NEW CITIZENS OFTEN SHY.

They Fail to Qualify in Matters of General Knowledge
 "I just gave a man his full citizenship papers," said County Judge Ryan, "and I guess he is all right. I remember one man who came here and he certainly was not much of a citizen. He had an attorney with him. I asked him what he knew about this country and whether it was ruled by a king or a queen.
 "I don't know," said he, "but I think it is ruled by a queen."
 "Then I asked him if he had ever seen the constitution."
 "I can't say," was the reply. "I haven't seen any of them around my place yet."
 "Why do you want to become a citizen?" I asked.
 "So I can prove up on my place," was his answer.
 "I explained to him that the government did not care particularly about his proving up, but wanted him to know something about the constitution. He went away without his citizenship papers, but got them from Judge Bellinger at Portland the next day."
 Widow Bedott is looking for a husband. Perhaps you may fill the bill. Come and see her, Saturday night.
Funeral of Amos Field.
 The funeral of Amos Field took place Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. P. K. Hammond, of the Episcopal church, officiating. Amos Field was well known in Oregon City and highly respected as a skillful workman in the woolen mills for several years.
 He was born near Yorkshire, England, and learned his trade in the old country, having fine skill as a "dresser," which consists of preparing the warp for the loom and carrying out the designs and patterns in the weaving of cloth. Mr. Field became a citizen of Oregon about 1885, when he lived at Brownsville. He afterwards went to San Francisco for a short time, returning to Oregon City in 1887 to live. He bought a ranch near Grants Pass and went there for the benefit of his wife's health. Her health did not improve and both Mr. and Mrs. Field returned in 1890. Mrs. Field died the same year at the home of R. C. Ganong, her son-in-law, in Canemah.
 After the death of Mrs. Field, Amos Field worked but little in the woolen mill. He went to Europe in 1896, and spent a year visiting abroad and in New York. Returning in 1897, he has since made his home with his sons-in-law R. C. and J. W. Ganong. Mr. Field was 74 years of age. He leaves seven children. John is in New York, Mrs. Emma Ludington in Connecticut, Mrs. Mary Smith at Grants Pass, J. W. Field at Riddles, Ore., Mrs. R. C. Ganong at Canemah, Mrs. J. W. Ganong at Portland and William at Coquille City, Ore.

Local Events.

Come and visit the widow at Shively's opera house Saturday night.
 The Parklase W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. H. E. Cross next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All those interested in the work are invited to be present.
 Marriage licenses were issued this week to Miss Carrie Baty and John Stubbs, Miss Daisy Berdine and Jacob Ream, Miss Daisy Baxter and Edward Lorier.
 A. Fender, a young man employed in one of the paper mills, had his left hand badly crushed in the machinery last week. It became necessary to amputate two of his fingers.
 A. Peterson has sold to L. Gerlinger, 400 acres of land near Deep Creek for $3,000. Mr. Gerlinger owns a large tract of timber land in the same locality. He also bought 40 acres from M. Walton for $200.
 S. T. Fisher, chief of police at Canby, was a visitor at the Enterprise office last Tuesday. When Chief Fisher heard there were 57 divorce cases to be disposed of by Judge McBride in the circuit court, he wanted to know how many marriage licenses were being issued.
 Jacob Ream and Miss Daisy Berdine were married at Willamette Falls at five o'clock Wednesday evening by the Rev. R. A. Atkins, pastor of the M. E. church. The young couple are both well known, and their many friends offer congratulations.
 There was a red hot chicken fight on the West Side Wednesday afternoon. "Vinegar Bitters," the hero of a hundred battles, met "Old Blue" in mortal combat. It is probably unnecessary to say that "Vinegar Bitters" put another notch on his stick.
 C. F. Raiter and family, of Alexandria, Minn., stopped off this week on the way home from California, to visit T. F. Cowing, the attorney. Mr. Raiter and Mr. Cowing were boys together in Minnesota and they enjoyed a pleasant remembrance of old times.
 Judge J. W. McNulty is the father of another bouncing baby girl, that arrived Wednesday. When babies were a new thing to the judge, he used to celebrate their arrival by buying suits of clothes for his friends. Now he buys good cigars for everybody and calls it square.
 The entertainment and dance given by the Daughters of the King of St. Paul's Episcopal church, last Friday, at Armory, was a decided success. The affair was in charge of Mrs. H. S. Moody and Miss Harding, and to them is due the credit of a pleasant evening spent by the young people of the town. The net proceeds of the evening amounted to about $24.
 In the payment of the bicycle tax, the owners of wheels should not forget that the tax is designed to improve bicycle paths in that particular part of the county where the tax is paid. By an order of the County Board, the tax is applied in the several precincts where it is paid, and is devoted to the improvement of paths all over the county.
 For some time there has been an undecurrent of excitement up on the hill in the vicinity of Elyville. Certain persons received through the mail pieces of brown paper on which had been drawn some vile pictures. The matter was turned over to the Postoffice Department, and an inspector came to investigate. As a result of the investigation a number of citizens have been called before the United States grand jury at Portland. The evidence offered bears upon the guilt or innocence of two young men who are accused of being implicated in the sending of the obscene pictures through the mail.
 You will miss a treat if you fail to hear the Telford Quintett at the M. E. church Friday night.
