A WOMAN.

God did not make her very wise.

But carved a strangeness round her mouth; He put her great surrow in her ayes And softness for mon's souls in drouth, And on her face, for all to see, The seal of awful tragedy.

God did not make her very fair, flut white and lithe and strange and sweet; A subtle fragrance in her hair, A slender swittness in her feet, And in her hands a slow carea, God made those for my steadfastness

God did not give to her a heart, But there is that within her face To make men long to muse spart Until they goodness find and grace, And think to read and worship there all good, yet she is scarcely fair. -A. B. Miail in New York Tribuna.

"THE LOST CHORD."

How Sir Arthur Sullivan Came to

Write That Famous Melody, Colonel Robert E. Lee Wentling, a great traveler and musican, tells the following interesting story:

"It was while visiting the house of a nobleman in England that I first heard the story of the birth of 'The Lost every quarter of the globe and which such a thing as inspiration, that song was inspired.

"There are very few Englishmen who do not remember Fred Sullivan, the great comic star and brother of Sir Arthur Sullivan. He played in all the original Gilbert and Sullivan operas and has never been equaled. He was later followed by George Grossmith.

"One day Sir Arthur Sullivan was notified that his brother Fred was very Ill. He made every effort to reach the house where his brother was lying at the point of death, but arrived too late to see him alive. The two brothers were devoted to each other, and the blow was a bitter one for Sir Arthur. He was closeted with the body of his brother for two hours, at the expiration of which time he came down stairs and went to the piano. Throwing the instrument open, he began to play, and, bar by bar, 'The Lost Chord' was evolved. The composer sadly put his new composition on paper and stored it away.

"The song is the wall of a throbbing heart, the grief of desolation. All through its beautiful harmony can be heard the strain of grief. So profound an impression did the association of the song with the death of his brother make on Sir Arthur that he is said to have, even at this late day, an aversion to hearing it performed."-Baltimore

Gave Her a Begging Bowl.

Mme. Antoinette Sterling, the contralto singer and evangelist, had an experience in the Bombay presidency. India, which is as quaint as any of Kipling's tales of the hills. She was campaigning with Pundita Ramabal and through her magnificent voice was drawing thousands of natives to her meetings. They had never seen that kind of a missionary before and had never heard a voice like hers. They were so pleased with her work that they said to themselves:

for fear of giving offense to us she has omitted to put her begging bowl outside of her door for us to put in the customary contributions."

In India every guru, or holy person, carries a brass, wood or clay begging bowl, into which the devout put some small sum of money. Mme. Sterling walked out upon the veranda of her bungalow one morning, and there, to her amazement, found two begging bowls-one, a little one, with a few anmas in it, intended for the pundita and one, an enormous affair, containing a handsome sum of sunas and rupees for berself.

The only explanation she could ever extract from the servant was this: "Little bowl, little money for the little pundita with little voice; big bowl, big money for big missahib with big voice."-Saturday Evening Post.

A Quaint English Ceremony.

On the last day of each October the city solleitor of London, with an assisent, attends upon the royal remembrancer, when by proclamation, "the tenants and occupiers of a piece of waste ground called the moors, in the county of Salop," are commanded to "come forth and do your service apon pain and peril that shall fall thereon." The solicitor chops in halves two fagots, one with a hatchet and the other with a billhook. Afterward comes the summons to the tenants, etc., of "a certain tenement with a forge" in the Strand and the payment of six horseshoes, with 61 shoe nails, by the solicitor. This forge has long ceased to be, and the same shoes and nails are used year a/ter year, the shoes being at least two centuries old.

Curious Funeral Custom,

In Switzerland death is attended by a custom which calls upon all charitable and Christian people to show their sympathy. A notice edged with a wide black line appears in the daily papers setting forth the day and hour when sympathizers must assemble before the house of the deceased. At the time named a little cloth covered table, supporting a good sized jar, is stood before the house, table, cloth and jar all being of a somber, ebony hue, and into the latter small mourning cards, bearing the name and address of their owners, are deposited. The day the funeral takes place is the day selected for the exhibition of the jar. No ladies are allowed to follow at a Swiss funeral.
