MORE INJUNCTION TROUBLE.

The Oregon City & Southern Still Having Trouble.

A man who builds a railroad from Oregon City to Canemah is as prone to trouble as are sparks to fly upward, is probably what President Fields is thinking these days. No sooner does he meet and surmount one obstacle than another presents itself. Last Saturday the O. C. & S. entered a motion in the circuit court to dissolve the injunction issued by the county court at the suit of G. W. Ganong et al. some time ago. The motion was argued at great length. W. W. Cotton, attorney for the O. R. & N., and C. D. Latourette appeared for the O. C. & S., and W. D. Fenton, of the S. P., and F. T. Griffith, for the plaintiffs. Judge McBride took the matter under advisement until Tuesday when he issued an order dissolving the injunction. Plaintiffs then moved for a new injunction, but Judge McBride overruled it.
The Oregon & California and the Southern Pacific companies, have now begun a suit in the circuit court to restrain the building of the Oregon City & Southern road. Their petition is voluminous, being composed of 21 large, typewritten pages. It goes back to the organization of Clackamas county and cites, all the acts that have been done in relation to granting franchises to the two railroads named above. It sets forth clearly that if the Canemah road is allowed to be built, all the foundations of liberty and justice will crumble and fall, and all the principles enumerated in the preamble to the constitution of the United States will be knocked into a cocked hat.
The fact that the O. R. & N. attorney is taking a hand in this matter has led many to suppose that the road has a large, prehensile finger in the pie. It may be that the Oregon City & Southern is only an entering wedge to allow the O. R. & N. to get into the Willamette valley.
Work on the construction of the new road was resumed Wednesday.

K. of P. Anniversary.

A jolly half-dozen Sir Knights from this city attended the 37th anniversary celebration of the organization of the order of Knights of Pythias at Aurora on Tuesday night. They were Mayor G. B. Dimick, R. L. Holman, Dr. Hoeye, Frank McGinnis and Mr. Kiser, of Oswego. The boys say they had a regular Pythian time, and give the Aurora boys the name of being royal entertainers.
Mayor Dimick delivered an address, from which the following extracts are quoted:
"We celebrate this evening the 37th anniversary of the organization of the order of Knights of Pythias. The initiative step of this order was Washington Lodge No. 1, organized in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 19th day of February, 1864. Justus Rathbone and a few associates launched the new lodge for weal or woe upon the stormy waters of the great civil war, when the country was rent as if torn by mighty internal conflict. There is nothing superficial, impractical or unusual in our order. Pythianism is a noble, practical reality. The regular meetings of the order are well designed for schools of instruction. Our order is advancing with rapid strides, and it appears from our observation that a great revival in our ranks is in progress.
In urging members to be studious and diligent in learning the lessons of Pythianism and in aspiring to high places in the order, the speaker warned them that "The Pythian helmet sits not on brows that never throbbed with anxiety to master its lessons; the Pythian shield has lost its meaning to the official who has not felt the burden of its thought."

When will the time come when "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will lose its charm to the rising generation? Judging by its present freshness, its alluring powers will be perennial. They teach us lessons in thoughtfulness and charity. They impress on our minds the precepts of the golden rule. Mrs. Stowe's book is one of the greatest books of literature, because it deals with questions of immeasurable human import, and the play itself is one of those simple masterpieces that can never die. If it does no more than to keep alive the memory of the rise and fall of one of the greatest inequities that history deals with, it was not written in vain. The Ed. F. Davis colossal Uncle Tom's Cabin company will appear at the opera house, one night only, Feb. 22. Seats on sale at Huntley's. Price 50 and 75 cents. Children 25.

OREGON CITY, Or., Feb. 13, 1901. Union Mutual Aid Society, Portland, Or., Gentlemen:

This is to certify that on Dec. 12, 1900, I became a member of your society through L. W. Ingram, your deputy organizer in this city, (office with H. W. Jackson, Main street). That from January 22 to February 9, 1901, I was totally disabled by sickness. Claim was presented at your office on February 11, and your check for $40, which I received today in full payment, bears date the 12th. Such promptness is certainly commendable, and I heartily recommend the society as in every way reliable. I am employed in the paper mills of this city. W. D. BOWERS.

For Young Men and Young Women.

There is nothing that will arouse the ire of a young man or woman so quick as to have inferior laundry work put off on them. They may dress ever so well, but if their shirt front or shirt waist is mussed their neat appearance is spoiled. The Troy laundry makes a specialty of ladies' and gentlemen's fine work. There can be no better work than is done at the Troy. Leave your orders at Johnson's barber shop.

JESSIE SHIRLEY COMING.

Another Wreck of this Popular Organization at Shively's Opera House.

The above announcement alone should be enough to fill the theatre next week for Miss Shirley and her company are favorites here and their popularity has been gained by merit alone. Good plays, well enacted, at prices within the reach of all will always command good patronage. The latter is necessary to the success of any undertaking, and realizing this, Miss Shirley has secured the former and the result can easily be foreseen.

The company's repertoire this season comprises some of the latest Eastern successes, fresh from the scenes of their initial triumphs which in the hands of this clever aggregation, are receiving magnificent productions.

"A Woman's Power," a strong English society drama will be the opening bill, Monday evening. This play was written by Robert Drouck, the author of "Dorris", for Miss Effie Ellster and that stars' success in it bids fair to place it among the standard works of this era.

Among the other plays to be presented are "The Country Girl," "The Ugly Duckling," "At the White Lion," "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and Shepard's celebrated Colonial play, "A Sheaf of Arrows"
