Death Guleh.

A ravine in the northeast corner of Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming, is known by those living near by as Death gulch. Grewsome as is the name, it is exceedingly appropriate. It is a V shaped trench cut in the mountainside and begins about 250 feet above Cache creek. Apparently it forms a natural shelter for the beasts of the forest, as food, water and shelter are there, but entrance to the guleb means death to any animal, for the polsonous vapors that rise out of the ravine are more deadly than the bullets of the huntsmen.

For ages this death trap in the Rocky mountains has probably been luring the inhabitants of the forest to their doom. With the rains of spring the bones of the dead of the preceding year are carried down to the creek and the guich cleared for the death buryest of the summer and winter.

The geologists say that the lavas which fill the ancient basin of the park at this place rest upon the flanks of mountains formed of fragmentary voleanie ejects. Gaseous emanations are given out in great volume. These come, the scientists any, from deposits of altered and crystalline travertine mixed with pools in the creek. Above these deposits the creek cuts into a bank of sulphur. In the bottom of the gully is a small stream sour with sulphurle

No wonder the poor animals seeking shelter in the guich meet death there.

A curious labyrinth in which elephonts are enplured alive is to be seen near Ayuthin, formerly the capital of Siam. The labyrinth is formed of a double row of immense tree trunks set firmly in the ground, the space between them gradually narrowing.

Where it begins, at the edge of the forest, the opening of the inbyrinth is more than a mile wide, but as it appronches Ayuthis it becomes so narrow that the elephants cannot turn around.

Suspecting no danger the wild elephant enters the broad opening at the forest end, jured on by a tame elephant. The gradual narrowing of the boundaries is not observed until the elephant finds bimself in close quarters. Having reached the end of the labyrinth, the tame elephant is allowed to pass through a gate, while men lying in wait slip shackles over the feet of the captives. The sport is a dangerous one, for the enraged elephants sometimes crush the hunters under their

The prosecuting attorney in a lawsuit had waxed especially indignant at the defendant, whom he characterized as an "abandoned, baneful, cynical, diabolic, execrable, felonious, greedy, hateful, irresponsible, jaundiced, knavish, lazy, meddlesome, noxious, outrageous and profligate rowdy."

"The learned counsel on the other You must have noticed, gentlemen of, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure ginning with 'a.' He stopped at 'p.'

> > A Bright Jury.

In a larceny case in Maine it was agreed to go on with only 11 men on the jury. The trial lasted several hours, and then the jury retired to deliberate upon the evidence and find a verdict. After being out four hours the jury reported that it could not agree, and accordingly it was discharged from further duty in the case, and the prisoner was remanded to the jail. A little later the attorneys for the respondent "got at" one of the jurymen and asked him how the vote stood in the Jury room.

"Well," said be, "we balloted about 20 times, and each time there were 11 votes for conviction, but at no time could we get 12 votes for conviction, so we had to report a disagreement."

A Bit of Bowery Dialogue.

This gem of metropolitan English le vouched for by the New York correspondent of the Pittsburg Commercial

I heard this bit of dialogue between two Bowery hoodlums the other day: Said one as he pointed to his shiny black trousers: "Oh, Chimmy, howcher like me blacks?"

"All right," was the response, "but dey ain't ez good ez yer lightest.' "G'wan, yer guy; git wise. Dese is dose, only I had 'em dyed." And then they got aboard a car.

How to Quit Chewing Tobacco. The "substitute cure" is worthy of the attention of sufferers. We have a ritizen of Mobile who has tried it. He was an inveterate chewer of tobacco. Miss Lillie Degenkolbe, Treasurer South End Society of Christian Endeavor, 3141 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - When life looked brightest to me I sustained a hard fall and internal complications were the result. I was considerably inflamed, did not feel that I could walk, and lost my good spirits. I spent money doctoring without any help, when a relative visited our home. She was so enthusiastic over Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, having used it herself, that nothing would satisfy her until I sent for a bottle. I have thanked her a hundred times for it since, for it brought blessed health to me and cured me within seven weeks.

