to say."

"Then where's your difficulty?" I demanded "At least I think I do, only I don't know how to put it." "Well, you see, that's where I might come In." "It has nothing-nothing in the world his very truly or very sincerely and to do with you," she said, rising impulsively. 'l am not quite sure of that." "But I am perfectly sure," she insist-

"Now, you were to take me into your confidence as far as to show me Carfield's letter."

turned, and I took my hat from the table.

"Goodby," she said, with a careless nod, as I stepped toward the door. "That will be the second sheet of paper I've wasted," she cried as I turned the handle.

"You're going to write another, then?" I suggested, closing the door again.

"It's a pity you're in a hurry," she cried. "I'm not."

"Because you might post it for me. I shan't be two minutes." And, taking ped. her pen, she began to write at a great pace. When she had finished, she carefully blotted the letter and directed an envelope. "You might like to sealing it.

She held out her hand with the letter, and, taking it from the envelope, 1 smoothed it out. The contents were barely two lines asking Carfield to call at 4 o'clock the following day. "Will that do?" she asked.

"I think mine would have been bet- you." tor." I said.

"That is one of the things we shall never know now," she answered. "Why not?"

"Because you lost your temper," she said. "I hate a man who loses his temper."

"Still it's never too late to mend," I urged. which you please."

"Very well," she assented, and she sat down and took her pen again. "Where were we?" I asked.

"'Dear Lord Carfield, I am deeply honored by your request, but I regret. to tell you that I am unable to consider it.' That's all we've done," said Winnie, looking up with an expectant expression.

" 'Because' "-"Yes; I've written that."

"'Because I am already engaged to be married to' "- Winnie threw down her pen, making a large blot on the pad.

"I didn't know you were making a joke of it," she cried indignantly.

"I'm not," I insisted. "You were telling me to write non-

Bense. "You never wrote anything half so sensible in your life," I assured her.

"Besides, it isn't true," she said. "Not yet," I answered, "and you haven't finished the letter. Now, suppose you finish it ?" Winnie took up the pen again. " Because I'm already engaged to be married to Mr. Arthur" "Oh, this is dreadful!" she murmured, bending low over the paper. "To Mr. Arthur Everest.'" I said. "Now, all you have to do is to remain sign your name." So Winnie signed her name; then she leaned back in her chair and stared hard at what she had written. I drew a chair to her side and sat down. "And now?" I suggested.

"Of course Chateau de likely I could send him a letter of that kind." "Still it contains the truth." "It says that I am engaged to be married," she said, "and of course I am writer's residence. nothing of the kind." "You will be, Winnie."

A Raise In Salary.

Some years ago Collis P. Humington's private secretary, Mr. Miles, asked for an increase of salary. "Do you need any more money?" asked Mr. Huntington thoughtfully.

"No, sir, I don't exactly need it." plied Mr. Miles, "but, still, I'd be glad to be getting a little more." "Ah-hum-m-m," mused his employer. "Can you get along without the advance for the present?" "Oh, yes," answered the secretary, ary when you asked me before." "I never heard anything about it," said the secretary in amazement. "Probably not," returned Mr. Huntington. "In fact, I used that money to buy a piece of property for you. I'd just let it stand for awhile if I were

Mr. Miles thanked him warmly and retired somewhat mystified. Shortly August 31, 1900, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the after Mr. Huntington called him into his private office. "By the way, Miles," he said, "I have sold that real estate of yours at a pretty good advance. Here

A Live Bird on ner Hat.

One Chicago giri's hat made a sensation in the women's lunchroom at the Auditorium yesterday. She came in from Michigan avenue and stopped for a moment in the parlor. While there she noticed a young sparrow flutter in through the open window and wheel once or twice around the room. She felt it brush against her hat in its flight, but thought no more of it and passed on into the lunchroom. She had picked up the bill of fare and was reading it when she felt that some one was watching her, and, glancing around, she discovered that she was a focusing point for all the eyes in the immediate vicinity.

Of course she blushed and colored up and began to wonder at the cause of the people's interest. Just then the them in perfect health. Price 25 cts. walter, who had been hovering around, noticed her confusion and, bending down, whispered, "Pahdon me, miss,

And the waiter "shooed" the sparrow toward a nearby window, while the owner of the hat fixed it on straight and proceeded to order her luncheon. -Chicago News.

At certain times no one is allowed to travel on the same route as the sheep, which have a right to graze on all open and common land on the way and for which a road 90 yards wide must be left on all inclosed and private property. The shepherds lead the flocks, the sheep follow, and the flocks are accompanied by mules carrying provisions and large dogs which act as guards against the wolves. The merino sheep travel 400 miles to the mountains, and the total time spent on the migration there and back is 14 weeks.-Spectator.

Practical Politics For Infants.

The ingenious educational system known as the school city was invented by Wilson L. Gill, to whose efforts is largely due its success in Omaha, Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities. On one occasion a class of urchins was being taught the mysteries of election day. One boy was made a Democratic and a second a Republican inspector, two were made poll clerks, two watchers, two candidates, and so on. When all the tasks had been assigned, a square jawed little fellow looked up and said:

"Please, sir, I want to be a pollceman and club that curly headed poll clerk."-Saturday Evening Post.
