such foods, there are many other varieties which he gets just as much pleasure in eating and which at the same time are equally as good and strengthening for his constitution. A few days before a race a jockey who has a mount in it will not stint himself-provided he has no fear of overtipping his proper weight for the race-in anything which he thinks will not interfere with his digestive apparatus.

"Some jockeys, of course, take on and lose flesh quicker than others. I have known one or two who were particularly anxious to ride in certain races, but for which they were perhaps as much as eight or nine pounds too heavy, who reduced that weight in the same number of days. To accomplish that, however, they have to resort practically to a 'starving diet,' leaving as little as the strain on the vitality will permit without breaking down and trying to reduce their overweight by certain sweating exercises. It is needless to say that no jockey could stand too frequent repetitions of such severe measures to subtract from his weight without danger of permanently injuring his health and even sacrificing his life; still, many willingly resort to such 'get light weight quick' methods where they see good opportunities of making a name or a pile of money for themselves.

Notice is hereby given that we will ap-ply to the Oregon City council at its reg-ular meeting in November for a renewal "It must be remembered that by nature jockeys as a whole are not of subalthough they are as tough as whipcord. A broad-shouldered, muscular individual, who gave his name as Pat Nagle, after filling up with "booze," ran amnek on the streets of this city last evening, and before he could be subdued had encountered eleven different men and engaged in as many fist fights. By the time he was landed in the city jail his physiognomy presented a sorry sight, but his fighting spirit had not been dampened in the least, and he was still on the warpath. Nagle claims to have arrived in Salem on Sunday evening, having of the day, yesterday, in different sa-loons of this city, and about 7 o'clock last evening, while satisfying his thirst in a resort on Commercial street, he got into a difficulty with a well known Sacharacter, who came out second lem best in the mix-up. Nagle then started up street, thoroughly imbued with the fighting spirit, and going into the White House restaurant, on State streat, he proceeded to clean out the house, but in his attempt he was considerably worsted.

The enraged man was finally ejected from the building, and when he reached the walk he assailed every one that hap-pened along. After engaging in eleven fights Nagle was brought to earth at the corner of State and Liberty streets, where he was held down until the police officers arrived. It fell to the lot of Offi-cers Murphy and Johnson to transport
