The first returns that came indicated that Chamberlain was elected governor by a small plurality but the later returns are favorable to Furnish and his election is now claimed.

Clackamas County has gone Republican for the entire state, legislative and county ticket by pluralities ranging from 150 to 1500. Furnish may be defeated for governor, but carries the county by about 400. The pluralities will be somewhat larger and Tongue, for congress, will have a majority of about 1500 over Weatherford. Dunbar, secretary of state, Bean, supreme judge, Moore, state treasurer, Ackerman, superintendent of public instruction, Crawford, attorney general and Whitney, state printer, polled the full party vote, as elsewhere in the state, and are elected by substantial majorities. Herbert Holman, Jr., for joint senator with Multnomah and C. W. Nottingham, for joint representative, carried the county and are elected.

State Senator George C. Brownell has a plurality of about 600. All three of the members of the lower house of the legislature are Republicans. The only office that was at all close was clerk and Sleight receives a plurality of about 150. Stevens, for recorder, will have a plurality of about 1500. All along the line the Republicans were successful and a tabular vote by precincts is given in this issue. In the state the initiative and referendum is carried by a large majority. Furnish was slaughtered in his own home county and lost Union, Linn, Multnomah, Douglas. He was knifed in Marion by the Geer forces, in Portland by the Simon people, in Umatilla by the Lowell men and in Wasco by the Moody faction. These things combined to down him. Clackamas County did her part toward electing a Republican governor in spite of the claims of the fusionists that Furnish would have less than 200 plurality here.

In Justice District No. 4, taking the precincts of Oregon City, West Oregon City, Abernethy, Canemah and Maple Lane, Lavy Stipp is elected Justice of the Peace over John W. Loder and Harry S. Moody is re-elected Constable over Henry Cooke. The result was expected in Clackamas County though the enormous majorities exceeded even the most sanguine expectations. The fusionists are completely beaten. Hedges and Cooper ran ahead of their ticket but even they were swamped in the landslide of Republican votes. The election in this county teaches the lesson that a modeling campaign does not make votes. It shows that the peo-

THE UNVEILING OF A STATUE

Memory of Count Rochambeau Honored in Washington.

100,000 PEOPLE WERE PRESENT

United States and France Joined In Making the Occasion One Long To Be Remembered.

WASHINGTON D. C., May 31, 1902.—For anyone who enjoys seeing the world go by in varied form Washington affords rare opportunity. The business world of New York keeps up constant interest, for always there is some especial attraction, yet I can well remember when New York was but a village compared with what it is today, for it had no Croton water, no gas lights, and ocean steamers were in their infancy. I saw the first screw steamer of 3500 tons enter the harbor, but it was a failure, as commerce had no use for such great ships. Portland, Oregon, was then unnamed, while now steamers of 10,000 tons leave there with full cargoes. Since my youth New York has grown to possess all that wealth can create and money buy as well as intense misery there was no idea of in those early years. Besides being the National Capital, Washington is to be the seat of all learning, and in many ways will be famous among the Capitals of the world. It is but in its adolescence today, but the future is being anticipated and provided for—a future that destiny will make famous the wide world over. Already its changing scenes are as vivid as the scintillations of the kaleidoscope. Lately Prince Henry, of Prussia, enjoyed here the truest recognition, and deserved it, for he was as unpretending a clever fellow as Republicans can desire. Now we have representatives of the families of Rochambeau and Lafayette to witness the unveiling of the statue of the Rochambeau who commanded the French allies when Cornwallis surrendered in 1781.

Writes to a Friend in This City of His Work in Arkansas.

The following extracts are taken from a personal letter to a friend from Archdeacon Williams, who was for some time rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in this city, some years ago: "Mrs. Williams and our daughter Mary will leave Little Rock for New York City, for the summer vacation June 2, and I shall leave a month later. Our son, William, is a student in the University of the South Sewanee, Tenn., and as that institution has no vacation in summer, he will remain with his studies, and join us in New York. The protracted vacation of that institution takes place in the winter from December 17 to March 17. During the last season he was home, and had charge of two Mission Chapels in the city of Little Rock. You will be interested in knowing that I am to have charge of St. Stephen's Church, New York City, during my summer vacation of three months—the same church which I supplied last summer. In fact, I was tendered my choice of two churches. If it were not for the long vacation in the north in the cooling breezes of Washington Heights, I doubt if I could endure the protracted heat of the Arkansas valleys, where Cotton is King.

It has been my privilege to hold services during the past year in thirty-four of the seventy-five counties of the state. To accomplish this humble service it has been necessary to travel nearly twenty thousand miles within the state. To the youthful mind which views the commercial traveller with his array of trunks and valises, as an individual to be envied, this is an inspiring statement. And to an occasional stranger, in some inland hamlet, when an Archdeacon has never been seen, your correspondent is almost as lordly a potentate as the first passenger conductor ever seen by the rural citizen, with his blue uniform and brass buttons, and look so stern, and face so serious. But I have always found a welcome, true and warm; and a more intimate knowledge of my work has invariably dispelled many persistent and sundry illusions and dissipated scores of harmless suspicions. The people are familiar with the gospel, and are inclined to hear gladly any preacher. The more I see and the more I know, the more kind and real seem the words of Bishop Potter when he said, "I am jealous for the moral standards of plain people."

Arkansas is destined to be great. New railroads are building in almost every direction, and others are in contemplation. They are building over valleys and swamps, across ponds and streams, where the original settler paddled his skin and caught cat-fish and ague at the same time, and still lives to tell the story. The possibilities of development are here; the people are coming; enterprise is organizing and capital is investing.

Very cordially yours,
W. D. WILLIAMS.
