Marriages Without Money. The poet and divine, John Donne, who became dean of St. Paul's in 1821,

He Left Them.

On the afternoon of Winslow's de parture for Denver he was paying his bill, when he called Willie, hanging to instingly near.

"I want you," he said slowly, glaring into the boy's eyes, "to go upstairs and see if I left my toothbrush and comb in my room. Toothbrush and comb, toothbrush, toothbrush, toothbrush! Don't forget what I want, boy, and hurry, too. Got i get my train."

"N-no, sir-r; y-yes, sir," chattered Willbe.

Winslow hung about impatiently, watching the clock like a hawk. Only two minutes to spare, Just as he caught up his bag to depart Willie came on a dead run across the floor, his face aglow with the sense of a lofty mission well performed.

Fish Blowing Bait Up the Line.

How on earth or in the water fish ontrive to blow large balts three or four yards up the line has yet to be explained. It is a common thing to find large slabs of pilchard balt used for pollack blown right up the line by large fish. This happens only when the pollack is itself hooked. I have recently found that large bass serve one the same trick, writes a correspondent. but in this case the bass, which is a more cumuling fish than the pollack, sometimes gets away. To realize the Immense difficulty of such a feat let any one put even a piece of paper on a hook and endeavor the blow it up the line with a bellows. Much more difficult it must be with the resistance of the water, and by what muscular ac tion the fish contrives it I know not. 1 have searched the textbooks in vain for some hint on the subject.-London Opinion.

The Word "Pienie."

Few people know the original mean ing of the word "picnic." It is to be found set out in the 1, adon Times of hundred years ago. "A picule supper consists of a variety of dishes, The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maître d'hotel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much plead · mirth. but generally can boast of the refine ment of the art."

Where He Rode.

A schoolboy who was going to a par ty was cautioned by his father not to walk home if it mined and was given money for cab hire. It rained heavily, and great was the father's surprise when his son, in spite of the instructions he had received, arrived home drenched to the skin.

"Did you not take a cab as 1 ordered you, Alfred?" the parent asked | looked around to learn the cause of her Urban Longevity.

That the country is the place to acquire and preserve health is a theory that has been exploded by the United States census statistics. We have heretofore been advised to go to the hills and vales, the field and woodland, the lake and river, where there is an uninterrupted prospect and the air of heaven has a free sweep, but now this advice must be changed and the pent up eithes recommended for health, if the census authorities are right.

According to the official figures the city has a decided advantage over the rural districts in the matter of human longevity. The average age reached in the cities is 38.2 years and in the country 31.1. There the urban has an advantage of 7.1 years over the suburban. The advantage of pure air in the country is apparently more than offset by sanitary and food advantages in the

A Rospitable Heathen.

It was high noon and Monday, Worse yet, it was the thirteenth day of the month. A knock was heard at the kitchen door of the Burns mansion. The Chinese servant opened the door. A tramp of long and varied experience accosted him:

"I've been traveling and have played mighty hard luck," observed the łn. tramp. "I lost all of my money, and now I'm hungry-very, very hungry. Can't you please give me a little bite of something to ent?"

The Chinaman comprehended the sitnation at ence. A benevolent, placid smile spread itself over his entire countennuce.

"You like flish?" he asked of the tramp.

Yes, I like fish first rate. That will do as well as anything."

Born and Died the Same Day.

"Horn and died on the same day" is true of the following conspicuous men: Shakespeare was born April 23, 1564, and died April 23, 1616. Raphael Segio d'Urbino, the great artist, was born on Good Friday, 1483, and died on Good Friday, 1520, aged thirty seven. Good Friday Is a movable feast to the day of the month may not have been the same. Sir Thomas Browne, author of "Religio Medich" was born Oct. 19, 1605, and died Oct. 19, 1682 Timothy Swan, composer, was born July 23, 1758, and died July 23, 1812. St. John of God, one of the most eminent of Portuguese saints, was born March 8, 1495, and died March 8, 1550. John Soblesk), king of Poland, who delivered Vienna from the Turks, was born June 17, 1620, and died June 17, 1696,

A "Tragedy."

