Thos. Clark brought a suit Wednesday in the circuit court asking that he be divorced from Stella Clark whom he married in Portland in December 1901. As grounds for asking for a separation, Clark charges his wife with the crime of adultery which he alleges has been committed at divers times with one Adolph Smith.

Because of the scarcity of available teachers in this locality, County Superintendent Zinser has this week been compelled to abandon his office at the court house and assume the principalship of the Parkplace school, succeeding Prof. McCann who has been taken seriously ill and gone to Portland to submit to a surgical operation. It has been some time since competent educators were as scarce as they are in this section at this time.

The county court at a special session held Wednesday made an order directing the road supervisors of the county to enforce the collection of all delinquent road poll taxes before December 1. At that date the supervisors make their annual reports to the court showing the work of the year. This assessment amounting to $3 per annum, has been very generally paid in this county. The fund that is raised from this source is expended in road construction in the road district in which it is collected.

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for November are "The Mascot of the Ten-Strike: How Mrs. Potter Worked the Bunco Game," an interesting story by Marguerite Stabler, of the exigent circumstances in which a boss miner and his wife are placed; "The Proud Prince," an account by Geraldine Bonner, of the production of the play of that name in New York, with the fascinating Sotthern in the title-roll; "Marriage in Egypt, B. C., 92," an article giving some account of the findings of the Mrs. Hearst archaeological expedition, and reproducing the earliest marriage contract known; and a criticism of "The Storks" at the Columbia, by Josephine Hart Phelps.

The theory of "Practice what you preach" is more easily and generally preached than practiced. Particularly is this true with many local merchants, who, if they see a resident of the city return from Portland with some purchase made in the metropolis, question the loyalty of the purchaser to his home town. At the same time many of these same merchants refuse to do any advertising in the local papers for which a majority are not subscribers. If asked to sign for the local paper, these merchants smile. Instances are known in which business men of this city have sent to outside towns for their job printing when the same work can be done at either of the newspaper offices in this city as reasonable and frequently cheaper. A good local newspaper can be maintained only by patronizing it in every possible way. There is not another city in the state in which two better weekly papers are published than are printed in Oregon City and they are deserving of the encouragement that it is the duty of local business interests to give. Advertising, job printing of all kinds and subscription constitute our stock in trade.

The wives of the members of the local grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons, gave their husbands a pleasant surprise Monday evening. After an informal programme of toasts, the ladies served a banquet. Mrs. Linwood E. Jones presided as toastmaster, and in proposing toasts was decidedly impartial in that every one of the gentlemen guests was called upon. The responses were varied and entertaining. Some made brief addresses, others related a story, some recited—all contributing in some way to the entertainment of those about the banquet board. And by the way, those who had the good fortune to be present, declare that the spread was one of the finest they had partaken of in many a year. The local banqueters dispersed shortly before midnight after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Isaac M. Foster, who died at the home of his son-in-law, F. C. Geer, 249-10th street, Portland, November 4, 1903, was aged 84 years, 5 months and 27 days. He was a pioneer of 1845, having been born in Scott county, Kentucky in 1819. He was an Indian War Veteran, having served against the Cayuse Indians as a private in Captain Maxon's company of riflemen during the uprising of 1848. He also served as a Texas ranger during 1838 and 1839 in the territory of Texas. He settled in Clackamas county in 1845 and resided in this county until 1882 when he removed to Grant county where he lived until three years ago. The deceased is survived by four daughters and a son as follows: Mrs. Eliza Geer, Portland; Mrs. L. H. Strickland, Oregon City; Stephen Foster, Idaho; Mrs. Addie Nelson, Portland; Mrs. Claudie Simpson, Portland; and Mrs. Lenora Nelson, Everett. Mr. Foster was known in every section in which he held his residence for his extreme hospitality and decided honesty. Funeral services were conducted at the First Baptist church in Oregon City, Friday, November 6, and burial was had in Mountain View cemetery.

