Moody is making a better record for the length of time he has been in office than any other similar officer in the state. Harry always knows a man has violated threaten before he makes the arrest, and then pushes the case vigorously. Monday he arrested Roy Stootz and Wm. When asked whether or not he thought it advisable to sell at present figures, he replied by citing the following incident: "Seven years ago, Ralph Geer, uncle of our present governor, raised an enormous crop of hops near Silverton. Hop buyers offered him $1.00 per bushel for two years' crop and he held out for $1.25. The next year there was a slump in the hop market and he still held them. The second year he shipped them to New York and received 25 cents per bushel and had to pay the freight bill. This is all I have to say about holding hop crop."

DISSENSION AROSE.

Twenty Woolen Mill Employees Refuse to Toll or Spin. A dissension arose between the proprietors and employees of the Oregon City woolen mills Tuesday afternoon that resulted in 20 hands walking out of the spinning department. The spinners claim there was an attempt to cut their wages below living prices. On the other hand, the concern imputes that the employees tampered with the clock that registers their work, whereby they were able to show evidence of as much work in eight hours as they could have accomplished in ten if the clock had not been "fixed." They also claim they offered to change the system by which the spinners worked, whereby they would be paid by the pound, and also offered them $1.50 outright for a day's work, but they refused. The mills were compelled to send a man to Salem in quest of spinners. Wednesday morning some of the former employees returned to work, and it is thought a satisfactory adjustment will be reached. However, the mills will be shut down temporarily on account of the deficit in the spinning rooms interfering with all other departments.