A Missouri paper gives an account of an amusing little "tragedy" which it claims occurred in its town. A man and his wife were riding home on a street car. He was reading his paper, when another lady got on. The car was crowded, and without glancing up he arose and gave her his seat, receiv ing a gracious sinlle in payment. The man's wife immediately got up, gave the bellrope a hard jerk and invited her husband to get off. When he inger, he discovered that the woman to whom he had given his seat was his first wife, whom he had divorced two years before. They walked the rest of the way home, and he is still expinining.

Railroad Time Tables. The genius to arrange a railroad time eard or time table, so that it may be readily, easily and accurately understood by the occasional traveler is, not yet born. Perhaps he will have to be made. But no matter how much the patrons of a road may be mystified the management takes particular pains to supply a special card "for the govcrament and information of employees only" This table is so simple that a child can understand it. The second rage usually contains a table showing the rate of speed required per mile for a train to travel a given number of miles in an hour. It starts at fifteen miles an hour, which is four minutes to the mille, and goes as high as 100 miles an hour, or a mile in thirty-six seconds, and shows 200 subdivisions. This card gives locations of regular water stations, yard limits, situations of standard clocks, maximum speed of freight trains between different towns, what days are holidays, speeds at which trains may cross bridges at various hours and a list of all stations and trains. It is likely, of course, that were similar cards furnished to the traveling public there would be no abatement of fool questions. Besides, It is not to the interest of a railroad company to take the public too entirely into its confidence.--New York Press.

Who Executed Charles L7.

In the burial register of Whitechapel under the year 1640 is the following entry:

"June 21st. Richard Brandon, a man out of Rosemary lane. This Brandon is held to be the man who beheaded Charles the First."

A less distinguished candidate for the infamy was one William Howlett, actually condemned to death after the restoration for a part he never played and only saved from the gallows by the urgent efforts of a few citizens who swore that Brandon did the deed. Brandon was not available for retribution. He had died in his bod six months after Charles was behended and had been hurried ignominiously into his grave in Whitechapel churchyard. As public executioner of London he could hardly escape his destiny, but It is said that remorse and horror shortened his days. In his supposed "Confession," a tract widely circulated at the time, he claims that he was "fetched out of bed by a troop of horse" and carried against his will to the scaffold; also that he was paid £30, all in half crowns, for the work and had "an orange stuck full of cloves and a handkerehler out of the king's pocket." The orange he sold for 10 shillings in Rosemary lane .- Harper's Magazine.

A Dumas Story.

The younger Dumas once went to Villers Cotterets, his father's untive village, to the unveiling of a statue to the creator of "The Three Musketcers," At the banquet in the evening the younger Dumas sat next to one of the oldest inhabitants who, in perfect good nature, but without any tact, began to tell a story of Dumas pere.

"Ah," said he, "he was a gay soul, your father! How we loved him. He was so kind hearted and generous. The last time he came to Villers Cotterets he gave a banquet in the Hotel de Ville. He forgot for some time after to pay the blil. See that fat man over there? He was the butcher who furnished the feast. I should not be surprised if the meat were still owing to him. But that is nothing. He is proud to this day of being the purveyor to Alexandre Dumas."

Checking a Remorrhage.

Even a very slight hemorrhage is always startling, but it does not neceswarity mean anything dangerous. It may be caused by a slight disarrangement of the stomach as well as by a disease of the lungs or heart. No one but an experienced physician should decide this question, however. Let the patient lie quietly and give him cold drinks until a physician comes. A little saited water is a simple, famillar household remedy for such cases, Quiet and rest are positively essential if the enuse is a serious one.

Turkish Cemeteries.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cometeries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have hasins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everybody else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.
