WILL BE HELD AT PORTLAND.

National Livestock and Wool Growers' Associations to Meet Next Month,

Two meetings of importance to the stock raising industry of the county will be held in Portland next month. They are the National Livestock Association and the National Wool Growers' Association. The former will be convened in its Seventh Annual session on January 12 and will continue through as many days as the business may require while the wool growers will be in session Monday and Tuesday, January 11 and 12. in its thirty-nioth annual session.

In calling the Stock Association meet-ing, the president, J. W. Springer says: For mutual protection it has become the policy of all industries to organize. It must be conceded that in a national organization the live stock industry of the nation can accomplish more than by individual efforts. The history of this organization will demonstrate this lact. The work is in your hands, and upon your determination and successful efforts, to a great extent, depends the future of the live stock industry. Unless the association receives this support, it will be impossible for it to attain the measure of success desired. The cost of maintaining a national organization is insignificant, the assessments being but one-twentieth of one cent per head. If you or your local association are not members of the national association you are earnestly requested to make application immediately, in order that you may be represented at the coming meeting. Blanks for this purpose and all information may be had by addressing the sec-retary at Portland, Oregon.

We desire to impress upon you the su-preme importance of delegates being appointed udder this call who will attend this meeting and give the matters under discussion their serious consideration.

The citizens of Portland have raised a generous sum and are arranging to entertain all delegates in a handsome manner.

Immediately on arriving in Portland you should register with the secretary at headquarters. Portland Hotel, or the theatre, when you will be provided with badges admitting you to Convention Hall, and coupon tickets for all entertainments given by the citizens.

Be sure and ask for rates to the National Live Stock Convention, Janu-ary 11-15, 1904. If your local agent cannot give you full information as to dates of sale, etc., write the secretary of the association. Francis E. Warren, president of the sational Wool Growers' Association. says in calling the convention:

Each state association of wool growers will be entitled to one delegate to each 10,000 head of sheep represented by its membership, and one delegate for a fraction of 10,000 head over 5,000, and also five delegates at large. Each local association of sheep or wool growers will be entitled to one delegate for each 10,000 head of sheep represented or fraction of 10,000 over 5,000, and three delegates at large. Each pure bred record association will be entitled to one delegate for each 25 members and one delegate at larve. Each individual member or corpora-tion member shall be entitled to one vote and an additional vote for each 10,000

Our industry is in the three of an evo-intion which is working many changes in old established methods if conducting the business of sheep and wool growing. New conditions are arising that vitally affect every one engaged in the industry. It is an age of combination and union. Individually we c n do but little to guide or control the mighty influences now at work either for the weel or woe of those engaged in the industry, but collectively there is much that can be nected with the industry is vitally inferested in this meeting, and, if necessary, sacrifices should be made to secure

There are still some organizations and individuals in the industry who have not identified themselves with the national organiza-tion. It is carnessly hoped, for the good of all, that these will become members and be represented at the meeting. They will n tonly assist in the work to be done, but will gain much in an educa-tional way that will more than offset the expense and trouble of the journey.

MAYOR SCHINDLER RE-ELECTED.

Result of the Monday Election at Milwankle-Lively Contest.

Mayor Wm. Schindler's administra tion of the affairs of Milwaukie for the past six months received a flattering indorsement at the first annual municipal election that was held at that place Moniay when the present mayor was re-elected by a vote of 58 to 33 over I, S. Mullan, the Independent or "progressve" candidate.

Two offices were found in possession of the independents when the final count was in, but these were Jesse A. Keck, recorder, and John Keiso, mar-shal, two who have no voice in directing municipal policy. The election binged on a question of remaining free from debt or bonding the town for a waer system and other public debt free policy prevailed. Returns in the race follows:

Mayor Schindler points with pride to the cash balance in the treasury after his six months as mayor of Milwaukie.

"We have had no income to speak of," he said, "and yet we have kept out of debt. Our sole resources have been a few poll taxes collected, and a few li-censes granted to peddlers, yet we approach the second election of the municipality without owing a cent, and even have money in the treasury."
