The Methodist church at last begins to appear like a structure having a well-defined design and shape. The rooms now begin to appear and in a little while longer large plate glass windows are to be put in to cover the whole front of the structure. The building was at first thought to be too high up to present a pleasing appearance but since the foundation has been laid a d since the brick work and the lower commences to show, the appearance will be more pleasing than was at first thought.

Wm. Boring, of Boring, came into town Wednesday, and when seen by a reporter said that the little village of Boring was on the boom. He said that the new electric line would very soon be running through the place and before long he prophesied that there would be a real little town at Boring, up-to-date and flourishing. Mr. Boring is an old soldier. He fought for his country in sixty-five and bears the marks of injuries received while thus engaged. He now owns a fine farm at Boring and is a thrifty husbandman of the soil.

Sunday night Rev. E. S. Bollinger held a pleasing sacred song service at his church to a crowded audience. It is the beginning of Mr. Bollinger's fifth year as pastor of the church and the service was to celebrate the event. Mr. Bollinger is one of a very few pastors who have been pastor of the church for a period extending over four years and the fact that he is again employed reflects much just credit on him. Since coming to this city he has made many admiring friends and they extend to him a cordial welcome to this the beginning of another years series.

Some British Lawmaking.

It may surprise some folks to learn that plenty of British laws have been drawn up so carelessly and written in such muddled language that they are quite useless for their intended purpose.

One of the acts passed in George III's reign, for instance, states that the proceeds of penalties were to be given half to the informer and half to the poor of the parish. The absurdity lies in the fact that the only penalty which could be inflicted was one of transportation for fourteen years.

In 1895 a well known Q. C. created a lot of amusement by proposing an amendment worded as follows: "Every dog found trespassing on inclosed land unaccompanied by the registered owner of such dog or other person, who shall on being asked for his true name and address may be then and there destroyed by such occupier or by his orders." This gem of meaninglessness was, however, not passed.—London Tit-Bits.

Elony, the Wood of Kings. While many of the hardwoods in use at the present day are of comparatively recent introduction, elony was known and highly esteemed by a number of ancient races and used by them for kingly and other purposes. While the name elony is given to the wood of several varieties of trees, all kinds are of great density and dark color, the heaviest varieties being, as a rule, also the darkest. There are three varieties of elony well known in the trade. The elony from the Gaboon coast of Africa is the darkest. The Madagascari elony is the densest. The Macassar elony furnishes the largest pieces. London is still the chief mart for this wood, and from there it is shipped to the various countries in which it is used for manufacturing purposes.—Popular Mechanics.

The Deteriorating Turkish Lady. Eating sweetmeats, smoking cigarettes, scolding the slaves and talking scandal are the chief diversions of the Turkish lady, with now and then a visit to a low class theater, and her physique, and with it that of the race, is rapidly deteriorating for want of fresh air and exercise. The much disputed question as to whether woman is the possessor of an immortal soul has left its mark on the female population. They have ceased to base any great hopes on such an uncertainty and live, feed and behave so like the "beasts that perish" that to the flippant modern Turk it seems that, if endowed with souls at all, they must be so small as to be scarcely worth the trouble of saving.—Chambers' Magazine.

MISTAKES!

Behind the prescription often means the loss of a life and a druggists reputation. SPRAYING DOES PAY and is necessary to insure crop. The subject of spraying fruit trees and small fruits has been so thoroughly discussed and written up in all its details and different phases in fruit growing periodicals and agriculture journals coupled with the fact that every fruit growing state has its own experiment station, agricultural society or college from which documents and bulletins are issued free to its residents on application, giving results of experiments, different formulas for all kinds of insects and trees in the most approved and scientific manner containing complete information, describing the different insects, the formula to use and how and when to apply it, thus establishing the fact that spraying does pay, and is necessary to insure a crop.
