After a late hour they all departed to their homes wishing all a merry Christmas and happy New Year.

Last Saturday evening some of the Needyttes crimped their hair (or had their sisters do it for them) blacked their shoes and went to the basket social at all rendered by the school and young people of the district. The school was well trained by the teacher. Miss Alice Ritter, for there was not a failure in the ciated by the audience. After the exer cises the baskets were sold, Mr. Fred gins Watson being the auctioneer, and he kept the boys pretty busy guessing and budding on the baskets supposed to beong to their best girls as containing the best things to eat. We are not certain which was the attraction but we do know that the auctioneer was in a brown study been near enough to him we think we could have seen his eyes water too, as those fragrant smelling baskets slipped through his fingers to the highest bidder and before he had time to get in his own bid the last one had slipped away.

Luxury as a madudicap. The history of our country is a record of the successes of poor boys who seemed to be hopelessly shut off from books, culture and education, except that of the most menger kind-from almost every opportunity for mental development. The youthful Franklins, Lincolns, Humiltons, Carfields, Grants and Claytons-those who become presidents, lawyers, statesmen, soldiers, orn-tors, merchants, educators, journalists, inventors, giants in every department of life-how they stand out from the pages of history, those poor boys, an inspiration for all time to those who are born to fight their way up to their own loge

The youth who is reared in a huxurlbirth is whited on by an army of servants, pampered and indulged by overfond parents and deprived of every incentive to develop himself mentally or physically, although commonly regarded as one to be envied, is more to be pitied than the poorest, most humbly born boy or girl in the land. Unless he is gifted with an unusual mind he is in danger of becoming a degenerate, a parasite, a occuture who lives on the kabor of others, whose powers ultimately atrophy from disting.-Success.
