The disfranchisement of the negro in the South is not unmixed with good. Most of the states provide for an educational qualification. In Maryland this results is shutting out a large class of illiterate voters, although it was primarily aimed at the negroes. Tennessee is talking of following this same plan. In fact this agitation in the South caused by the negro vote is assuming proportions that will result in doing much toward bringing about an educational qualification for the voter. It cannot be denied but this would be a right move and result in better government.
