In the course of do-ing so he said, "But, Mr. —, isn't there a reef of rocks that would be a great inconvenience to you?"

"Oh, yes," replied the witness, "Uncontrolly there is, but we propose to get rid of it in such and such a man-

"Very good," rejoined Coleridge, "but when you have got rid of it, would there not be a very awkward sand bank to contend with?"

"Certainly," said the witness, "but against it we should provide thus and

"Well," answered Coleridge, "but when you have removed both these obstacles would you not still have a great deal of trouble from the current of the river when in flood?"

"Clearly," was the answer, "but we should encounter that difficulty successfully by another expedient," which the witness proceeded to explain.

"You have seen the place, have you not?" said Coleridge.

"Oh, yes," replied the other. "Well, I never did," was the rejoinder. "I have invented alike the reef, the sand bank and the river!"

The Tunnel Was Forgottes.

At Brussels the visitor is often struck by the extreme thinness of the earth covering the Braine le Comte tunnel and wonders why the common sense of the engineers who made the line did not direct them to continue the cutting and thus avoid a subterranean pas-

The mystery is thus explained; When rallways were in their veriest infancy, the Belgian government sent a party of engineers over to England to acquire experience in construction of the new fron highways, and on their return they were instructed to lay out the first railway in that enterprising little kingdom. The work was accordingly put in hand, but on its completion one of the engineers exclaimed:

"Good gracious, we have forgotten the tunnel!"

The consternation was general, especially when it was remembered that there was not a single line in England but could boast of a tunnel. What was to be done? Nothing but to construct the long corridor at Braine le Comte, and when it was finished the earth was put on top. The tunnel was the glory of the line.

Massage For the Scalp.

The hair falls out when the strength of its roots is insufficient to sustain its weight any longer, and a new hair will take its place unless the root is diseased. For this reason each person has a certain definite length of bair. When the hair begins to split or fall out, massage of the scalp is excellent.

Place the tips of the fingers firmly upon the scalp, and then vibrate or move the scalp while holding the pressure steadily. This will stimulate the blood vessels underneath and bring the The greatest amount of precipitation blood vessels underneath and bring recorded in any 24 consecutive hours about better nourishment of the hair. A brush of unevenly tufted bristles is also excellent to use upon the scalp, not the hair.

Irregularity and Indigestion,

A common cause of indigestion is irregularity respecting the time of meals. The human system seems to form habits and to be in a degree dependent upon the performance of its function in accordance with the habits formed. In respect to digestion this is especially observable. If a meal is taken at a regular hour, the stomach becomes accustomed to receiving food at that hour and is prepared for it.

If meals are taken irregularly, the stomach is taken by surprise, so to speak, and is never in that state of readiness in which it should be for the prompt and perfect performance of its menon of the fire was the quick & of childlike sequolas only a centur two ago, says John Muir in The Al tic. In the midst of the other comtively slow and steady fire work of these tall, beautiful saplings, leafy; branchy, would be seen blazing up denly all in one beaving, booming, sionate flame reaching from the gr to the top of the tree and fifty a hundred feet or more above it, w smoke column bending forward streaming away on the upper free h