I now wish to thank you, your medicine is a friend to suffering women."-LILLIE DEGENKOLBE.

Limewater.

Limewater has so many uses it is hard to classify. It is good to soften water, to sweeten drains, to keep milk vessels wholesome, to make milk itself sit well upon delicate stomachs, to test air for excess of carbonic acid-if there is too much carbonic acid present, the clear limewater instantly crusts overto take out marks left by grease spots which have been removed by stronger alkalis-in fact, for so many things it should always be kept on band. Mixed with either sweet or linseed oil to a creamy consistence, it is the very best if costs practically no more than the trouble of making. Put a lump of quicklime as big as the two fists in a clean earthen pitcher, cover it six inches deep with clean cold water, stir with a wooden spoon and let it stand six bours. Pour off the clear liquid without disturbing the lime, but let it run through double cheesecloth. Put in small bottles and cork tight. In using always pour off half an inch from the top of a bottle that has stood.

Infortunate Deduction.

Sergeant Kelly of the Irish bar in the early years of the nincteenth century used to indulge in a picturesque eloquence, racy of the soil, but unfortunately he would sometimes forget the line of argument and would always fall back on the word "therefore," which generally led his mind back to what he had intended saying. Sometimes, however, the effort was almost disastrous.

One time he had been complimenting the jury, assuring them that they were men of extraordinary intelligence and then branched off into a statement of his case. With a wave of his hand and a smile on his face he proceeded:

"This is so clear a case, gentlemen, that I am convinced you felt it so the very moment I stated it. I should pay men of intelligence a poor compliment to dwell on it for a minute, therefore I shall proceed to explain it to you as minutely as possible."-Green Bag.

Cleaning Furniture,

Where a piece of furniture is very much soiled and requires to be cleaned and polished, first wash it thoroughly with warm soapy water, washing only a small surface at a time and drying it quickly by rubbing it hard with a flannel. Mix together one pint of linseed oll and a half pint of kerosene, wet a flannel with the oil mixture and rub the cleaned furniture, Rest half an hour before taking a fresh piece of flannel and then by vigorous rubbing polish the wood until it shines like glass. This will not injure the nicest wood and is an easy method of keeping furniture bright. The odor soon disappears if the windows are left open.

Banks Ready For Emergencies, To meet sudden and unexpected demands upon banks a large sum is kept ready for use. The average large bank-say with total assets of $20,000. 000-is prepared by four lines of de fense to resist sudden attack. In the vault or safe about $500,000 in bank bills is always on hand, back of that is a cash reserve of perhaps $1,500,000 deposited in various business banks subject to instant call, back of that again is perhaps $8,000,000 in United States and other gilt edged securities immediately marketable, and the fourth and last line of defense and to be retired upon only in extreme distress is $6,000, 000 or $8,000,000 in bonds and mortgages, on which the mortgagers will be burriedly called to make a payment on account if the bank is pushed to extremities. With such resources disaster would seem impossible, though it has come to the best fortified institu-

Monument to a Pig.

No stranger monument ever existed than that which was erected at the Hotel de Ville by the inhabitants of Luneburg, in Hanover, in honor of a pig. This, which took the form of a kind of mausoleum, contained a large glass case in which was bermetically inclosed a fine ham cut from the animal whose memory was to be handed down to posterity. Above was a bandsome slab of marble, on which, engraved in letters of gold, was the following inscription in Latin: "Passersby, contemplate here the mortal remains of the pig which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Lune-

Changed His Tune.

It is said that when President Polk visited Boston he was impressively received at Fancuil Hall market. The clerk walked in front of him down the length of the market announcing in loud tones: "Make way, gentlemen, for the president of the United States. The president of the United States! Fellow citizens, make room!"

The chief had stepped into one of the stalls to look at some game, when the clerk turned round suddenly and, finding himself alone, suddenly changed his tone, and exclaimed: "My gracious! Where has that darned idiot got to?"
