on this page the new scal of the State of Oregon as adopted by the legislature last winfer, together with some descriptive matter showing the respects in which the new differs from the old. Five separate maps are shown on the third page. They are Alaska, British Columbia, the Hawaman Islands, Philippine Islands and the mile United States possessions in the Pacific Ocean. The fourth page shows a map of the United States, Idaho and the minor possessions of the United States in the Pacific Ocean, the map showing the last named land being larger and more useful than that on the pre ceding page. Arranged'in alphabeticla order on this page are also the counties and towns of the state of Idaho, together with their location and population.

The combination of these maps is worth the $2.50 for which it retails. They are printed on good map paper 5 and will last a life time. The various drawings are richly colored and the map 50 is a very creditable production. We will furnish these maps to Clackamas county people at $2,25 and include with them a subscription to the Enterprise 3000 and the Weekly Oregonian for one year in advance. This is a rare offer and one 50 that will probably not be duplicated again. Call at the Enterprise office and see the map or mail us your subscription anyway. You will be sure to be pleased with the premium you will receive.

Start the New Year off right by signing for the Enterprise, the best county paper, and the Oregonian, which for general news is not equalled in this section.

Send in your subscriptions at once. We cannot guarantee to prospective subscribers that this offer for the Orego 5 nian and the Enterprise with the map as a premium, will hold good after Jan-200 uary 1, next. > Gambling the Worst Vice. Of all the vices to which men are addicted gambling is undoubtedly the worst. Gambling has a worse effect on the mind and conscience even than drink. The inveterate gambler cannot remain honest; be does not remain hon-

We talk earnestly to the young man with the gambling habit because many such young men are strong in ability and character and would render good service to the world if they could use their energies properly.

The gambling instinct is a perverted form of ambition, the most dangerous of human perversions. Every young man who has genuine strength should think about gambling from his own point of view, and his own pride should give him reasons for stopping.

If you want success in life you should want it as a result of your own efforts. not as the result of any accident. The gambling instinct is weak as well as vicious. It is self indulgent and contemptible; it represents the desire to get something for nothing.-New York

His Hobusiled Shoes, A globe trotter whose shoe soles are always heavily studded with copper brads was asked why he wore them. He replied:

"To those simple brads alone I attribute my present good health. For years I was an invalid, subject to neuralgia, dyspepsia and headache. In traveling among the western Indians I finally concluded that their splendid good health was due to their going burefoot. And now I attain the same result and wear shoes. I believe the aches and pains civilization is heir to are due to the insulation of our bodies from mother earth. Electricity is the vitalmind. No harm done. No one would ixing constituent of our bodies. The globe is a mighty battery, continually generating and discharging electricity. I restored the broken connection with Narrow minds think nothing right the battery with these brads, and the result was astonishing improvement in

A Bogus Bear's Ham

Sir Richard Owen, the eminent anatomist, often had his skill in identifying bones tested. On one occasion his friend and neighbor, Lord John Russell, sent him a specimen for this purpose, and the professor quickly pronounced it the thigh bone of a pig. This explanation of the query was subsequently offered by Lord John: "President Buchanau had sent from America to the English statesman the present of 'a choice bear's ham,' and the family had breakfasted off it several times with much enjoyment. Somehow or other, however, suspicion was aroused, and the bone was sent to their scientific neighbor, with the result stated."-Pall Mall Gazette.

In the "Memoir" of Robert Chambers by his brother William is a delightful allusion to Peebles, their birthplace and a spot ever warm in the loving memory of Scotch residents.

One of these, a man who had lived there all his life, was enabled by some uplift of fortune to visit Paris. When he came back his townsmen gravely gathered about him.

"Noo," said one, while the others listened, "tell us about it."

"Paris," he began, "a' things considered, is a wonderfu' place; but, still, Peebles for pleasure."

Got Along Without It. "Did you ever have mal de mer on your way over to Europe?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle

"No. Josiah took a bottle or two of it along, but when I'm sensick none of them kind of things ever does me a hit of good."-Chicago Record-Herald.

Useless Telling. "You can always tell an Englishman," said the Briton proudly "Of course you can," replied the Yankee, "but it doesn't do any good, because he thinks he knows it all."-Philadelphia Ledger.

Men Who "Were Literature." Balzac and Hugo were the last of the great men whose inspiration was unceasing and who did not make literature, but who were literature. Balzac wrote a great story at a sitting -a sitting that lasted for eighteen hours. All that while he wrote, for no secretary could keep pace with him, and all that while he lived on black coffee. Then he slept for thirty hours. Hugo wrote "Hernani" in a month, and we can think of Balzac and Hugo as we think of the great Venetian living in the glory and exultation of constant creation. Veronese must have improvised "The Marriage Feast at Cana" with extraordinary ease, and I like to think he painted the immortal fiddler in a morning and went out in his gondola in the afternoon thinking be had done a fair day's work. That was how men wrote and painted in the great times before science beckoned them away from the beautiful.-George Moore in Lippincott's.

On one occasion Bianchi, the noted teacher, went on the stage to see Brignoll, the famous singer, whom he found pacing up and down like a madman, humming over his part.

"Why, Brig, what is the matter with you? Are you pervous?" he asked. "Yes, I am nervous," was the reply as he walked harder and faster than ever. ous. I've heard you sing the part 200 times. I heard you sing it thirty years