It is natural that in making purchases of every description, the investor desires only superior goods. If a suit of clothes or material for a dress is wanted, the intending purchaser goes to an established business house whose proprietor has made a reputation for handling only the best goods. If groceries are needed, the housekeeper considers quality rather than quantity. So it is with printing. Convinced that the best is one too good for the people of Oregon City and vicinity, the Enterprise recently ordered an extensive stock of the latest commercial and society stationery. The goods have arrived and with the new type that we have ordered, the Enterprise will be better prepared than ever before to supply the wants of this section in all kinds of job printing. We have a fine assortment of new and up-to-date stationery for dance invitations, programmes, parties, and all social functions. Our stock of wedding stationery was never more complete. We are particularly prepared to furnish window cards of attractive design for dances, public entertainments, etc. Our prices are consistent with good stock, faultless work and satisfactory service. Call at the office and let us show our samples. Orders by mail or telephone will receive prompt attention.

Last Sunday, owing to the carelessness of the attending nurse in a San Francisco hospital where the little fellow was receiving treatment, Ivy, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Powell, and the grand-son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Powell, of this city, was smothered to death. The nurse, who was administering a steam bath to the child, was called to the telephone and left the patient unattended. Upon returning to the room later, it was discovered that the lamp had overturned and the bed clothing was burning. Before the child, who was pinned to the bedclothes, could be rescued, it had smothered to death. Funeral services will be conducted at the Salvation Army hall at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and interment will take place in the Mountain View cemetery. The funeral party will leave the residence of G. S. Freeman on the West Side in time to reach the Salvation Army hall at the hour appointed for the funeral service.

The Thanksgiving market of the Saturday Club will open next Tuesday at 1 o'clock in the vacant Candy store opposite Barlow's.

In a recent letter to his relatives in this city, E. E. Charman, of the City Drug Store, who is now located at Phoenix, Arizona, writes that his health is much improved.

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions of St. Paul's parish, held at the rectory Thursday afternoon, the Rev. P. K. Hammond read a paper on "The Work of the Church in Alaska."

The praise service at the First Congregational church last Sunday evening was largely attended. A large audience attended the song service which took the place of the regular evening service. The individual and choir contributions were all good.

There will be held the usual Thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Episcopal church at 11 a. m. Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. The annual sermon will be delivered by the Rector, Rev. P. K. Hammond and an offering will be taken for the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The Thanksgiving market of the Saturday Club will open next Tuesday at 1 o'clock in the vacant candy store opposite Barlow's. A greater variety of delicacies will be for sale than at any previous market. Orders received before the market will be faithfully filled.

The story in the Argonaut for November 23d is a striking translation from the French of Robert Scheffer. It is the tale of a woman whose infidelity is not discovered till after she was buried, but who was then visited by a strange and terrible revenge. The story is significantly entitled "The Expiation."

"Do you know where I can find a George Washington around Oregon City?" inquired County Treasurer Cahill of the reporter this morning. "Not unless you accept my services," replied the pencil pusher, who asked what Mr. Cahill wished of such a person. "I was going to remark," continued the county officer, "that if I could find a modern Washington I would purchase him a hatchet if he would remove that large shrub in the front yard of the court house square," continued Mr. Cahill. With this remark he indicated a large tree just immediately in front of his office window that entirely obstructs his view of the street. At last accounts Mr. Cahill had not found a man to use the hatchet.

Mr. Fred Greenman and Miss Minnie Holden, both of this city, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Eighth street Thursday evening, November 19, 1903. Rev. E. S. Bollinger, of the First Congregational church officiated at the ceremony which was witnessed by only the immediate members of the two families and a few specially invited friends. Both of the principals are popularly known here where they have resided for many years. The bride was for some time connected with the city schools as instructor while the groom, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Greenman, has held various clerical positions of trust and responsibility. At the present time he is serving as deputy county clerk under County Clerk Slight. In the new relations that have been formed, Mr. and Mrs. Greenman have the sincere wishes of a wide circle of friends for a wedded life of unending bliss and happiness.
