Mr. James McIntyre, of Northport, Wash., left for his home Monday. A few days ago we published a clipping from the Northport Republican, in which it stated that Mr. McIntyre had just fitted up a new house and would probably very soon go to housekeeping. We have learned from Mr. McIntyre that the furniture referred to in the article was simply furniture which his store firm held on a debt which some parties owed the firm and which they paid with the furniture instead of by means of the coin. We were about to extend our earnest congratulations to the young man, but find that it was a case of counting our chickens before they were hatched, and the laugh is on us.

Local Events.

If you don't get the Enterprise you don't get the news

Miss Emma Wade, while riding her wheel up the Canemah walk, was thrown off and sustained a serious injury to her knee. The injured member was swollen so badly that it is almost twice its normal size and is causing the young lady no little pain. She is confined to her bed and will not be able to do her work for several weeks.

Gerardine Bonner writes in her pleasant vein under the title "Old Clo's to Sell," in the Argonaut for March 21. She tells of a new industry among fashionable New York women, being nothing less than the buying and selling of slightly worn but expensive dresses. The trade appears to have reached quite large proportions.

This Friday evening there will be a social at the Baptist church for the benefit of new members. It might be called an acquaintance social and all members and friends are cordially invited to be present. Mrs. Tom Gault and Mrs. A. F. Parker have the social in charge and they have prepared a program and luncheon. Come and have a pleasant time.

A most ingenious little affair is the trout trough in George Bros. window. The trough is eight feet long and three feet deep and is full of fresh water. In the water are several beautiful speckled trout and gold fish swimming around apparently enjoying their new home immensely. In the bottom of the trough are racks moss covered and little pebbles cover the bottom and give to the whole affair a unique appearance.

The case of Wallace vs. Madison was tried before Judge Stupp this week in the county court room, and occupied two days. The action was on an account which Wallace claimed Madison owed him. After considerable deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of $44 in favor of the plaintiff. Many witnesses were examined and the task of examining them was an arduous one. U'Ren & Schmebel appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Eastham represented the defendant.

George Swafford passed the senior pharmacy examination this week in Portland, and is now a full fledged druggist. Mr. Swafford has been working in Mr. Charnas's drug store for two years past and has been for some time thoroughly competent to take the examination and do the work of an experienced druggist. Mr. Swafford has been one of the leading students at Pacific University for two years past and while there made a record for high scholarship second to none.

The people of Clackamas County are availing themselves of the opportunity to pay their taxes and get the rebate. All this week Sheriff Shaver's office has been the scene of more business than all other offices in the city put together. The office has been full of people from morning till six o'clock and many who wished to pay their taxes, seeing the crowds went out to return another time when there might be more room for them. The clerks are worked to death working almost every night to 9:30. This rush will continue until Saturday when the rush or at least most of it will be over.

At a meeting of the board of school directors Wednesday night it was decided to re-instate the "strikes" and to retain Superintendent Edgar M. Faulk. The directors fully appreciate the necessity of enforcing discipline and will heartily co-operate with Professor Faulk. It is to be earnestly hoped that in the future these pupils, who up to now have made a commendable record, may desert from any further manifestations of the very bad taste witnessed last week when they left school on the ground that if one rather incorrigible youth had to be expelled they all must leave.

Quite an interesting hearing was had in the county court Saturday over the claims of two of the heirs of Eleanor Samson, deceased. Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Spangler, daughters of the said deceased, presented claims to the administrator of the estate; Mrs. Spangler in the sum of $106 for caring for her mother during her last illness and Mrs. Jackson the sum of $46 for caring for her mother and the sum of $100 as damages wherein she claimed that she was injured by bursting a blood vessel while in the act of turning her mother over in bed. The court took the matter under advisement and ordered the attorneys to prepare and present briefs within ten days from the date of hearing. Mayor Dimick, attorney for the administrator, contended that no claim for damages should be allowed against the estate unless the claimant could show that the injuries received by her were through the negligent and wrongful act of the deceased otherwise no damages could be recovered. He further contended that the law will not permit a child to put in a claim against the parents estate for the care and support of a parent except by express contract between the claimant and the parent; no implied contract will be sanctioned by law so it was contended by the attorney. Harvey E. Cross appeared as the attorney for claimants. The case will be decided next Tuesday by Judge Ryan.

Some British Lawmakers. It may surprise some folks to learn that plenty of British laws have been drawn up so carelessly and written in such muddled language that they are quite useless for their intended purpose.

One of the acts passed in George III's reign, for instance, states that the proceeds of penalties were to be given half to the informer and half to the poor of the parish. The absurdity lies in the fact that the only penalty which could be inflicted was one of transportation for fourteen years.

In 1865 a well known Q. C. created a lot of amusement by proposing an amendment worded as follows: "Every dog found trespassing on inclosed land unaccompanied by the registered owner of such dog or other person, who shall on being asked for his true name and address may be then and there destroyed by such occupier or by his orders." This gem of meaninglessness was, however, not passed.—London Tit-Bits.

Ebony, the Wood of Kings.

While many of the hardwoods in use at the present day are of comparatively recent introduction, ebony was known and highly esteemed by a number of ancient races and used by them for kingly and other purposes. While the name ebony is given to the wood of several varieties of trees, all kinds are of great density and dark color, the heaviest varieties being, as a rule, also the darkest. There are three varieties of ebony well known in the trade. The ebony from the Gaboon coast of Africa is the darkest. The Madagascar ebony is the densest. The Macassar ebony furnishes the largest pieces. London is still the chief mart for this wood, and from there it is shipped to the various countries in which it is used for manufacturing purposes.—Popular Mechanics.

The Deteriorating Turkish Lady.

Eating sweetmeats, smoking cigarettes, scolding the slaves and talking scandal are the chief diversions of the Turkish lady, with now and then a visit to a low class theater, and her physique, and with it that of the race, is rapidly deteriorating for want of fresh air and exercise. The much disputed question as to whether woman is the possessor of an immortal soul has left its mark on the female population. They have ceased to base any great hopes on such an uncertainty and live, feed and behave so like the "beasts that perish" that to the flippant modern Turk it seems that, if endowed with souls at all, they must be so small as to be scarcely worth the trouble of saving.—Chambers' Magazine.
