Lunch Prices and Dinner Prices. Any one who will take the trouble to compare the lunch and dinner menu cards of some of the leading restaurants of New York will make a rather surprising discovery. He will ascertain that the prices on many dishes are cut on the dinner card from 10 cents to 20 cents.

A gentleman whose curiosity was aroused by this singular practice to the extent that he went to the head waiter for a more satisfactory reason than the table walter could advance was given this explanation;

"You see," said the walter, "the generality of men don't care for a heavy lunch. One dish and a glass of milk or a cup of coffee, with bread and butter, are sufficient for there; consequently to prevent them from getting off to cheap we have to put up the price of single dishes. At dinner time it is different. A man wants a number of dishes for dinner, and so we can afford to make our meats and fish cheaper.'

"But do you think that is exactly"-"Honest? Why not? It is always honest to take what people are willing to pay you for what you have to sell, is it not?"-New York Times.

Why Hindoos Don't Go Mad.

Why are there so few lunatic asy lums and so small a proportion of insame persons in India? That is a question which many a traveler has wonderingly asked.

The Hindoos regulate their lives en-125 tirely in accordance with their religionthat is, their working, eating, sleeping. as well as what we usually regard as our "life" in the religious sense of the word. Everything is arranged for them. and they follow the rules now just as 800 they did 2,000 years ago. This constant observance of the same rules for twenty centuries has molded the brains of the race into one shape, as it were, and although their rites are queer enough. yet there is but an occasional example of that striking deviation from the common which is called insanity in countries inhabited by the white race. They are fatalists too. With them it is a case of "what is to be will be" carried to the extreme. This has in the given them the power to take all things calmly and so freed them from the anxiety that drives so many white men into the lunatic asylums.

Met His Match.

That well known historical personage, Augustus the Strong, elector of Saxony, has furnished the subject for many a tale of his wonderful muscular power. We need refer only to one characteristic story in which, however, he met his match. On the oceasion in question he entered a blacksmith's shop. To show his suit how strong he was, picking up several horseshoes, he broke one after the other, asking the blacksmith whether he had no better. When it came to paying the bill, the Elector Augustus threw a six dollar County, can furnish information as to piece on the anvil. It was a very tulek coln. The blacksmith took it up, broke it in half, saying, "Pardon me but I have given you a good horseshoe.

and I expect a good coin in return." Another six dollar piece was given him, but he broke that and five or six others, when the humiliated elector put an end to the performance by handling the blacksmith a louisd'or, pacifying him by saying. "The dollars were probably made of bad metal, but this goldplece, I hope, is good."

Searching For a Soul.

Before the astonished eyes of a number of Parisians a singular funeral cer emony too'z place the other day.

A resident property owner in the Rue Malte-Brun had just died. On the evening of his death, when darkness had failen, his relations, five or six in number, each provided with a fantern, slowly made the circuit of the garden, as if they were searching for something in the walks. When they came to a large heap of stones, they turned each one of them over and then re-entered the house.

This curious procession is an old Norman custom. The dead person was a native of the country near Gisors. Before interring the dead it is necessary according to the tradition, to investigate and see that the soul of the deceased is not concealed in a corner of his property or under some rubbish.

Eggs of Crabs and Lobsters. Crabs and lobsters are hatched from eggs, resembling upon birth nothing so much as the animalculæ shown by the microscope in a drop of ditch water. They are as unlike the shellfish they are to become in mature life as a grub is unlike a butterfly. In the case of the crab the egg clusters are attached beneath the animal after extrusion. while with the lobster they become fastened to the tall, which, by its fanning motion, increases the stream of oxygenated air through and among the 870
