I was running on fast freight as firenan, and my engineer was a man namd Colville. He was ten years my senor and also an old bachelor. Jim was what everybody called a square man. He had lots of sentiment for a plain, meducated man and a conscience so ender that he wouldn't have knowingy burt the feelings of an Indian. He was a sort of "daddy" for 200 miles along the line and had the esteem of officials and men alike. The idea that Jim would fall in love at his age would nave been laughed to scorn by all who snew him, and yet he not only "went soft" on a girl, but made the mistake hat old bachelors often do. I helped to get old Jim's crushed and mutilated body out, and I helped to get out the crushed and mutilated bodies of his wife and Frazer, but it was days before I got at the true facts in the use. Finding himself betrayed, the old man had deliberately brought about the collision that he might have revenge on the guilty pair and be wiped out at the same time. If he thought of the innocent who would suffer as well, he had no pity. He must have inted the whole world as well as those who had directly wronged him. It was an awful thing he did, but he offered his own life with the sacrifice. and somehow I have always felt that even though be presented such a cost calm front to me, the fires of insanity must have been blazing in his brain every minute after reading that telegram.

The American an Octoroon.

The average adult American is a statistical octoroon. If the blood in the veins of all our people, white and black, were pooled and redistributed, each person would have about seven parts white and one part negro blood. The white strain in him, moreover, is by no means purely American. White strains of foreign origin, derived from Germany, Ireland, Scandinavia, Canada, Great Britain and the countries of southern Europe, are collectively more powerful in his composition than is the negro strain. Thus, going back only one generation, we find him to be a composite, the creation of widely differing bloods and nationalities. The peoples of the earth, from the Kongo under the equator to the North cape of Europe, have contributed, either immediately or retnotely, to his composition. But with it all we find the Anglo-Saxon strain the dominant one. His political lastitutions, his laws, his social conditions and his mental characteristics, his power of initiative and his independence of thought and action are Anglo-Saxon, sharpened and intensified by fresh contact with nature under new and untried conditions. It is a strange and a gratifying thing to witness, in connection with this mixture of blood, the complete deminance of the Anglo-Saxon strain, and it argues well for its strength and vitality as well as for the welfare of the country which he occupies and governs.-Everybody's Magazine.

Most of the new houses in Bombay have a fine show of windows on the outside, but no corresponding opening to allow a current of air to pass through. The mean annual temperature is 79.13 degrees F., and the mean relative humidity 77 per cent. The mean annual range of temperature is 46.9 degrees, but there are periods during the rains when the discosl range of temperature does not exceed 2 degrees, and, unless there is wind, ventilation is practically stopped because the outer air and that in the buildings are reduced to nearly one temperature.

With the thermometer at 82 to 84 degrees, and the air heavily charged with mobsture, the surplus heat of the human body escapes too slowly, and much discomfort ensues. As it is not possible to dry the nir in an ordinary house, the usual remedy is to produce a current by means of a punka, and nithough the influence of this is very local, it has been found that in the worst Rombay weather life is made tolerable in its current.
